CONGRESSMAN AND FOUR OTHERS KILLED IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

Horace Head Made Defendant In $100,000 Libel Suit

ENGINEER F. C. FINKLE PLAINTIFF

SAYS ARTICLE FALSE

ASKING $100,000 damages, F. C. Finkle, who acted as consulting engineer for the Water Users' association here during the recent flood control campaign, today directed a libel suit against Horace C. Head, attorney for the flood control district, basing his case on statements made by Head in a published article dealing with the engineering record of Finkle.

Finkle flatly denied the truth of the statements made by Head, declared that the assertions had been made with the intent to injure his reputation and that they had damaged him as an engineer, a business man and a citizen.

In his complaint Finkle denied the truth of the following statements in the article written by Head:

1. That he ever was discharged by the Edison company from his position as chief hydraulic engineer;

2. That whenever any plan is proposed by others he will sell his services to its opponents for the purpose of criticising or opposing the project;

3. That he ever offered his services to the city of Riverside in litigation between that community and San Bernardino, or that he was told his services were not wanted, or that he then testified on the opposite side for San Bernardino;

4. That he ever testified as an expert witness for C. Echenique, of San Juan Capistrano in accordance with Echenique's contentions, or that later, when the same matter was involved in litigation, he testified in the opposite manner for either parties;

5. That Los Angeles attorneys and judges have declared his tes-

ALASKA AVIATORS ON RESCUE FLIGHT

NOME, Alaska, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Pilots Joe Crosson and Charley Gilliam took off from Teller at 10 a. m. today to fly across the Bering straits to Siberia in search of Capt. Ben Eielson and Elmer Borland, who have been missing for more than a month.

The two pilots flew Waco Stearman planes and their projected rescue flight was considered extremely hazardous and daring due to the poor visibility over the route.

FORTY DEAD IS RESULT OF ICE, SNOW AND COLD

Heaviest Snowfall in Over Ten Years Covers Entire Middle West

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Mid-America wore a thick vestment of snow today as the aftermath of a two-day blizzard and cold wave that wreaked havoc of disaster proportions.

Not in 11 years has such a snowfall been known in the midwest. More than 15 inches had fallen in many localities. The official measurement in Chicago was 14.8 inches. That was within .1 inch of the all time record.

Millions of people felt the paralyzing clutch of the storm. More than 40 lives were exacted either by cold, exhaustion [illegible] caused by the frigid blasts. Transportation was virtually at a standstill at the height of the storm and was limping along haphazardly today as thousands of men toiled to clear away the drifts that clung to rail, sidewalk and street.

Intense suffering remained wherever the blizzard struck with intensity. Poor families shivered in cold that their dwindling fuel supplies alleviated only a few degrees. Homeless men crowded relief agencies and public buildings. All who were physically able were given shovels and put to work clearing the snow piles from city streets.

Cost of the storm in dollars was mounting into the millions. Fires added perils to life and took their toll of property. Shipping was severely crippled by thudding

VICTIMS OF MINE DISASTER BURIED

McALESTER, Okla., Dec. 20.—(UP)—A long procession of conveyances wound through the streets today with 25 caskets bearing the bodies of Mexican victims of the Old Town mine disaster.

While a priest read the burial service, the caskets were lowered into a long trench that had been dug by 50 convicts from the Oklahoma state penitentiary. Stores were closed and the town joined the relatives of the Mexican miners in mourning.

Burials will continue through today, tomorrow and Sunday, until the last of the 59 bodies recovered have been laid away.

Two miners, a Mexican and a Negro, still were missing.

Radio Singer With Sob In Voice Suicide

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Esther Case, 40, former European opera prima donna, had been singing a song called "Forgotten" almost nightly from radio stations here. It seemed to listeners that there was a genuine sob in her voice.

Last night she was found dead in her apartment. She had cut her wrist with a razor blade and inhaled gas.

Miss Case had been melancholy since she recently lost a $250,000 breach of promise suit against Capt. Reginald Sheridan Carroll, British war ace, who now lives at Baldwin, L. I. She left a note asking that several trinkets piled on her bureau be "returned" to Captain Carroll.

DRYS PLAN TO SHARPEN TEETH OF PROHIBITION

Georgia Senator Seeking to Increase Appropriations To Carry on Work

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—For the first time since prohibition, the drys are on the legislative warpath.

With the wets more or less quiet since the last election, the congressional drys are formulating a plan to sharpen the teeth of prohibition.

This plan, to be started after the holidays, is twofold:

First, to see that all necessary funds are furnishing to federal endorsement agencies in appropriation bills for the next year and second to conduct a congressional inquiry on the possibility of coordinating existing enforcement agencies from an administrative standpoint.

In furtherance of the first project, Senator Harris, dry Georgia Democrat, has pending in the senate a resolution to call upon President Hoover for a preliminary report from his law enforcement commission. As an advocate of increased appropriations for enforcement, Harris wants to develop what the commission has learned thus far regarding enforcement needs.

Harris would like to boost the appropriations even above the figures proposed by President Hoover in his budget message. Mr. Hoover recommended $15,200,000 for the

50 INJURED IN SUBWAY TUBE IN NEW YORK

Short Circuit Causes Panic During Early Morning Rush of Workers

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The spark of a short circuit caused a panic on an inbound train of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company today and sent hundreds of passengers scurrying through a smoke clouded tunnel under the East river.

Transport company officials reported 50 persons had been treated at emergency first aid stations at the [illegible] and 4 injured was seriously hurt. Sixteen of the 50 were subsequently taken to St. John's hospital, Long Island City, where it was said their conditions were not critical.

John Corbey, motorman of the train, said he had just taken his cars into the tunnel that leads to Manhattan. It was the height of the rush hours, passengers were packed in tightly and the train was proceeding at a moderate speed.

Suddenly there was a flash on the floor of the tunnel and smoke rolled up into the first car. Corbey threw on his emergency brakes.

The smoke brought panic; passengers shoved through the narrow car doors toward the rear of the train; screaming women smashed at windows with their fists and the air was thick with flying glass.

Patrolman Thomas J. Smith, a passenger, clubbed his way through the crowd and forced the panic stricken passengers into some semblance of order. Within 10 minutes passengers were trickling out the rear door of the last car into the smoky tunnel.

Inside the train, however, the confusion added to the terror. Passengers shouted that the whole train was on fire and memories of the disastrous Times Square Subway wreck caused a riot.

Smith stood at the rear entrance and directed the passengers onto the narrow catwalk in the tunnel, sending them back through the smoke toward Queensborough Plaza station.

B. M. T. officials said the fire was confined to the first car, but an immense amount of smoke gave passengers the impression that flames were eating into the floors of all six cars.

The fire was extinguished less than a half hour after it had started, but many of the smoke grimed passengers who fought their way out to the Queensborough end of the tunnel had to be treated for shock and cuts caused by the flying glass.

Allegations Of Property Owners Denied

City Attorney Asks Action Be Dismissed and Costs Against Plaintiff

FILING LATE this afternoon a demurrer and answer to the suit filed by property owners in the West Orange district asking a court order restraining the city of Santa Ana from constructing a trestle bridge across the Santa Ana river, City Attorney C. D. Swanner, alleges, among other things, that the complaint is ambiguous and that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In the answer, the city [illegible] makes general denial of all allegations made in the complaint.

The city proposes construction of the bridge as part of the program for opening and improving Santa Ana boulevard. The property owners, represented in the complaint filed by Attorney H. C. Head, allege that building of the bridge would result in possible clogging of the river in times of heavy floods with consequent damages to their properties by overflow water from the river.

The answer denies "that for a distance of more than a quarter of a mile above and below the place where it is proposed by the defendants to construct a wooden pile trestle bridge across the Santa Ana river, that the said Santa Ana river has banks not more than three to four feet high, or that the river bed has been so filled with silt by flood waters that it is almost on the level with the land adjacent to said river, or much higher to the lands to the south or southwest or southeast of the aforesaid place where it is proposed to construct a wooden pile trestle bridge across the Santa Ana river, or much higher than the lands of the plaintiff."

Admitting that the plan "adopted for the construction of said bridge provides for six or more parallel rows of wooden piling," the answer denies "that they will be driven at close intervals in the bed of said river;" that the bridge "at the place mentioned in the complaint would quickly, or otherwise, cause a dam to be formed by debris or silt lodging against said bridge during a storm, or when flood waters were going down the river, or at all, or would force the said waters out of the river bed, or upon or across lands owned by the plaintiffs, or either of them."

In conclusion, the attorney in his

TEXANS WORRIED BY CLOSING OF BORDER

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20.—(UP)—While commercial interests became increasingly alarmed by the closing of the port of Laredo, Governor Dan Moody communicated with the state department at Washington today in an effort to smooth out incidents blamed for the withdrawal by the Mexican government of its consulate at Nuevo Laredo.

Mexican Consul H. Enrique Santisbanez closed his office ostensibly in protest against actions of District Attorney John Valls on the Texas side. Valls refused Santisbanez's pleas for diplomatic immunity for General Plutarco Calles in connection with the slaying of two Mexican officers seven years ago.

The controversy moved to the state house here when merchants of Laredo informed Governor Moody that the closing of the port had caused serious economic consequences on both sides of the border.

Former President Of Neon Company Accused of Bigamy

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20 (UP).—Thomas C. Jones, former president of the General Neon company here, arrested recently in Kansas City on charges of issuing worthless checks, today faced an indictment charging him with bigamy.

The grand jury returned the indictment yesterday upon complaint of Mrs. Margaret Matticks Brenholts, who was married to Jones in Nashville, Tenn., after he allegedly told her he was single.

Jones was said to have married Mrs. Irene Jones in Los Angeles and later abandoned her in Detroit.

Mrs. Brenholts, police said, was divorced from her first husband, a wealthy Columbus, O., business man, some time ago.

John Lenson, assistant circuit attorney, said he believed Jones might have married other women under similar circumstances.

BRUSH FIRE THREATENS TO DESTROY EXCLUSIVE HOMES

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—(UP)—A brush fire raging in the Griffith park hills and threatening scores of exclusive residences became so serious today that an appeal for volunteers was broadcast from radio stations.

The blaze started in Vermont canyon, not far from the imposing home of Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, and was quickly whipped out of control by a 40-mile wind.

All available fire equipment was called out and when it was evident that firemen could not halt the flames, Boy Scouts and other organizations were called to the aid.

Finally a general appeal was broadcast over the radio.

Five men were injured seriously in traffic crashes that resulted from the rush of fire fighters to the scene.

Four of the men hurt were employees of the city water department. The truck in which they were enroute to the fire turned over.

J. B. Dollar was injured critically and G. E. Davis, J. H. Calvin and R. H. Montoya suffered minor hurts.

M. J. Lakey, a fireman, was struck down by an automobile and was injured seriously.

Shortly afternoon firemen reported that 600 acres of land has been burned over. No homes had been destroyed, it was said, and fighters were concentrating on keeping the flames away from residences.

Twenty acres of flowers in the nursery of A. H. Kuromi were ruined by the flames and the heat.

Billows of smoke made it difficult to determine the progress of the flames.

Sling-shots and clubs were wielded by the young boys in the district as swarms of rats, rabbits, squirrels and gophers swarmed from the brushland.

FITTS TO BE CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA, SAYS RICHARDSON

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Buron R. Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney and former lieutenant governor of California, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor at the 1930 primaries.

This prediction was contained in a statement to the United Press today by Friend W. Richardson, who definitely eliminated himself from the race and placed his support behind the Los Angeles prosecutor.

Richardson said:

"Buron Fitts has made the most fearless and honest district attorney the state has ever had.

"He has brought underworld, political, official and wealthy criminals to justice.

"He is well qualified for governor of California.

"Every voter who believes: that the present orgy of state extravagance should be stopped, that the laws should be rigidly enforced and criminals brought to justice and that our great California president, Herbert Hoover, should be sustained—should urge Buron Fitts to become a candidate for governor."

Although Richardson urged that Fitts be "drafted" as a candidate, political observers at Sacramento read between the lines that an agreement between the two has already been reached, and that a formal announcement from Fitts will follow in a few days.

The Richardson statement culminates a series of conferences held between the two for the last week. On Tuesday Richardson told newspapermen, "You may say that either Fitts or I will run for governor."

Fitts, a native of Texas, came to California with his parents in 1906. He is a law graduate of the University of Southern California, being admitted to the bar in 1916. In the World war he served in France with the 91st division and was wounded in the Meuse-Argonne.

In 1920 Fitts was appointed deputy district attorney of Los Angeles and in 1923 was advanced to chief deputy. He was elected

CARLIN APPOINTED TO NEW POSITION

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Appointment of Keith Carlin, former private secretary to Governor Young, to the post of attorney for the state department of professional and vocational standards, to take effect January 1 was announced here yesterday by the governor.

Carlin has been in the governor's office for three years, first as executive secretary and later as private secretary. His resignation was announced a few weeks ago, before leaving on a trip to Virginia to take effect the same date he bgeins his new duties.

NAVY REDUCING SOLUTION NOW UP TO ENGLAND

United States and Japan in Accord on Slashes As Result of Parley

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP).—Great Britain will be compelled to say "yes" or "no" to actual naval reduction in London next month it appeared today as Washington pondered results of American-Japanese conversations here.

The Japanese delegates to the London conference left Washington yesterday.

While here they forecast actual naval reduction in the following words, uttered by former Premier Wakatsuki.

"The termination of competitive armaments and a positive reduction in naval strength may, we believe, be looked for as the outcome (of the London conference)."

The Japanese impressed Washington officials with the strength of their strategorical position at London. They want 70 per cent of the world's largest 10,000 ton cruiser fleet. They have built or building 12 craft of that type. That number would approximate 70 per cent of the 18 big cruisers

MRS. MILES POINDEXTER DIES IN S. A. FOLLOWING OPERATION

Mrs. Elizabeth Poindexter, prominent for many years in social circles in Washington, D. C., and the author of many articles published in newspapers and magazines dealing with Washington society and Washington life, died here today at St. Joseph's hospital, following an operation Thursday night.

Mrs. Poindexter was the wife of Miles Poindexter, of Seattle, former United States senator from the state of Washington and former ambassador to Peru. She came here two weeks ago to visit with her sisters, Mrs. May Jorgensen and Mrs. Sabina Morton, both residing at 604 South Bristol street. She was taken ill suddenly Sunday night and was removed to the hospital on Monday, with an operation following later. She was 63 years of age.

Mr. Poindexter is on his way from Washington, D. C., and is expected to arrive here Sunday, when plans for the funeral will be completed. The body is at the Winbigler Funeral home.

In addition to the husband and the sisters mentioned, Mrs. Poindexter is survived by a son, Lieutenant-Commander Gale Poindexter, of the navy, San Diego, who is here; two sisters, Mrs. Isabel Rutter of Spokane and Mrs. B. C. McClelland of Seattle, and a brother, Thomas D. Page, Seattle.

Mrs. Poindexter gained considerable fame throughout the nation in 1923 when she penned a series of articles for publication by newspapers and magazines. It was she who wrote the expose of social circles in Washington that created a sensation at the time of publication. In other articles she commented on public officials, including President Coolidge. She wrote in behalf of the observance of all laws and in opposition to women entering politics, particularly in Washington. She was the author of a book on boys and girls, in which she asserted that because of the freedom of boys and girls of today they should always be accompanied by escorts or guardians. One of her characteristic assertions in public print was that any good looking young man, even though he be only a kid boy, could "crash" into high society in Washington, particularly in the night life of those metropolis as leaders in the social society there.

MOTOR GOES DEAD; PLANE IS WRECKED

Accident Worst of Year In Washington—Party On Way to Xmas Holidays

SHIP FALLS 100 FEET

Secretary of Solon Was on Way to Springfield to See His New-born Babe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The worst airplane tragedy of the year here occurred today at Bolling field when five men, including Representative Kaynor, Republican, Massachusetts, and his secretary Stanley B. Love, were instantly killed.

They were bound to arrange family Christmas festivities when their lives were crushed out without an instant's warning.

The dead:

Representative William K. Kaynor, Republican, Springfield, Mass., member of the house military affairs committee.

Stanley B. Love, age 40, his secretary, Springfield, Mass., former newspaperman.

Captain Harry A. Dinger, crack army pilot who has flown Representative James, chairman of the house military affairs committee and other congressmen thousands of miles.

Private Vladimir Kuwma, army air corps.

Arthur A. McGill, friend of Representative Kaynor.

The party had planned to go first to Springfield, Mass., where Love was to see his new born baby and bring his family back to Washington for Christmas. Later it was planned to inspect national guard units at Hartford. It was Love's first time in the air.

It all happened with sickening quickness. The giant three motored Fokker had just taken off from Bolling field, and had risen 300 feet in the air. Gracefully it began to curve toward the north when suddenly one motor failed and the huge craft shot downward. In a second the tragedy was complete.

The Fokker hit the ground not more than 74 feet from where Lieutenant Cuddihy, ace navy pilot, crashed a few weeks ago. That hole now is marked with two red flags.

Unlike Cuddihy's plane the Fokker was not buried far into the ground. It hit first on the right side, burying the right motor and wheel. The center motor was buried just level with the ground, while the left motor made a two foot hole in the ground and then bounced back.

The rear part of the fuselage and the rear part of the cabin were left intact. The cabin door was not touched. The glass in the door was not broken. Some of the chairs in the cabin were not even scratched.

Dinger and Kuwma were in the cockpit. They were instantly killed. Dinger's watch stopped at 9:35 a. m. The three men riding in the cabin were thrown forward when the plane hit and were instantly killed.

Although the fore part of the plane was badly smashed, there was little difficulty in getting the bodies out.

Within half an hour after the answer, asserts that all the resolutions—including one of award of the contract for the work—upon which the injunction suit is based, "have all been regularly passed and adopted by the city council of Santa Ana, and that all of the acts to be performed by said defendants, and which it is sought by said action to enjoin and restrain, have been performed by the city council of said city of Santa Ana, and no injunction can therefore be granted to prevent the acts complained of in the complaint."

The defendants ask that the action be dismissed and that they have judgment for their costs incurred in connection with injunction suit.

In the demurrer it is declared that the complaint does not state in what particulars proceedings in the various steps taken in connection with the boulevard project have been irregular, and that "nowhere in the complaint does it appear that the plaintiffs, in the event of damage caused by the acts of the defendants would not have a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law."

Finally the demurrer alleges that the complaint is unintelligible and ambiguous."

Women Arrested On Theft Counts Released On Bail

Three women, arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of shoplifting and charged with petty theft, are scheduled to appear in City Recorder J. F. Talbott's court at 10 a. m., December 24, to answer to the charges.

The women, Irene Walters, 30, of 1429 South Stoneman avenue, Alhambra; Helen Black, 27, of 250 East 64th street, Los Angeles, and Lena McMillan, 30, of 401 West 106th street, Los Angeles, were released from the county jail on bail of $25 each soon after their arrests.

Several articles, found in their possession, have not been identified. Officer C. V. Adams made the arrests.

DRIVER COLLAPSES AFTER ACQUITTAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Robert O. Creel, Los Angeles advertising man, was recovering today from collapse which followed his acquittal on charges of manslaughter late Thursday.

A jury in Superior Judge Lyle Jack's court took only 10 minutes to find Creel not guilty of the death of Mrs. Ella Mack Lee, who was struck down by his automobile the night of September 23.

FINKLE SUES HORACE HEAD FOR $100,000

timony habitually is shaped in accordance with any side of a proposition in which he is involved or that he is thoroughly discredited as a witness on engineering matters.

Today an affidavit and notice were filed in connection with the lawsuit, stating that on December 28 at 10 a. m. the deposition of Head in relation to the matter will be taken. The deposition, or testimony from Head, will be taken in room No. 323 of the court house before Birdie Swanwick, court reporter. The affidavit states that the deposition is necessary in order to insure a speedy trial of the case.

Head's article quoted a high official of the Edison company as saying that the Kern river pressure lines built under Finkle's supervision failed, that the company refused to take Finkle's advice to rebuild them in the same manner, that they were rebuilt in accordance with advice from another engineer and that Finkle was dismissed as chief hydraulic engineer.

In his complaint Finkle stated that he was not discharged but that he resigned shortly after the lines were completed. The collapse of the pressure lines was only in a short section and was due to the failure of the Edison company to repair a small leak which was allowed to grow until the section collapsed, according to the complaint. Finkle said he was consulting engineer at this time and was not told of the leak. Finkle continued as consulting engineer for the Edison company for a number of years, after which he resigned of his own volition, he said. Since its installation the pressure line has been continued in constant use and there have been no other difficulties aside from the small leak, he said.

The engineer declared that he never had ignored the merits of any plan proposed by others merely becauses he was paid for so doing. He pointed out that he accepts employment for or against a project only in accordance with his personal beliefs based on facts relating to the plan as understood by him, and not otherwise. He further asserted that he never has testified for any side of a controversy simply because he was paid for so doing.

Finkle declared that he never offered to render services of any kind to the city of Riverside, that he never was informed by that city that his services were not wanted and that after this alleged rfusal he did not offer his services to San Bernardino. In truth his services were solicited by San Bernardino long before the institution of the litigation referred to in the article by Head and before the city of Riverside knew about the litigation, the complaint alleged. It also stated that Finkle assisted in the preparation and conduct of the litigation until its successful conclusion.

The complaint branded the Head article as utterly false, malicious and dafamatory. It declared that the article had injured Finkle's reputation, that he had been deprived of some income which otherwise would have accrued to him, and that the article had been written for the purpose of bringing him into discredit and to hold him up to contempt before the general public. Finkle asked for $50,000 damages and $50,000 punitive damages. His suit was filed through Randall J. Hood, Los Angeles attorney.

state commander of the American Legion in 1920. When he ran for lieutenant governor in 1926 he was elected by the largest vote ever given any candidate for that office in the state's history. He resigned the post in 1928 to become district attorney of Los Angeles.

Governor Young, who is expected to be a candidate to succeed himself although his announcement has not yet been made, said he had no comment on Richardson's statement.

"When Mr. Riley became a candidate I said that that was what the primary was for," said the governor. "It's a free contest and everyone can enter who so desires."

The entrance of Fitts into the campaign gives the race two candidates from Southern California which, it is generally conceded, will be the battleground for the Republican nomination. Whether this will result in a division of strength in that section or definite alignments is a question that is puzzling political observers at the state capitol.

suggested by London as the United States' maximum. Two more of this size would give Japan 70 per cent of the American fleet estimated on the 21 ship basis suggested by this country as its maximum requirement.

Japan is not particularly interested in destroyers. But she rates submarines almost as important as cruisers. Her 78,497 tons of submarines is greater than the British fleet and is only 10,000 tons below the American tonnage. After elimination of obsolescent British and American submersibles, the Japanese submarine fleet is superior to either.

Under these conditions, Japan will go into the London conference possessing more than she asks in submarine tonnage and practically at the desired 10,000 ton cruiser level. Yet, her statesmen predict "positive reduction in naval strength." The United States desire for 21 large cruisers is considered by observers as an asking figure subject to reduction if London will proportionately reduce British demands.

If London accepts lower levels, the United States will do likewise, and Wakatsuki's statement intimates Tokyo's willingness to follow that lead. The impression here is that Japan's program will be subject to compromise when the delegates gather in London January 21.

prohibition bureau as compared with $13,925,000 being spent this year.

There is another phase of the Harris resolution, rooted in the suspicions of some drys concerning the secret activities of the commission. They want to smoke out a report now if they can. The resolution is unlikely to reach a vote before the Christmas recess.

Authorization for the second part of the plan is expected before Christmas. The senate already has adopted a resolution authorizing an inquiry into coordination of enforcement activities and it is expected to be adopted in the house before adjournment, so the inquiry can be started early in January.

Both houses were doing more Christmas shopping than legislating today. The house is working on the agriculture department appropriation bill.

crash, the fuselage had been dragged out by a tractor to a dump on the edge of the field. Soldiers were busy digging out the motor and the wreckage was all cleaned up by 10:30 a. m.

Officials and fellow congressmen were stunned by the accident.

President Hoover learned of it from Secretary of War Hurley, who was on his way to the cabinet meeting when he heard of the crash.

Major General Summerall, chief of staff, said Captain Dinger was one of the best pilots in the army air corps. For that reason he had been selected to fly planes bearing congressmen on special missions.

Little could be learned about McGill, a friend of Kaynor. He left a forwarding address in the name of Mrs. Sullivan Burgess, Scharsdale, N. Y.

Dinger is married and the war department said his wife was at Bolling field. He was born at Mayport, Pa.

Kuwma's next of kin is his father, Theodore Kuwma, of Shelton, Conn.

Representative Kaynor asked Assistant Secretary of War Davison yesterday for a plane to take him to Massachusetts.

Davison assigned his own plane for the trip—the tri-motored Fokker. It is specially fitted with a desk and Davison has flown thousands of miles in it, usually taking his stenographer and using the plane as an aerial office.

waves. Merchants lost heavily as the snow drifts kept patrons at home.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Creeping slowly onward from the west, cold weather today dispelled the fog which shrouded the North Atlantic seaboard for days. Sleet storms to the north and a blizzard to the west had combined with the fog to cause one of the most complete tieups of all kinds of traffic in years.

Trains into New York from the west were as much as 10 hours late due to the blizzard; air mail service was at a standstill for the eighth successive day; wire communications to the north were still precarious as a result of the freakish play of the elements; shipping began to move cautiously here after four days' delay.

Meanwhile the western blizzard's breath was felt throughout the south, snow flurries being reported in New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola, while spring like temperatures preceded the advance of the cold wave in Pennsylvania.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(UP)—France's determination to reject all proposals at the London naval disarmament conference for abolition of the submarine and her insistence that she must be left free to set the limits of her own naval needs was revealed clearly in the first day's debate on the 1930 naval budget.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

Perhaps there is nothing more difficult to endure than the perplexing sense that you are only partially attaining what you have attempted to do. It runs through all of life, but it is particularly trying when you have been striving so hard to be brave during days of sorrow, and seem to be making no progress.

Remind yourself that it is the motive and the effort which count, and not your consciousness of success. Because Christ, through His indomitable spirit triumphed, when He appeared to fail, so shall you, since something of that divine fire is embedded in the depth of your spirit.

POINDEXTER—Mrs. Elizabeth Gale Poindexter, aged 62 years, passed away December 20, after a brief illness. She was the wife of Miles Poindexter, ex-United States Senator from state of Washington and U. S. Ambassador to Peru. She is also survived by a son, Gale A. Poindexter, Lieutenant Commander U. S. Navy, now stationed at San Diego, four sisters, Mrs. Sabina Morton and Mrs. D. C. McClelland of Seattle, Mrs. Isabel Rutter of Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. May Jorgensen of 604 South Bristol street, Santa Ana, with whom she was visiting when taken ill; a brother, T. W. Page, attorney of Seattle. Services will be held from the Winbigler Funeral Home, at a time to be announced upon the arrival of Senator Poindexter from Washington, D. C.

PARHAM—In Los Angeles, Dec. 19, 1929, Mrs. Maude Parham, aged 40 years. Mrs. Parham is survived by a son, John W. Parham and two sisters, Mrs. E. E. Brown of Eagle Rock and Mrs. Audentia Burdick of Los Angeles. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. from Smith and Tuthill's chapel. Interment Fairhaven Cemetery.

Change Of Name Granted to Mrs. Susanna Bryant

Mrs. Susanna Patterson Bryant, 3210 West Adams street, Los Angeles, and owner of a mansion in the Santa Ana canyon, yesterday obtained a court order from Superior Judge McComb in Los Angeles, changing her name to Susanna Bixby Bryant. She is a member of the wealthy Bixby family of Long Beach.

Mrs. Bryant explained that she and her daughter had the same name and that the similarity resulted in confusion. She is a sister of Fred H. Bixby of the Rancho Los Alamitos at Long Beach, son of the original owner of most of the land on which Long Beach is built.

SAYS PEACE TO BE STRESSED AT 1930 MEET

Shriners of Orange county to the number of 125 paid their respects to Leo V. Youngworth, of Los Angeles, imperial potentate, at noon, today, in a complimentary dinner at St. Ann's Inn. Accompanied by a group of prominent Shriners of Los Angeles, the imperial potentate stopped over in Santa Ana for luncheon on his way to San Diego, where the temple will put on a big ceremonial tomorrow night.

The luncheon today was held under the auspices of the Orange County Shrine club and President Charles J. Cogan presided. Otto Haan, Orange county representative of the potentate of Al Malaikah Temple, Los Angeles, occupied a seat at the head table.

A cordial greeting was extended the visiting group by Shriners from all parts of the county. There was no attempt on the part of the committee on arrangements, headed by Carl Mock, to present a big program of entertainment because it was desired to give the imperial potentate time in which to present some of the highlights of the program being arranged for the convention in Toronto, Canada, on June 10, 11 and 12, 1930. Solos by Robert L. Brown and Maurice Phillips constituted the special program.

Has Visited 80 Clubs

Youngworth has visited 80 of the 157 temples in North America and many Shrine clubs during his incumbency of the high position he holds in Shrinedom and he declared here today that everywhere he has gone he has found the greatest enthusiasm for the Toronto meeting because the world-wide movement for peace is to be given special emphasis.

"We are hopeful of making the Toronto gathering one of the world's greatest peace demonstrations," Youngworth told his listeners. "Grand masters of the Masonic lodges of the United States and Canada and governors of the United States and the Canadian provinces are to be invited and urged to attend this important meeting. Many already have signified intentions to be present.

"The more I travel and visit among the 157 Shrine temples in North America, the more I am impressed with the character and personnel of our membership. And the more I talk with men everywhere the greater becomes my enthusiasm for this great movement.

"I take the office of the imperial potentate very seriously and realize that the occupant of that office represents some 600,000 men who are unquestionably outstanding men and Masons.

Sees Great Benefits

"Our next annual session in Toronto should be of great benefit to Masonry, the Shrine and to humanity generally. This meeting can and should be made the occasion to cement more closely the friendship which exists not only between Canadians and Americans, but between the English speaking people. But, above and beyond this we should take advantage of this opportunity for a physical demonstration and definitely align ourselves in favor of the great idea of universal peace and good will among all the nations of the world.

"The very foundation of the philosophy of Masonry, the outstanding idea of Free Masonry, is the brotherhood of man——the true brotherhood of the peoples of all the nations of the world. Masonry is indeed a universal organization and if there is anything that is fundamental in Masonry it is that the people of the world should enjoy peaceful existence and be permitted to enjoy peace and happiness, whatever their color, their race or creed.

"We must all be impressed profoundly by the activities of our government and that of Great Britain, as manifested by the recent meeting of our president and the premier of Great Britain, and by their open statements of intention and desire to arrive at peaceful understandings and to formulate plans and agreements that would forever banish war and create a definite, permanent and universal peace among all nations.

Masonry To Have Part

"Although actual hostilities ceased on Nov. 11, 1918, reparations have only recently been adjusted and the armies of occupation will not return to their native lands until June, 1930; so out of these conditions and developments there arose in my mind a desire to have Masonry participate in some definite and effective way in these activities and by express action demonstrate its approval of this intelligent and sincere effort to secure a definite and universal peace."

BROTHER'S TESTIMONY HOLDS MAN TO TRIAL ON CHARGES OF NON-SUPPORT OF CHILDREN

A man took the witness stand against his brother in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday and, as a result the defendant brother was held to answer to superior court.

It was in the case of the people versus Charles F. Miller, Anaheim taxi driver, charged with non-support of his children. His brother, T. D. Miller, of Santa Ana, took the witness stand and told the court that his brother would not take care of the children.

His testimony was damaging, but he was reluctant because "he is my brother, and I have a feeling for him."

The defendant then was called to the stand and during cross examination suddenly suffered a nervous collapse and toppled from the witness stand to the floor. A physician was called and attended him and after a few minutes he was able to return to the stand.

At the conclusion of the hearing Miller was held to answer to the superior court on bail of $500.

FIVE GET JAIL TERMS AS PART OF PROBATION

Five prisoners, who had entered pleas of guilty to various charges placed against them by the district attorney's office and applied for probation, were given jail sentences for varying terms as conditions of probation, which was granted in every instance by Judge G. K. Scovel today.

The mental stability of one defendant was questioned by the court and a condition of the probation in the case of Schley Sain, charged with grand theft, was that he be examined as to his sanity by the county physician. Sain, it is stated, took a car in Westminster for a trip to Huntington Beach to see his brother "because he got tired walking." The report of the probation authorities stated that Sain had been wandering around the country doing odd jobs for the last two years and that he was crippled from infantile paralysis. Sain is to spend 90 days in the county jail as another condition of the probation.

A term of one year in the county jail was a condition of the probation granted to Cruz Garcia, who previously had pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Garcia was arrested for his deviation from the law on November 11.

Z. L. Bernor and Oliver Hamlin were granted probation for five years, but a condition of the probation was that they serve terms of one year in the county jail. They were charged with the theft of copper cable, valued at $700, from the Pacific Electric company, and had pleaded guilty. Another special condition of their probation was that they remain within the seven southern counties of the state after their release from jail during the remainder of their terms of probation.

The term in the county jail to be served by Richard Shope as a condition of his probation was set by the court at 60 days. Shope had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of arson, filed by the district attorney's office. He was granted probation for two years, to be remanded to the custody of his father at the end of the jail term.

XMAS PROGRAM OF BIBLE CLASS OPEN TO PUBLIC

A Christmas program has been arranged for members and guests of the Men's Community Bible class for the service in the Fox West Coast theater Sunday morning. The meeting has been opened by the class to members of their families and the public.

Christmas music will dominate the program and many features are scheduled that should attract a large attendance. Carols will be sung by a men's chorus of 15 voices, under the direction of E. H. Elsener. Herschel Clayton, former musical director of the class, will be present to sing for the seventh consecutive year "The Holy City." Clayton now lives in Covina. Mrs. Arthur May, soprano, will be another soloist. Duet numbers will be presented by Mrs. E. R. Elsener and O. J. Smith. Instrumental music will be furnished by Paul LeBar, organist, and the class teacher, under the direction of James Ingham.

The Christmas message will be presented by the class teacher, the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church.

BLANEY TO ADDRESS TWO FARM CENTERS

Meetings of the Farm centers in Yorba Linda and West Orange are scheduled for tonight. Blaney, executive secretary of the Orange County Farm bureau, will report at both sessions of the national convention of the Farm Bureau federation, held last week in Chicago.

The Yorba Linda meeting will be a dinner session, commencing at 6:30 in the Women's clubhouse. The West Orange gathering will be held in the West Orange grammar school. Farm Advisor H. E. Wahlberg will be on the program at the Yorba Linda meeting, speaking on "Fertilization."

CITY WILL NOT HAVE TO REPAY HIGHWAY FUNDS

The city of Santa Ana will not have to repay to the county of Orange the $10,000 which the board of supervisors appropriated from the motor vehicle fund toward the cost of the rebuilding of South Main street, two years ago, it was indicated today by receipt by City Attorney Charles D. Swanner, of a telegram advising that the appellate court had sustained the Orange county superior court in its decision, in the case of W. E. Chilson vs. County Auditor W. C. Jerome, that a three-fifths vote of the board was sufficient to authorize the appropriation.

The fund was made available on the affirmative votes of Supervisors Willard Smith, George Jeffrey and S. H. Finley, who was a member at the time. Supervisors William Schumacher and John Mitchell cast negative votes, their opposition votes creating doubt as to the authority of three men to vote money from the motor vehicle fund to a city street project.

In order to determine the point, W. E. Chilson, a property owner on South Main street, filed a friendly suit against County Auditor Jerome, demanding that he issue a warrant for the sum.

Later Charles Harbison, a property owner in Anaheim, filed a complaint of intervention, alleging additional reasons why the county auditor should not issue the warrant.

In the meantime, Jerome, holding that the apportionment had been legally authorized, issued a warrant on the county treasurer for the sum.

When the case came to trial, it was heard by Judge Benjamin F. Warmer, of San Bernardino, brother of Dr. George Warmer, Santa Ana pastor, sitting on the bench. Judge Warmer held the three-to-two vote to be sufficient. An appeal was taken to the appellate court, with the result just announced.

It is not believed that the case will be carried to the state supreme court.

Evangelist Dies In Arizona Home

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20.—The Rev. Harry K. Shields, nationally known as the "Singing Evangelist," died in his home in Winslow, Ariz., this week, from an attack of heart failure. The Rev. Mr. Shields was the brother-in-law of the Rev. J. G. Hurst, pastor of the Christian church of this city. The Rev. and Mrs. Hurst on receiving a telegram announcing the death, left at once for Arizona to attend the funeral.

The Rev. Mr. Shields had conducted evangelistic meetings in this city. For several months before his death he had to give up singing on account of the condition of this heart.

London's first trunk telephone line was opened with Brighton on December 17, 1884.

WESTMINSTER

WINTERSBURG, Dec. 20.—A. C. Bridges of Boulevard Gardens, this week sold his home and one-half of the acre which he owns in the tract, to an Illinois man. Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Bridges moved to Huntington Beach where they are located at 807 Huntington Ave. The new owner has not yet taken possession of the house.

High school closed Wednesday for the holidays and local young people are now carrying out vacation plans.

Mrs. Harper of Boulevard Gardens, who has been confined to bed with influenza, is able to be up.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Turner, former local residents, are expected to arrive here Monday from Tucson, Arizona, to see after local property interests and to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Perle Elliott were hosts at a dinner at their home in honor of Mrs. Elliott's two aunts, Mrs. Jane Burris, and Mrs Annie Richardson, their cousin. George Richardson. Mrs. Elliott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Morse of Huntington Beach, and their son, Victor Elliott, were also present.

Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Burris are sisters of George Morse and it had been many years since the three had met. The visitors are of Mesa, Arizona, and are returning to their home soon. They traveled here by motor.

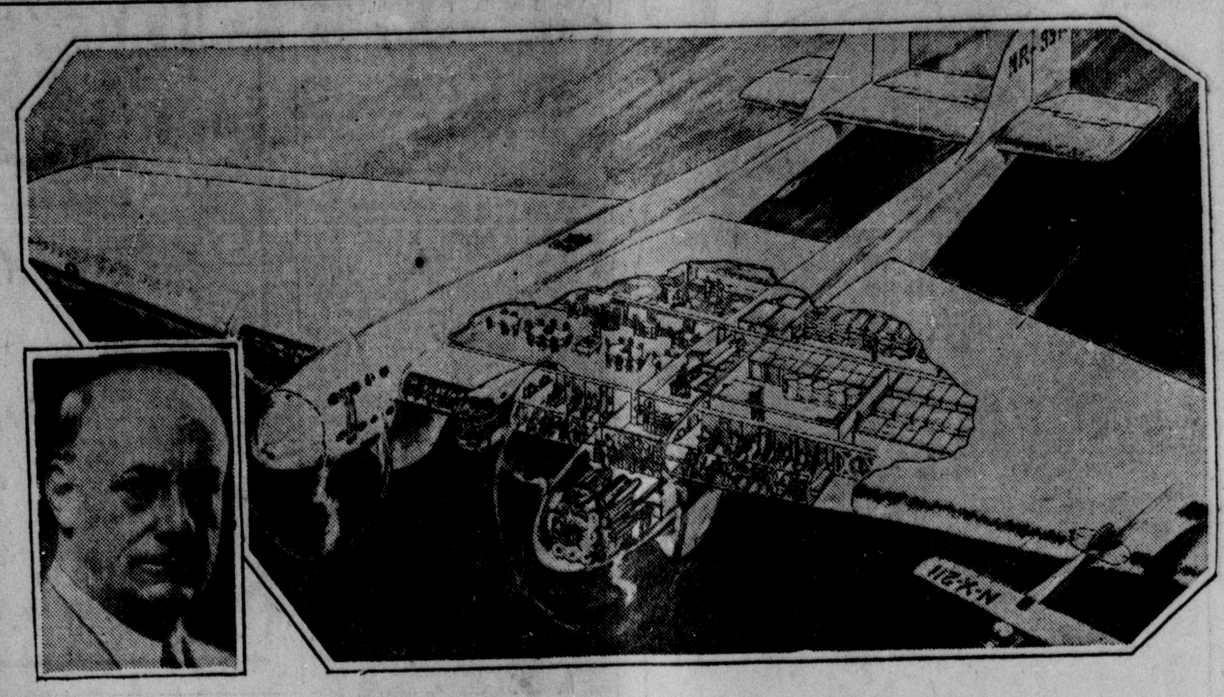
Charles Blaylock of Wilmington was an overnight guest in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blaylock, recently.

Harry Visher, who for several years has been foreman of the oil pumping plant of the Texaco Oil company in Wintersburg has been transferred to the Norwalk field and has moxed with his family to Norwalk. The new foreman has not yet arrived at the plant.

Dr. and Mrs. Little of Santa Ana, brother-in-law and sister of Charles Blaylock were recent visitors in the Blaylock home.

GIANT PLANES PLANNED FOR U. S.

The largest airplanes in the world, as American aeronautical engineers have planned it, is pictured here. Four of these, for regular passenger and freight service, are to be built by the General Development company, of Connecticut, through its vice-president and chief consultant, Dr. William Whitney Christmas, lower left.. He is the inventor of the aileron balancing device now used on every airplane in the world. Early in 1930 construction is to be started on the giant craft, which under Department of Commerce regulations will have a maximum carrying capacity of 206 passengers, and a crew of 17. In the picture, in which part of the interior is exposed, you see how observation compartments with glass fronts are to be placed in the leading edge of the wing, which will be so thick that two main decks will be contained in it. Berths are planned for 160 passengers and there are to be smoking and card rooms, a spacious lounge and a dining salon seating 42 persons. Freight and mail compartments with electric elevators will be placed in the wings. Pilots and radio operators will form the central projecting cabin. Eight motors of 1200 horse-power each will work in units of four on two giant four-bladed propellers. The wing span is to be 262 feet—100 feet greater than the Dornier DO-X seaplane, now the largest in the world.



CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR MODERN YOUTH SHOULD BE DIFFERENT

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Jazzing up the Christmas gift to suit the collegiate or the high school boy or girl is a trick.

But, as usual, there is one way to selve it. That way lies in being consistently and unwaveringly modern. For, in the last analysis, modernism is a youth movement, be it in paintings or cuff button designs. Young folks are sure to like things done in the contemporary manner.

Boys and girls at this age are exceedingly conscious of their surroundings, Their individualism is breaking out like an epidemic. They crave rooms that will express them. Give them some strinkingly lively piece of furniture or furnishing and you will be sure to please.

Wide Choice In Furniture

Modernistic studio daybeds are an excellent choice. Failing the cash for one of these, a modernistic end table to stand at the head of an ordinary studio bed is an excellent choice. These have stepback, skyscraper designs, come in gaudy colors and are tremendously decorative. Modernistic lounging chairs, foot stools, bookcases and desks all are excellent gifts.

If money is a consideration, as it usually turns out to be, a squat modernistic lamp, with a shade of ruddy tone and cheerful design, is a real contribution. Sofa pillows may come in the new six-cylinder design, be in triangles or other unusual geometric shapes, in bright, arresting fabrics, or any number of decorative art objects are good. Many young folks of this age are "cliff-dwellers" in city apartments or have rooms in their college halls. They appreciate electric equipment for cooking "snacks" for colorful peasant pottery for serving same. Lunch cloths and napkins in gaudy design are good, too, and of course a basket of small cans of all kinds of choice edibles would never go amiss.

Lounging Togs Good

Lounging togs for leisure hours are good. Pajamas for both sexes. Smoking outfits and boxes of fancy colored and gold tipped cigarets or a supply of other "smokes" will please those who indulge. Beverage sets, perhaps one of the new kind that assume odd shapes of people, animals, buildings, are a good gift.

This is the age that craves this or that book that happens to be expensive or rare. One such, covered with a jacket of its own, made out of calico, hand-blocked linen or even modernistic paper, is good. For girls, one of those queer, gangling dolls to add that dainty, "little girl" atmosphere, evening dress suits or anyhow the memory books, travel books and diaries. For boys, trick shaking outfits, luggage with some new quirk, canes that have watches, cigaret lighters or something concealed in their handles, fancy evening sets or satin suspenders and garters.

For both boys and girls, things to wear are a good choice but remember this is a very choosy age. Girls like purses that have belts and shoes in their ensembles, evening accessory sets of huge green, red, rose or yellow chiffon hankies, purses and slippers or winter sports togs that are very modern in design and execution. Boys like evening dress suits or anyhow the latest word in dress shirts, ties, cuff links, watches and so on.

For Young Musicians

Radios, ukuleles and other musical instruments usually are most acceptable. For girls or boys who drive their own cars, fancy radiator caps or some extra-extra as inside equipment is good. Seasonal tickets to opera, symphony or other musical treats or lectures are welcome to certain young folks. Fraternity or sorority jewelry almost always pleases. Pets, especially unusual ones, may delight. But one should always consider the difficulty in keeping pets. Fold fish are about all most young folks can bother with.

Though the collegiate and high school age tends to conformity, remember that it is the unusually shaped or colored article that pleases. For, with everyone making this or that a fad, isn't it not only modern but exceedingly human, to want to be different? Buy with this in mind and lean more towards the modern gift than less and you'll be a welcome Santa Claus.

THREE ARRAIGNED ON SUPPORT COUNTS

Three men were arraigned before Judge G. K. Scovel today on informations from the office of District Attorney Z. B. West charging non-support of their children. Two entered pleas of guilty and made application for probation, while the third pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial.

The informations charged that Fortina Parra failed to provide for his three children and Ignacio Rodriguez was delinquent in his duties of support toward his four children. These defendants entered pleas of guilty and applied for probation. The hearings on probation were set by Judge Scobel for December 27.

The jury trial will be for Wilbur Wilson and will take place on January 16. The information charges that he failed to provide for his 4-year-old daughter. A special venire was ordered by the court to provide a jury panel, as there is another jury trial scheduled for the same day.

ACCESSORIES ARE LOVELY

New accessories are feminine and lovely. Below: Reboux makes a beret and scarf set of light blue and brown velvsteen. Below: For formal daytime, a black purse has a white jade and jeweled flower pot and plant decoration. For evening a brocaded bag has a tassel of pearls. The gold yellow evening handkerchief of chiffon has real lace insets in the corners. A black chiffon evening handkerchief from Europe is edged with white and decorated with a coat of arms in lace. The new crystal necklace has rondells of rhinestone.

SANTA ANA MAN AT DEDICATION OF NEW CHURCH

The Rev. O. Takahashi, representative of the Japanese Church Federation of Southern California; H. T. Fothergill, of Coachella; P. A. Robinson, of Santa Ana, and Charles Robinson, of Orange, extended greetings from their Christian churches at the dedication of the new Japanese church parsonage in Coachella last Sunday, was revealed today.

The services of dedication took place in the building itself. Various friends interested in the Japanese movement had sent flowers to grace the new platform. These were arranged in the artistic manner common to the Japanese.

H. Sakai, of Coachella, was chairman and ably conducted the meeting. Mrs. K. Kodama, wife of the pastor, presided at the piano and musical numbers interspersed the program, among them being some songs by the choir of Japanese women and a group of songs by Miss Grace Shibata, in Japanese costume. She sang first in English and then in Japanese.

The program was conducted, for the most part, in Japanese.

Reports from the building committee, the story of the Christian movement among Japanese residents of the valley and the ceremony of dedication, were followed by greetings from R. Otomo, S. Hono and T. Aritoni, representatives of the Society of Friends of Jesus.

Firemen Called To Three Blazes; No Damage Done

Santa Ana's fire department made three runs during the last 24 hours. None of the fires, however, caused any serious damage.

Fire companies Nos. 1 and 4 answered a call to the Adams cigar store, at 412 North Broadway, this morning to extinguish a small blaze which had started in the flooring, probably from a cigaret.

At 12:20 a. m., today, firemen from central station were sent to the 1400 block on North Flower street to put out a fire which had started in a stump at the rear of a new house. There was no damage.

Firemen extinguished a small fire in a trash pile at the place of Jerry Allen, 921 East Seventeenth street, at 12:10 a. m., this morning. Several trees caught fire but there was no damage.

Court Notes

An information charging driving a motor car while intoxicated was filed against T. L. Harris today in superior court. When arraigned before Judge G. K. Scovel, Harris entered a plea of guilty and asked for probation. The hearing was set by the court for January 10. Harris is alleged to have driven his car on East Center street, in Anaheim, on December 11, while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

E. Schostag has filed a suit against M. E. Durfee, et al, asking judgment for $500, interest, attorney's fees and costs, on a note dated May 10, 1928, which he claims is unpaid and past due.

The inventory and appraisement of the estate of Frank Buehring, which was filed today in superior court, showed that the estate was valued at $3655.

The Title Guarantee and Trust company yesterday afternoon filed a suit in superior court to quiet title to 22 lots in Newport Beach. The action was directed against Elizabeth Ballard, et al.

The answer and cross complaint filed today in the suit of Adolphe Callens vs. Gustave Van Der Berghe, et al, denied the claims in the original suit and asked for judgment against Callens for $1680 alleged to be due and unpaid for pigeons he purchased from the defendants. The cross complaint alleged that the Van Der Berghes, relying on information from Callens, who acted as their agent, purchased an orange grove last year at a price of $25,000 which they claim was worth not more than $17,000. They also assert that Callens informed them the crop would make a net return of $5000, whereas it returned net only $950. They ask judgment for $12,050 on the cross complaint.

POLISH HARBOR NOW FACTOR IN BALTIC TRADE

BY MAURITZ A. HALLGREN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—(UP)—In increasing measure the port of Gdingen on the Baltic is finding its name in the shipping reports and in the news columns. The reason is not far to seek. Ten years ago an unambitious fishing village with but 400 inhabitants, Gdingen is today a roaring city of 40,000 souls and destined shortly to become much larger.

Despite its mushroom growth, Gdingen is not a mushroom town. It has been deliberately conceived and is being built in accordance with a very definite plan. It is the creature of Poland's desire for a practical harbor and port through which can be handled the bulk of Poland's foreign trade. Situated on the Baltic coast of Corridor, normally ice-free the year around, and affording a natural and valuable harbor for ships of all kinds, Gdingen appears to fulfill all of Poland's requirements in this respect. It stands but 20 kilometers away from a great rival port, the Free City of Danzig.

Work on this stupendous project was begun in 1920. Three years later the first ship put into the harbor to discharge a cargo. During 1929, it has been estimated, 3,000,000 tons of shipping will pass through the port. The Polish government anticipates a population of 1,00,000 when the town has been completed.

As yet, however, the job is far from done, and in consequence the place presents a curious, jumbled sight. Tall office buildings rear themselves next door to dilapidated fishing shacks; imposing government structures stand alone in the swampy land surrounding the original village; a network of paved, but houseless streets stretch out over the sand and prairie. In the harbor the confusion in much the same. It is only with difficulty that one can distinguish the sailors and the longshoremen from the thousands of building laborers and artisans who are busy there.

By the end of 1929 there will have been completed seven kilometers of wharves, thus terminating the first phase of the harbor construction program. Aside from this part of the project, there has been erected for the government a large postoffice building, a marine school and several smaller buildings. Private interests have put up office buildings, a huge cold storage warehouse, a rice warehouse and two general warehouses, while an Upper Silesian mining company has built an extensive, modern coal dock.

Up until now coal has been the principal article of export passing through Gdingen, this item accounting for 87 per cent of the total business of the port. Exports other than coal have included furniture sent to South America, polished rice to England, and cement and sugar sent to many countries. Imports have included unpolished rice from Rangoon, steel products and paving stones from Sweden, wine from France and machinery from the United States. Most of this shipping has been carried by tramp steamers, but lately four established steamship companies have made Gdingen one of their regular ports of call. The majority of the ships putting in at Gdingen have been Swedish, with vessels flying the German flag in second place.

Annual Session Of Brea Civic Group Set for January 8

BREA, Dec. 20.—The annual meeting of the Brea Chamber of Commerce will be held January 8, it was announced at the meeting held in the Olson and Dyer cafe Wednesday.

An announcement was made by E. H. Peterkin that the girls' league of Brea-Olinda high school is making a campaign for jams, jellies and any canned food, which will be distributed Christmas eve to the poor families of the community. Christmas morning the members will go to the health camp and take food, scrap books, dolls and other toys.

O. A. Andrews, vice principal of Brea-Olinda high school, announced the Christmas pageant to be presented in the evening in the school auditorium.

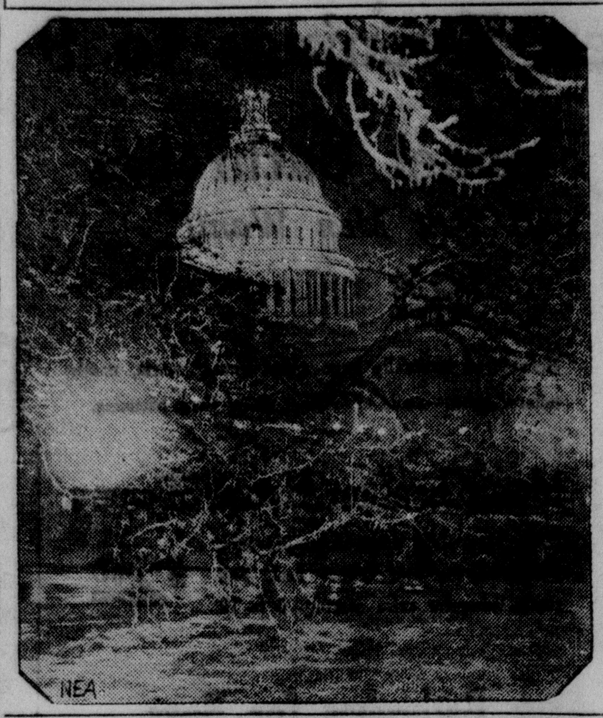
The president called on W. D. Shaffer for a few remarks regarding his machine shop. Mr. Shaffer responded by asking the members to come with him on a sight-seeing trip of his plant.

OVERSEAS ADDRESS

When the American Gas association held its annual convention at Atlantic City, a convention address was delivered in England and was heard by the 6000 persons attending the convention through the transatlantic telephone service. This is the first instance of the transatlantic telephone being used to transmit an address from England during a public utility convention.

CAPITOL WINTER COMES

King Winter laid his icy paw on the nation's capitol, and here you see a striking night view of the famous dome, framed between the frozen branches of trees when sleet and drizzling rain formed a sheet of ice over Washington. Two representatives, approaching the capitol building for the opening of the Seventy-first Congress, slipped and fell and were painfully injured.



NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Richard Halliburton has already made himself hundreds of admirers. These will be glad to have the opportunity of reading his new book, "New Worlds to Conquer."

Following the trails of the early Spanish discoverers, he tells of his adventures in the glamorous lands to the South. San Salvador, the island where Columbus first landed, he rediscovered by airplane. The trail of Cortez's conquest of Mexico he followed on foot, climbing twice, to Popocatepetl's lofty crater.

In Yucatan, land of the ancient Mayas, he found the famous Well of Death where human sacrifices were thrown to the Rain God, and from which a hundred skeletons of men and girls have been dredged. To challenge the grim tradition of the pit he lived from the sacrificial altar into the dark waters seventy feet below. And then to satisfy the doubters he did it again.

Bound for Nicaragua, a lucky chance landed him on the magic island of Cozumel, where the corals grow in exotic gardens beneath a turquoise sea, that is a swimmer's dream of paradise.

Made 50-Mile Swim

His 50-mile Panama Canal swim was an adventure that attracted wide newspaper notice. For the first time in the history of the Canal the great locks were opened to lift and lower a single individual.

He found and climbed the peak in Darien from which Balboa first stared at the Pacific. In Peru, the land of the Incas, he searched out the hidden mountain city of Manchu Picchu to which the hundred sacred Sun Virgins escaped from Pizarro and his men. Crossing the Andes to Argentina and Brazil, he and a most engaging monkey earned their living through the heart of South America with a hurdy-gurdy.

Then he flew to French Guiana to see for himself the horrors of Devil's Island prison colony. There he came to know many of the tragic castaways, heard their stories, and putting on the prison uniform lived as they lived.

Finally he went to Robinson Crusoe's island, found himself a cave, a suit of goat's skin, a beard, a cat, a parrot, and a man Toosday, and reenacted Crusoe's story.

Here, indeed, is a knapsack of the true adventurer's gold—dreams brought to reality by the alchemy of courage and daring. Mr. Halliburton writes with poetic appreciation, a strong feeling for the dramatic, and a sense of humor that never fails. The qualities that have made his earlier books number their readers by the hundreds of thousands are all here plus a more mature understanding of the life he sees and the adventures that come his way.

"Philosophic Way of Life"

In "The Philosophic Way of Life," by T. V. Smith, five philosophers go in quest of a sixth and find him in you. At the mouth of this web, ponder a moment before you plunge. Do you dare to enter? If you feel the need of a little philosophy to ease your predicament by helping you decide whether you should go in for a little philosophy or not, read this book.

In it, you will be praised for your self-reliance; you will be honored as the source of all virtue; you will be flattered as a final judge. Consider how much of this you can stand and still be yourself. If you err in this crucial self-knowledge, you may come out in the end such a person as you now dislike, with only this consolation: that that person as you now dislike, with only this consolation; that that person as you now dislike, the person you now are. Very apparently the reading or not reading of this book is a serious matter, not to be lightly decided.

Consider the experiences of others. A few hundred persons heard five lectures on "Philosophy as a Way of Life" at the Chicago Art Institute in the spring of 1929. No person of them is the same today; some came to pray and went away to scoff; some came to scoff and went away to pray; some came sober and went away smiling; some came smiling and went away sober; some came wise and went away feeling foolish; some came foolish and went away feeling wise; many bore in silence whatever they bore; and some helped those lectures to become this book. None of them, however, is the same. Nor will you be the same tomorrow.

If, being already for some time guilty of philosophizing, you now elect to proceed, you have had your warning and the five philosophers who sought a sixth may now divide you as their reward.

There is no doubt that "Salt Water Taffy" by Corey Ford, is without equal among modern deep-sea adventure books. It represents the sine qua non, the ne plus ultra (possibly the non compos mentis) in salt water autobiographies. It is amazing, incredible, fabulous—and every word is as true as the next.

"In fact, this yarn," says Dr. Walter E. Traplock, F. R. S. S. E. U., "is written by the daughter of [illegible] old friend Ezra Triplett; and having known Ezra when he was in command of my Yawe 'The Kawa,' I can readily predict the extent of its authenticity. It's hearty and briny and gusty. It's just full of the keen reality of vital facts—and then some."

Adventure After Adventure

Little June Triplett was not more than three hours old when she first reported aboard the schooner of her father Captain Ezra Triplett. At first she was content just to lie about her father's boat; but as she grew older she began to meet adventure after adventure in the South Seas.

When June was 3 months old she learned to spit a figure eight in the wind. She was 7 years old when she cut open a female shark and found a copy of "What Every Girl Should Know" inside. At an early age she learned to throw the bulwarks. Single-handed she captured a baby water-spout named Gladys and kept it for a pet. She was the first white woman to witness the Dance of the Virgins, in company with old Sedlitz, a beach-combing salt who hailed from Epsom. At last when her father's boat finally caught fire, June plunged overboard and swam back to New York, emerging in the nick of time on the Ile de France, to be welcomed by enthusiastic reporters.

In this unparalleled sea story we have a tale so breath-taking that it might pass for fiction, were it not for the equally breath-taking photographs which accompany it. The camera cannot lie.

COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Dec. 20—William Paterson, local realtor, has moved his family into an apartment of the newly constructed Paterson building, which was recently finished for him on Newport boulevard at Broadway.

The manager of the Alpha Beta store here, Grant Illingsworth was in Riverside yesterday on business for the company.

A crew of the Orange county road department has finished a strip of pavement through the business section of town between Eighteenth street and Broadway.

Mrs. Minnie Reid, who has charge of the Americanization work for Costa Mesa, and Mrs. Florence L. Summers, of Newport Beach, who is similarly employed there, were in Los Angeles in attendance at a teachers' meeting being held in the city.

Leslie Pickering, of Davidson City, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Siecks, was visiting with them in their home on Bay street yesterday.

E. E. Murphy and mother, of Huntington Beach, who have property interests here, were in town yesterday attending to matters of business and calling on Costa Mesa friends.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reynolds residing on Newport road at Bay street, have with them at present their daughter Mrs. Jack Colwell, and children, of San Diego, who will spend the Christmas season here. Mr. Colwell will accompany his family here soon.

The boys of the newly organized Community church basketball team played their first game of the season at the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, going up against the First Christian church squad. The boys suffered defeat at the hands of their Santa Ana neighbors, but Coach Merle Ewell states that he was well pleased at the way the boys performed considering the length of time that they have been in training. Costa Mesa boys in the line up were Coach Ewell, Chisholm Brown, Jean Willcutt, Laurence Wright, Harold Long, Ber Smith, Willard Conwell, Lee Ba ing, Clyde Hunter, Robert Full and John Willcutt. John Willcu was at center, Hunter and Bel ing were guards, and Ewell a Fuller played forward when t game started.

BABES IN TOYLAND' PHILCO'S OFFERING

The first scene of Act I of Babes In Toyland," a musical extravaganza in two acts by Victor erbert, with book and lyrics by len MacDonough, will be preented by Jessica Dragonette, soano; Robert Simmons, tenor, and supporting cast when Philco's heater Memories are broadcast rough the NBC coast-to-coast stem, including KFI between 6:30 d 7 tonight.

Familiar personages of the nursy rhymes of childhood are the aracters of the operetta. The st scene is laid at a country fete Contrary Mary's garden, near the idow Piper's home.

Uncle Barnaby gives a dance to nounce his engagement to Conary Mary, the sweetheart of Alan. om-Tom wishes to marry Barnby's niece, Jane. Barnaby declares th Alan and Jane are at the botm of the sea. He proposes to ary but is promptly refused. Just two ruffians testify that Alan d Jane are dead and claim their wards Alan returns. Mary greets m coldly and he declares he will away and become a monk.

IRON MAN OF HOCKEY

Starting his ice career in 1905 a Canadian amateur league, ck Walker, Seattle hockey play, has been in the game 25 years.

Buster and Tige Take Air Tonight Over CBS and KHJ

The Brown-Bilt Footlites, broadcast from KHJ over the Pacific coast and Mountain units of the CBS tonight from 8 to 8:30, take the air audience to other theaters of the imagination. The program features two skits, Buster Brown and Tige in more misadventures, and a black-face act. A Russian quintet, which undoubtedly is composed of members of the Right Royal Russian family who escaped from the mob by crawling on hands and knees from Petrograd to Sebastapool—will make its debut on this program. Eleanor Rennie, KHJ staff contralto, has "Two Songs of the Bayou" up her sleeve; Bob, Ed and Chappie will recall "Some of These Days," while Raymond Paige and the Sierra Symphonists will amuze with Romberg's "Roy Symphony," "Old Zip Coon," "Alabamy Snow," etc.

EDISON CHORUS TO PRESENT PROGRAM

The fifth annual Christmas radio program of the Southern California Edison company chorus of 60 voices will be broadcast over KFI between 8 and 8:30 tonight. The program will include many of the old favorite carols of Christmas time and a number by Mrs. Harry Ross, soloist. Hugo Kirchhofer will direct the chorus.

The singers of the Edison company chorus are all employes of the general office organization in Los Angeles. Miss Ann Ortman, of the company's investment department, is president of the chorus.

MARY AND BOB AT HOME FOR HOLIDAYS

Mary and Bob, the young True Story hour travellers, arrive at the home of Mary's mother, near New York, tonight. Their arrival will be broadcast during the True Story hour, which goes on the air over WABC and the coast-to-coast stations of the Columbia system, including KHJ, at 9 o'clock.

Old ties and old friendships are renewed as Mary and Bob join in the singing of Christmas hyms.

Radio fans will share a thrilling story with Mary and Bob during the evening as Mrs. Farley, a member of the church in the little town, reads Mary a letter that she has received from an unhappy woman, a poor storm-tossed soul who felt there was no solution for her or her children in life with a husband who no longer seemed to care for them.

This, too, was the problem Mrs. Farley faced many years ago and which she now tells to Mary, feeling that it will bring hope to many other women sharing her sorrowful plight.

'SAFETY' TOPIC AT OCEANVIEW SESSION

OCEANVIEW, Dec. 20.—The regular meeting of the Oceanview school Parent-Teacher association was held Wednesday afternoon in the kindergarten room, with a large number of members and visitors present. Mrs. Murray, president of the organization, presided over the meeting. Christmas carols were sung. Mrs. Cadias announced that the study circle meetings will be resumed January 14. Mrs. J. W. McIntosh, safety chairman, gave a talk on "Safety."

The kindergarten department won the prize offered the class for the largest attendance of mothers during the first three months. Mrs. Oldfield gave an interesting talk on Christmas, telling of childhood memories of the holiday as observed in her native country, Switzerland.

A round table discussion was held while Mrs. John Holt sang, "Star of the East," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. DeLaverne.

Mrs. Clinton Brush, presented each of the teachers of the school with a Christmas gift.

STEIN'S
HEADQUARTERS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Written By HARRY D. RILEY, Studebaker Dealer

That's the thought I wish to impress you with. A real honest-to-goodness HEADQUARTERS for Christmas Gifts, and I don't mean maybe.

When (Mr.) Ivie Stein, (I don't know why that big he looking man puts the "Mr." in parenthesis, especially after one "took a look") but anyway, after he complimented (or kidded) me on my ad writing ability, I paid him a visit, and really, I was surprised. Never dreamed such a variety of merchandise was collected under one roof to select from. Things appropriate for every one from the papa and the mama to, well, the only thing I couldn't find was nipples for the baby, and he courteously volunteered to get those for me.

I saw fountain pens, for the papa, that were beauts, and pencils (with extra leads); and if he is a professional man, Doctor, Lawyer, Dentist, as such they are usually good card "sharks," there were cards, and little round chips in cases, and too, some little "diamond" studded square blocks, Ivie said "you roll 'em," I don't see how they could roll, when they're square, anyhow they're called dice, Ivie said.—there were chair cushions, desk lamps, and one of the most useful gifts to me has been a scissor and envelope opener set, hardly a day goes by that I do not use it several times; then too a small leather-covered pocket memo book is next to most useful and it's wonderful to keep other girls' addresses in—?? Stationery (to write home for money on) and many other suitable gifts, such as

Fountain Pens Bill Folds
Eversharp Pencils Brief Cases
Pen Desk Sets Keytainers

For the Mama, Oh here you'll find some wonderful things, everything but a marcel—a new kodak is about the best I know of, there isn't anything that gives us a bigger kick than to get out the photograph albums and look at Uncle Mike and Aunt Bridget and little Ikey and the rest—

Gift Stationery Photograph Albums
Bibles Leather Purses

For the girls, well, some folks think all girls are chickens, but they're not, even though their dads are henpecked, well, there's just so darned many things, here for instance, etc.—

Bridge Sets Silver and Bronze Sets
Portable Typewriters Purses

Now, for the boys, there's nothing that will tickle a boy's palate like

Games Mechanical Toys
Books Small Kodaks

Last, but not least, the little tot's most appropriate gifts—

Children's Gifts and Games
Children's Books

I have made a few suggestions here, my friends, but the best way to do, is to COME DOWN, "HEN AROUND" the store and I'll guarantee you'll be able to satisfy every wish.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, Dec. 20.—Dr. and Mrs. Charvet, of San Bernardino, were Sunday visitors in the home of Mrs. Charvet's sister, Mrs. Cora Steck.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCormick and family were Sunday visitors in Belleflower, where they were guests of Mr. McCormick's mother, Mrs. Kate McCormick.

Mrs. Thelma Hollenbeck, sister of Mrs. W. P. Treece, and Harry Shade, of Los Angeles, were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mrs. Treece.

W. P. Treece returned Monday with a crew of men from Hesperia, where he has completed a contract in rig building. Mr. Treece is now on a contract for the Rex Oil company in the Huntington Beach field.

Mrs. O. Jensen, of Boulevard Gardens tract, secured a lovely embroidered bed spread at the Mooseheart bazaar held Saturday at Huntington Beach.

An artistic roofed drive has just been completed at the Worthy super-service station at the Oceanview corner by the owner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Porter entertained as their house guests over Sunday night and Monday, Mrs. Porter's niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Will Sanger, of Big Pine.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters and family are now cozily settled in the home which they recently purchased of H. H. Hathaway.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Finlayson were Sunday visitors in Long Beach and Compton.

The increased attendance at the Wintersburg Methodist Sunday school continues, 161 pupils again being enrolled for the second time last Sunday.

Precious Remedy For Rheumatic Pains

Recently Improved and Druggists Praise It

Acute Inflammation, Swelling, Pain and Distress Speedily Surrender.

When you are tortured with rheumatic agony you want to get rid of it as soon as possible.

You want to be at work again because you want to bring home the weekly pay envelope so necessary to the comfort of your family.

You want to drive all this suffering out of the system—and keep it out.

Broad minded pharmacists will advise Allenru because they know of the countless number of people it has helped.

They know it is a real remedy because of their training and because the makers of Allenru have so much faith in it that they authorize druggists everywhere to dispense it with the distinct understanding that one big bottle must do what the buyer expects it to do or money back.—Adv.

Stubborn motors that say "No" when they're cold

. . start quickly, purr smoothly on "DRY" gas

SOME cold morning — when you are in a hurry — you'll discover what's the matter. "Grind, whine, growl," goes the laboring starter. "Gurgle, sigh, wheeze," goes the flooded carburetor.

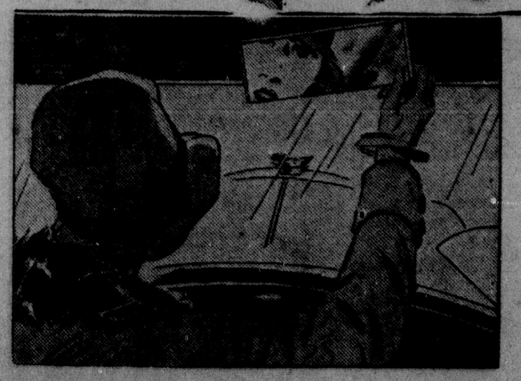
Suddenly you'll realize that "wet" gasoline, full of heavy kerosene-like fractions, is causing your starting troubles. Not enough can vaporize to catch from the spark in a cold motor!

Some refiners add "wild" light fractions to make "winter gasoline." That doesn't correct the trouble. Your motor will sputter and miss for blocks after it starts. Such gasoline is still "wet."

Worst of all is the oil dilution which "wet" gasolines cause. The gasoline that can't burn pours down cylinder walls, washing away the oil film, ruining the crankcase oil.

Shell 400, the "dry" gas, has the heavy "wet" parts removed in refining. All of it can vaporize. Half choke is enough to make it start quickly on the coldest morning. It runs smoothly without any choke almost as soon as the motor starts. And because it burns cleanly, you avoid oil thinning.

Fill with Shell 400 the next time your tank is almost empty. Give this really quick starting "dry" gas a chance to cure your stubborn motor.



BLOW YOUR BREATH ON A COLD MIRROR

. . . that's what happens to "wet" gasoline in a cold motor—it condenses in droplets on the cylinder walls. "Dry" gas, on the other hand, stays vaporized better and therefore burns more cleanly

"Why Prohibition So Succeeding," for High School Oratorical Contestants and Others

The material printed below comprises the fifteenth publication of material intended for the use of the high school students in helping them to prepare their orations for the forthcoming oratorical contests on the subject, "The Citizens' Obligation of the Eighteenth Amendment," which culminate in the finals in Santa Ana on Feb. 28.

Each high school has been furnished some material for the use of its students. There are some books and pamphlets in the office of The Register which can be used by the students here at any time they desire to come in. An hour will be set apart for help in the way of counsel by Register representatives for any high school students who desire additional information.

The next installment of this material will be published next Monday night. It might be well not only for the students but for all people who desire to keep informed on this matter to preserve these papers or the clippings.

THE ADVANCE OF PROHIBITION

Cumulative experience since the Prohibition Act was written into the fundamental law of the land as the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, has proved that the tremendous benefits to the nation, to the community, and to the individual are today increasing in all expected and many unexpected ways.

A nation-wide survey of the effects in their economic, social, and moral aspects which have followed the operation of national prohibition yields constantly growing evidence of improving conditions in business, in politics, in family life, with labor, with employer, and with the country as a whole. Savings bank investors have more than doubled in number since 1919; the saloon is no longer a political power in the community; more homes are being built; more employees are saving money and using it to economic advantage; real estate values are helped; constructive business is supplanting the destructive saloon, and the result of the entire process is the enhancement of national prosperity and happiness. This but partially tabulates the findings throughout the United States.

In chronicling almost daily the mounting advantages which have come with prohibition. One of the leading eastern newspapers has interviewed heads of organizations representing fully 14,000,000 Americans, compassing all section of the United States. The results of these extensive inquiries are significant and encouraging. The replies convincingly refute the propaganda of the liquor interests that the dry sentiment is waning or is about to collapse, and show that in reality lar appreciation of its benefits were lar appreciation of its benefits were never closer to the people than right now. The interviews also show that the influential voting citizen, who represents the best element in the American public, believes that prohibition is an important step in the right direction, and is determined not to risk losing its benefits by allowing adulterated or modified prohibition to be put over by any subterfuge of the organized wets.

What Herbert Hoover Says

Herbert Hoover, our President, formerly secretary of commerce, who is admittedly in a position of vantage to estimate accurately the economic value of prohibition, finds that the operation of the Volstead Act has already been preeminently successful. He said recently:

"There can be no doubt of the economic benefits of prohibition. I think that increased temperance over the land is responsible for the enormously increased efficiency in production, which statistics gathered by the Department of Commerce show to have followed the passage of the law.

Mr. Hoover pointed out that higher productivity, better movement of commodities, full employment, higher wages, greatly increased savings, and large additions to home building have marked all of the prohibition years.

Another Expert's View

Dr. Thomas Nixon Carver, nationally known economist, and professor at Harvard University, declares that national prohibition gives the people of the United States untold economic advantage over rival countries. He characterizes the use of intoxicating drink by any nation as a tremendous waste and warns that no land today can maintain its position in the progress of competing nations and be held back by the drag of intemperance. In a study which he has completed for the Encyclopedia Brittanica, he says in part:

"So long as all the rival nations are wasting resources and manpower in drink there may be no differential advantage in favor of any one or against any of the others; but when one nation, such as the United States, makes a definite advance in this form of economy, unless it indulges in some folly that will neutralize the advantage thus gained, there is no reason to doubt it will gain on all others, year by year, decade by decade, and century by century, and eventually dominate the civilization of the world. They who refuse to take this great step forward in the economy of human resources, whether they understand it or not, are definitely choosing to occupy a secondary position in the civilized world."

The Violator Is the Failure, Not Prohibition, Says Henry Ford

The words of Henry Ford, in whose factories drinking of intoxicants in any form brings peremptory dismissal, carry increasing conviction of the success of the Eighteenth Amendment. The following is from "Mr. Ford's Page" in the Dearborn Independent:—

"The fact that a law is violated does not mean that that law is bad. Burglars consider that laws against house-breaking should never have been framed, gunmen are of the opinion that the statute which makes it an offense for them to take the lives of their fellow men is all wrong, and thugs in general are quite certain that their liberties are unnecessarily curtailed by legislation of any kind. Yet no one would assert that the burglar, the gunmen, and the thug are right....

After its five years of trial, prohibition is not a failure. It is the people who have neglected to correspond with it who are the failures. If it took Christianity hundreds of years to obtain a footing, why should anyone consider five years sufficient for a tryout of the greatest reform since the introduction of Christianity itself? The good that has already come from it infinitely outweighs the evils, and the evils that are do not arise from prohibition but the failure to practice it.

Foreigner's Estimate of Prohibition

William Paxton, Scottish writer and Fellow of the Royal Geographical society, concludes his recently published book, "The Truth About Prohibition," with the following unqualified endorsement:

"I believe that prohibition in the United States, in spite of the lawbreakers, and the wealthy and unscrupulous people who encourage law-breaking, is one of the most beneficial measures in the history of government; and I am confident that, with passing years and the rearing of a race that has never seen a saloon, America will give a lead to the whole world in solving one of the most difficult problems of modern times."

Millions of Dollars Saved Yearly

Among the many accomplishments which the report of the subcommittee on the alcoholic liquor traffic of the House of Representatives credits to prohibition is the fact that it "had enabled charitable organizations to take $74,000,000 per year from funds formerly used to support cases of drink-caused poverty, and use this money in constructive welfare work." The report also declares that "Labor is becoming a capitalist," and explains that "this is not alone through the many great labor banks which are today playing a prominent part in financing industry, but also through individual purchases of corporation stock by employes, many of whom under the license system had no marginal funds to invest in anything." Likewise does the House committee find that "the increase in the number of contracts for residential buildings has been record-breaking since the Eighteenth amendment went into effect," and that "the higher standards of living developed since prohibition have favorably affected both manufacture and distribution."

Signs of the Times

The 1925 International convention of the World Woman's Christian Temperance union, representing 750,000 women in 51 different countries, held in Edinburgh, stands as a prophetic indication of the cumulative sentiment in favor of prohibition in all nations. The reports from the 51 countries comprised the most optimistic signs of a definite trend toward dry legislation. Resolutions adopted at the close of the convention based a forward-looking program on the ground that world democracy, world peace, world purity, and world patriotism demand the world-wide extinction of the liquor traffic. Of the success of prohibition in the United States, Miss Anna Adams Gordon, president of the world organization and leader of the American delegation, said in part:

"Prohibition has strengthened the moral, physical, financial and spiritual fiber of our national life. Drinking has been reduced between 70 and 80 per cent. For the last three or four years the New York City Salvation Army has had to give up its annual "Boozers" day because there were not enough drunks on the street to make the gathering a success.

"Since the enactment of the Eighteenth amendment arrests for drunkenness have been reduced more than one-half. Alcoholic insanity has been reduced 66 per cent annually. Inmates of county jails have been lessened 200,000 per year. Mortality rates have been lowered 1,000,000 over a period of three years. Homes are happier and children are healthier; streets are safer for the boys and girls; thousands of children who once would have supported drinking are now high school and college students."

Logan School

Logan school is the only one of all the schools in Santa Ana that is working now. We had to wait for the new building to be finished and started a week late, so that is why we are in school now. We are having good attendance even if it is hard to give up our vacation. There were only three pupils absent in the whole sshool today.

—LORENZO MARTEL.

Mrs. Campbell has been teaching us Nature study and English. In Nature study we have been learning about birds. The Frances Willard girls gave us a program and very good presents. I think they were very kind to us, I am glad that Mrs. Bertha Palmer has come to teach us for a few days. We are having a short vacation on account of the new building not being done for the opening of shcool.

—JOHN FLORES.

In Miss Lamb's room we are making tiles for the hot dishes. These will be Christmas presents for our mothers. On Tuesday the Girls' club of Frances Willard gave us a party and some presents. They were so nice to us, we wish to have them come again. Mrs. Palmer is in our school because we have to make up the 5 days we lost at the beginning. Mrs. Campbell is on her vacation. The night class at Logan school had a party December 18th.

—YNEZ GONZALEZ.

The girls of Frances Willard came Tuesday to bring us gifts. Three of the girls sang "Silent Night" and "Deck the Halls with Holly." They sang the prettiest of anyone I ever heard. I got for Christmas a very pretty gift. I like it very much.

—YGNASIA ESQUIVEL.

In Miss Lamb's room we are making tiles. Each tile costs four cents. Our school will be in session five days during the vacation because our building was not finished in time to open with the other schools.

—CANDELARIO ARREOLA.

We read library books in Miss Good's room every Friday. We enjoy them very much.

—JOAQUINA LAZANO.

Teacher Returns

Miss Black is back in school again. She was ill for a week. She is our physical education teacher. The Logan boys' team were going to have a game with the John C. Freemont team but didn't because Miss Black was ill.

—ISABEL FLORES.

Salestino Valencio, a pupil of the Low 7th grade of The Frances Willard school visited our class today. He was in our school last year. He came to see our new building, his friends and teachers. We were glad to have him visit us.

—JENNIE REYES.

The Frances Willard girls gave us a party Tuesday. Some of the girls sang Christmas songs which we enjoyed. Their Christmas party always brings joy to the girls and boys of Logan school. We are going to have our school party Friday. A happy merry Christmas to all.

—ROBERT OVIEDO.

Mrs. Harter had a party for the night school class and their friends Dec. 13. About 100 pupils came to the party. She had candy and nuts for them and the school was decorated for the party.

—MANUEL ESTRADA.

TUSTIN

TUSTIN, Dec. 20.—A guest in the R. J. Carney home on East Seventeenth street this week is E. T. Carney of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Carney expects to remain until the middle of January.

The regular meeting of the Isaac Walton league has been postponed.

Initiation of new members featured the regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters in the Pythian hall last night. Following a short business meeting, Mr. and Mrs. George Firtch, Mr. and Mrs. George Young, and Miss Bonnie Kiser were initiated. The meeting was in charge of past chiefs, who served refreshments of hot tamales and pumpkin pie with whipped cream.

About 50 were present. The installation ceremonies will probably be January 2.

Mrs. N. L. Edson, who has been packin fruit at Paloma for the past few weeks, is expected home tomorrow.

Hard-Boiled Santa

The Story of a Cowhand Who Had One Chance To Be Kind . . . And Took It

By RUTH TUTHILL

Illustrations By GEORGE CLARK

When the boy Ralph rode . . . Jensen felt each buck-jump as though he'd been sitting on the horse himself.

JENSEN suspected from the first that the boy had run away from something. Something that might catch up to him any day and hale him back. Jensen didn't ask him any questions. But he watched.

Jensen was top cowhand on the Randolph ranch. He had a reputation for hard-boiledness. He was proud of it and lived up to it. The boy Ralph had drifted in one cold evening, a few weeks before Christmas, and had asked to be taken on.

Questioned if he could ride, he said: "A little." Said it with a little slight grin. Jensen, watching even from the first, thought he could probably sit a horse better than some and took him on.

"How old are you, Buddy?" asked Jensen.

"Nineteen."

"Raised around here?"

"Nope. North. Panhandle-way."

"Come from that a-way myse'f," said Jensen. "Ain't been back for most 20 years."

The boy said nothing. He was a fair-haired boy with bright blue eyes. And he had, of course, splendid shoulders and a slim, hipless shape, being a cowboy.

"That new hand sure can ride," they said in the bunk house a day or so later. They'd picked on him for the bad horses and he'd sat them all.

Jensen had watched each ride. He'd seen green hands tried out before now and hadn't cared a damn whether they stuck or not. He'd laughed when they were thrown. But when the boy Ralph rode he'd felt each buckjump as though he'd been sitting the horse himself. After the ride on "Tornado" the boy had been white and faint and Jensen had been the first to bring him a whisky flash, though he had never done anything like this before in his life. You rode and you took your medicine.

"You sure are kind," said the boy as he wiped his mouth with the back of his hand. "Kind like Santa Claus!"

KIND! To Jensen, the scowling, hard-boiled one! Jensen wasn't sure he liked the idea of being thought "kind."

Nights they played poker. The boy had a way of winning. Even Jensen lost to him. And Jensen wasn't accustomed to leave a poker game poorer than when he went in.

"Say, Buddy," he remarked, after having been cleaned out of 50 bucks, "you must be gettin' quite a pile saved up."

"Aimin' to," said the boy Ralph. "I expect to be needin' it."

A cowboy saving money!

They were out after a bunch of cattle, rounding them up and getting them in for the branding. Jensen hadn't gone with the outfit. Something had gone wrong with the windmills. He had to see about the repairs.

He was alone in the ranch house. The bunks with their rough blankets were empty. There was one under the window that seemed to Jensen emptier than the rest. It was Ralph's. He remembered how the boy's fair, wind-burned face looked mornings with the blond hair rumpled and the vividly blue eyes blinking with sleep. Once he'd raised himself on his elbow in the night and had looked across at Ralph's bunk. The moon was round and high and in the light of it the boy's face was pale and still. Jensen had lain that way a long time, looking. There were snores and restlessness and mutterings all round him, but the boy slept calmly and quietly.

He looked like a girl sleeping there, Jensen thought. His mouth was soft and tender like a girl's. Jensen hadn't noticed before how curved it was. And suddenly, at some memory, Hard-boiled Jensen turned on his stomach in his bunk and hid his face on his arms. Next morning he was ashamed of himself. Hearing Ralph swearing profusely and more than holding his own among the other cowboys with a choice collection of profanity, he tried to forget that he'd been such a boob in the night. Why, the boy was pretty nearly as hard-boiled as he was himself. And he was only 19.

JENSEN, himself, had been rather soft at 19, he remembered. Too soft to face trial for the money he hadn't stolen but which he couldn't prove he hadn't. That's why he had called himself Jensen and had run away to Mexico. Mexico had taken all the softness out of him. After 15 years he had come back. It was a risk, but Texas called him. So he came back as Jensen, the hard-boiled.

He found out about Molly a long time before. She'd married. A Panhandle man he'd met in Mexico City had told him. Well, that was all right, too. He'd wanted her to think he was dead. Besides, he'd done things in Mexico that separated them worse than dying. No one had known they were married anyway, boy and girl folly, kept secret until they could live openly together. A few stolen meetings, that was all there had been to their marriage. Dreams now. Almost forgotten.

Then the money had been missed. Jensen had carried the letter in which it had been sent from the postoffice to the ranch owner for whom he'd been working. It was a clear case against him. Even Jensen himself couldn't think of anyone who would have had a chance at it. But still, if he hadn't been so soft, if he hadn't quit, if he'd had the guts to stand trial, perhaps the truth would have come out. Oh, well!

It wasn't until just before turning-in time that Jensen had a chance of a word with the boy alone. . . . He found him under the windmill, where Ralph went to wash up.

More likely he would have rotted in jail for it. He was glad he'd done as he did. As for Molly, he hadn't hurt her any.

Life had been bitter in spots but he'd gotten a kick out of it. More than he would have got out of being married to Molly he reckoned. Still he remembered her as she was at 17, blond and blue-eyed and tender-lipped. It was that that had got him in the night. Ralph's mouth in the moonlight had somehow reminded him of Molly's. Looking at Ralph's empty bunk now it came back to him.

SOUNDS of horses outside. Men's voices. Jensen went to the door. Three riders out there seen in the dim light that came through the ranch house doorway, the sheriff and two revenue officers.

"We're lookin' for Tom Runyon," said the sheriff. "He here?"

Jensen started. He hadn't heard his name spoken in a long, long time. Had they found out about him? After 20 years, was he going to jail?

He stuck his hands in his belt because they trembled, and leaned against the doorjamb—a tall, muscular, indifferent figure.

"Nope."

"Ain't got nobody workin' for you by that name?"

"Hell, no."

"Have had, ain't you?"

"Nope. Ain't never heard the name before."

The men looked at each other. "Damn funny!"

They began again. "Ain't seen anything of a boy 'bout 19 or 20, white-headed, blue eyes, a good-lookin' boy? Great hand at poker. Sure can ride. Must have blown in here about a month ago if he come at all."

Jensen snapped out of assumed indifference like a spring that is pulled too taut. But you'd never have known it. Ralph! They meant Ralph!

"Nope. Ain't been here. What's he wanted for?"

"Bootleggin'. Been gettin' stuff over the line and totin' it up Panhandle-way by auto. Married, too, the damn fool. We got the dope from his wife. Give her the third degree. Women can't keep a secret."

"Well, he ain't here," said Jensen. "If I meet up with any one that covers them points you mentioned I'll sure let you know."

In two days the outfit was back again. Christmas was coming and the men were in holiday spirits. The boy Ralph rode at the head of the herd. He was gay and dirty. He was singing a cowboy song.

" 'For we all love our cowboy. Although he done wrong.' " The long-horned cattle and their blatting calves came trooping along with the cowboys riding to left and right. Ralph was the gayest, the happiest of the lot. Jensen was conscious of something like pride of him swelling his heart. The boy sure had nerve. He was game. You'd never think he was up against the sheriff.

IT wasn't until just before turning-in time that Jensen had a chance of a word with him alone. He found him down under the windmill when Ralph went to wash up. The boy was stripped to the waist and his smooth shoulder and chest muscles were white in the cold starlight. A good-lookin' boy, the sheriff had said. Yes, he sure was that! Again that swelling of pride at Jensen's heart.

"There's been three of your friends lookin' for you, Buddy," he said.

The boy stopped throwing the icy water over him from the tin dipper. Then he laughed.

"Sure didn't know I had that many! Who was they?"

"The sheriff and two revenue officers. Thought they was lookin' for me at first, though I ain't committed no bad crimes jest lately. But they said it was a bootlegger they wanted and that let me out. Bootleggin's about the only thing I ain't done or been accused of doin.' Then they went on to say they wanted a boy 'bout 20, a white-headed boy that sure knew how to ride and play poker. They give his name as Tom Runyon, but I reckon they meant you, Buddy."

The boy thought a minute, shining there in the starlight like something out of classic Greece, then evidently decided there wasn't much use in lying.

"I reckon they did, maybe. Tom Runyan was my dad's name and they named me after him. Took advantage of me when I was a baby. Sure don't know why they done it when he wasn't man enough to stand by my mother when I was a-comin.' Gawd, but I was glad to shake that name! A quitter like him!"

JENSEN'S bold, hard eyes had a queer expression in them. Almost like the beginning of tears. He was looking at the boy's mouth, which at this moment wasn't tender. Of course he'd been right that night in the moonlight. It was like Molly's.

"Maybe he didn't know what-all he was quittin'," said Jensen.

The boy laughed. The lips that were like a girl's, like Molly's curled scornfully.

"He sure knew he was quittin' my mother."

"Buddy," said Jensen, for he had to be sure, "what was your mother's name?"

"Molly," said the boy briefly. 'And she sure was a good woman. My stepdad seen that anyway, and treated her accordin'. Well, she's dead now. It don't make no difference to her any more."

Molly dead! Well, that settled things. No use hoping now.

"Reckon you might have taken your stepdad's name if you didn't like your old man's," said Jensen—said it rather wistfully.

"He wanted me to and I'd have liked it. But my mother wouldn't let me. Seems like she always liked my dad better than she did the others, spite of everything."

"Some women is like that!" said Jensen. "Faithful!" And there was something like triumph in his voice. Molly hadn't forgotten.

"And some men is like my father—quitters!" said the boy. "Well, what you goin' to do about my bein' wanted? Let 'em take me to jail?"

"I AIN'T aimin' to," said Jensen. "I was was aimin' to get you off to Mexico—you and that girl they say you've got hitched up with."

The boy shook his head. "It can't be done. She's got a kid comin'. That's what I'm savin' money for. It's to make her comfortable when the kid comes."

"When's she expectin' it?" Jensen said in a hushed voice.

" 'Bout three months now, accordin' to the doctors." There was a curious mixture of embarrassment and pride about the boy then.

"Well, there's doctors in Mexico City and hospitals—good ones! Don't you worry, Buddy. I'm goin' to he'p you, like your dad would he'p you if he had the chance."

"Before I'd take he'p from a skunk like him I'd rot!" said the boy.

Jensen smiled. "Guess it's jest as well you and your old man never met up, Buddy," he said. "But you're goin' to Mexico jest the same."

The boy was thoughtful. He was considering the proposition.

"When do you reckon them officers will be ba'k for me?" he asked.

"Expectin' 'em any time now," said Jensen.

"Then there ain't no use tryin' to get me across to Mexico," said the boy. "There wouldn't be time to go up the Panhandle and get the girl. And I won't go without her. Takes a man like my father to do a thing like that!"

"No, you ain't like him," said Jensen. "But there'll be time all right. There's a way. Leave it to me, Buddy. I'll see you get plenty of time. You saddle that pinto pony of mine and get goin'. I'll fix it. I've always liked you, Buddy. Shake."

The boy put his hand into Jensen's and gripped it. You sure are kind," he said. "I ain't forgotten how you give me the booze the day I rode Tornado. The girl's the best friend I got, I reckon, but you're next."

"WELL," said Jensen the next night when the sheriff returned, "still lookin' for Tom Runyon?"

The officers' faces were stern. "Yes, and quit your foolin'. We got proof that a man by that name's been on this here ranch for a month."

"Longer'n that," said Jensen. "Tom Runyon's my name and I've been workin' here best part of five years now when I ain't been bootleggin'. That good-lookin'-kid stuff don't fit me, but the name sure is mine. Reckon I'm your man."

They looked at each other. Something damn funny about this! "Well," said one of the revenue officers, grimly: "It's a cinch we ain't goin' back to headquarters without no prisoner at all. You'll have to come along with us seein' you're Tom Runyon and the warrant's sworn out in that name. You bootlegger's up to all kinds of dodges. Guess there's another Tom Runyon that we'll have to get later. But you'll do for now. Sheriff, got your bracelets?"

So Hard-Boiled Jensen rode away, rode away calling "So-long" to the astonished outfit. He couldn't wave goodby to them on account of the handcuffs. Rode away smiling. By the the time they'd find out their mistake the boy and the girl he married would be safe in Mexico. But he was in for it. They'd find out how he'd fooled them and it would go hard with him when they tried him for that old crime. Robbing the mails. That's what they'd say he'd done. And he wouldn't be able to prove he hadn't. For he'd have to stand trial now. He'd given himself up. And willingly! Funny how just finding out you had a kid of your own by a woman you'd loved—a game kid too—made it easy to do things like this!

So Hard-Boiled Jensen rode away . . . calling "So long" to the astonished outfit. . . . He couldn't wave on account of the handcuffs.

POSTAL HEROES FACE PERILS IN WINTER ROUTES

BY CECIL OWEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Peace has its heroes no less renowned than war.

Should any doubting Thomas question the verity of this adage, there are countless reports in otherwise prosaic government files to prove his scepticism unjustified.

Records of bravery and heroism paralleling the deeds of daring by those who have faced enemy gun fire bear testimony to the valiant service by the nation's public servants.

Consider some of the men who carry the mails over dangerous mountain routes, through winter blizzards in the far northland of Alaska, or over floating ice packs in frozen lakes. In the past two and a half years 56 "star route" mail carriers have lost their lives while in the performance of duty.

Work Under Contract

To many a lonely outpost of civilization the intrepid star route carrier is the sole contact with the outside world. His daily, or sometimes weekly and monthly visit, is an event of the first order. Star routes are maintained in many parts of the country where travel is dangerous and regular mail delivery a hazardous occupation. These men are not paid salaries but work under contract, awarded after competitive bidding.

Among the most dangerous star routes served by rural carriers are those from Newport to Otter Rock, Ore.; Ellison Bay to Detroit Harbor, Wisconsin; Rocky Bar to Atlanta, Idaho; and from Sandusky to Kelly's Island, Middle Base and Put-in-Bay, Ohio.

On the Idaho route mentioned deliveries are made by carriers traveling on snow shoes during winter months, packing 50 pounds of mail, and not infrequently they have been caught by snowslides and swept to death.

Rescued From Ice Trap

Between Ellison Bay and Detroit Harbor, Wis., and from Sandusky, O., to nearby islands, the service must be performed over the ice in winter and in the fall when lakes are frozen. During the spring thaw it is extremely difficult and hazardous to carry on the service. A number of carriers have met death between these points.

The Hitchcock brothers, carriers on the route out of Sandusky, were once trapped in a storm and running ice. They were carried down the resistless force of a drift in which they had become wedged. Given up for lost by the islanders the carriers were finally rescued in an exhausted condition and so completely weighed down with ice as to be helpless. It was necessary to tear away and cut away their ice-armored garments.

Similar incidents illustrating the hardihood and daring of the unsung men who risk their lives almost daily that the mails may go through appear often in the records of the Postoffice department.

Musical Program Is Arranged For Methodist Church

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 20.—A musical program has been arranged for the morning service at the Garden Grove Methodist Episcopal church, it was announced today by the Rev. Floyd J. Seaman, pastor.

The program includes an organ number by John M. Pearson; vocal solos by Mrs. S. W. Holt, P. H. Prior, "The Annunciation;" Mrs. I. F. German, "While Shepherds Watched;" Frances Bragg, "Hark, What Means Those Holy Voices;" Mrs. M. R. Sprinkle.

At the morning service the pastor will preach on "The Unique Christ." He will lead the Epworth services at 6 o'clock. The Sunday school will have a program Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. There will be no mid week service Wednesday.

WINTERSBURG

Miss Reberta Irwin was the honor guest Saturday evening at a party given by her mother, Mrs. J. O. Irwin, in observance of her 15th birthday anniversary, the social occasion being observed in the Irwin home at Oceanview. About 30 guests were present and one of the group, Lois Treece, was also celebrating her 12th anniversary upon the same date as Miss Irwin.

The guest list included Mrs. Turner, son, Louis, and daughters, Helen and June Turner; Everette Wiggin, Pasadena; Mrs. Edna Mays and LaVerne Mays, of Whittier; Miss Genevieve Christensen and Miss Virginia Christensen, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Porter and daughter, Joan, of Long Beach; Henry Lang and Miss Muriel Irwin, of Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. Axil, of Los Angeles; Miss Juanita Gothard, of Long Beach; Beth Burdette, Irene Robinson, Mrs. W. P. Treece, Lois Treece, Jack Treece, Ed. Sizer, Kenneth McMillen, Coy Rogers, Vada Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin, Miss Reberta Irwin of this place.

A number of the guests from a distance were entertained over night and Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Irwin and daughter.

HARD TO TOPPLE

Corporal Izzy Schwartz, veteran flyweight boxer who recently retired from the ring, never was knocked out and was knocked down on but two occasions.

PHONE LINKS SHIP AND SHORE

The first two-way telephone conversations between a shore point and a ship at sea were held the other day when persons in eastern cities talked to officers and passengers aboard the steamship Leviathan 200 miles out of New York. The historic event is pictured above as H. A. Lafount, left, of the Federal Radio Commission, D. W. Chapman, president of the United States Lines, and William S. Gifford, right, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, talked with Commodore H. A. Cunningham, master of the Leviathan, through the ether. Below is the short wave length telephone equipment in the deck house aboard the Leviathan. Here incoming and outgoing calls are handled at a charge of $7 a minute up to a distance of 1400 miles.

ARMY TACKLES NEW DESIGN OF PURSUIT PLANE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The most vulnerable spot—the tail of the plane—in pursuit flying may become impregnable if the Air Corps' tests of a new type two-place, three-gun plane prove successful.

This recolutionary change was intimated in announcement today by Assistant Secretary of War Davison that the air corps soon will commence experiments with the new pursuit plane. A new type three place, twin-motored, long distance observation plane also is to be tested, Davison said.

The tests will be made to prove the tactical usefulness and military value of the planes and to determine how they fit into the army air defense program, Davison announced.

"The new pursuit plane, instead of carrying only one man and two machine guns, will carry two men and three guns," Davison pointed out in explaining how it is expected to revise air fighting tactics.

"It is worth while to point out with great emphasis," he continued, "that the rear gun should eliminate the most defenseless spot in pursuit flying. So far, the aim of a pursuit pilot has been to get on the tail of his pursuit opponent in order for him to sign the latter's death warrant, because at present the only pursuit weapons are forward guns in the nose of the ship. With a gun covering the rear of the plane the situation changes as the rear gunner can put up a strong defense and make the position of the attacking pilot extremely unhealthy.

"The bi-plane pursuit plane is no larger than the present single-seater. The gunner is placed in a small compartment with his back to the pilot and is protected from the blast of the propeller by a windshield. Unlike the rear gunners in observation planes, he does not stand up in order to handle his weapon, but is seated with his eyes almost flush with the edge of the cockpit. Fixed to a low post on the fuselage is a machine gun which covers and protects the rear of the plane. It is not possible at this time to discuss the equipment or performance of the new ship nor the specific uses to which it may be put, for various reasons dictated by policy and also because it is an experimental type which we do not yet know a great deal about.

"As for the new long distance reconnaissance plane, that, too, is a distinct novelty in Army Air Corps equipment in more than one respect. It is a monoplane equipped with two powerful motors and is designed to fly or climb on one engine. So far our only monoplanes have been in the cargo class. The new observation craft is also believed to have a wider cruising range and higher speed than observation planes now in use. Orders for two experimental craft of this type have been placed.

"These ships carry crews of three men in tandem—observer, pilot and gunner. The observer is located in the front cockpit and on account of the monoplane design he has exceptionally good visibility in all directions. The plane will be equipped with a powerful long range radio set so that it will be in constant communication with its ground station and able to make conection with its base.

Al Kluthe Elected Captain Of Don Football Team

COLLEGE SQUAD IS HONORED AT GRID BANQUET

Al Kluthe, all-conference center, will captain Santa Ana's junior college football next year.

The giant Anaheim snapperback, who played every minute of every conference game for the champion Dons during the great season just closed, was unanimously elected by his teammates last night.

The occasion was the college's annual banuet, sponsored by the Brotherhood of Bachelors, at the First Methodist church.

More than 200 classmates, officials, parents and friends assembled to pay their respects to the greatest team ever produced at the Santa Ana institution.

Kluthe Elected Unanimously

During the banquet ballots were passed to the Don players by Coach Bill Cook. Kluthe was named unanimously on the first ballot.

Kluthe, a three-year star at Anaheim high school and captain there in his senior year, was one of the outstanding linesmen on the champion Santa Ana college aggregation which boasted the most powerful forward wall in the history of the conference.

The banquet was enlivened by many brief but inspirational addresses.

Leo Calland, head coach at the University of Idaho and one of the youngest mentors in the Pacific Coast conference, was the principal speaker. Others who talked were Coach Bill Cook, Coach "Tex" Oliver of the high school; the Rev. George Warmer, pastor of the Methodist church and father of George Warmer jr., one of the stars of the Don eleven; Dr. M. A. Patton, board of education member; Raymond Adkinson, high school vice-principal; Captain Herald Hylton. Dr. Lyman Adams, Baxter Geeting, George Warmer jr. and Captain-elect Al Kluthe.

Rev. Warmer Talks

The Rev. Mr. Warmer opened the program with a humorous talk about the team.

Geeting, graduating halfback, recited an appropriate poem about the spirit of the squad and lauded Captain Hylton for his achievements.

Coach Oliver spoke of football in high school and college.

Dr. Patton, who accompanied the team to Sacramento for the playoff game for the state title, was prevailed on to tell how the team acted on the trip and had many humorous experiences to relate.

Coach Cook, who piloted the Dons through their successful season, lauded the team for its efforts and thanked each member for the work acomplished. He stated that 14 regulars would be missed next year but hoped that the remainder of the squad would carry on the good work of the 1929 team.

George Warmer, in behalf of the team, presented Captain Hylton with a handsome wrist watch and then Hylton presented Coach Cook with a pair of binoculars from the team.

Calland Is Speaker

Calland gave as his main points the desire to want to play football and to be prepared to play football. His outstanding example was Morton Kaer, All-American player for U. S. C. several years ago, who rose to the top rank of football by sheer determination and desire to learn the game.

Kluthe, in thanking his teammates for the honor bestowed on him, mentioned the high point

RICE SELECTS ALL-AMERICA: IGNORES COAST

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Purdue are represented with two places each on the All-America football team selected by Grantland Rice which appears in the current issue of Collier's Weekly.

Army, Iowa, Arkansas, Minnesota and Harvard are represented by one player each.

The selections represent the findings made by Rice aided by an advisory board of football analysts consisting of the following: Dick Hyland, New York American; H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News; George W. White, Dallar News; Edward Cochrane, Kansas City Journal-Post; R. L. (Dink) Templeton, San Francisco Call-Bulletin; A. M. Keeler, Atlanta Journal.

THE ALL-AMERICA

Quarterback, Carideo, Notre Dame.
Halfbacks, Cagle, Army, and Glasgow, Iowa.
Fullback, Welch, Purdue.
Ends, Donchess, Pitt, and Schoonover, Arkansas.
Tackles, Sleight, Purdue, and Nagurski, Minnesota.
Guards, Montgomery, Pitt, and Cannon, Notre Dame.
Center, Ticknor, Harvard.

The Pacific Coast, although represented on Collier's advisory board, won no place on the All-America.

Chris Cagle, Army, halfback, was chosen by Rice for a third consecutive time. Frank Carideo of Notre Dame was chosen at quarter, and John Cannon, his teammate, was put at a guard. Montgomery of Pitt was the other guard, and Donchess, also of Pitt, was placed at an end.

Harvard was represented by Ben Ticknor, center and captain-elect. Purdue's two players chosen were Sleight, tackle, and Welch, fullback.

WEST POINT SQUAD DELAYED BY STORM

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 20.—A blizzard encountered enroute to sunny California threatened today to hold Coach "Biff" Jones' West Point Cadets muscle bound from practice sessions on their transcontinental trip to the Army-Stanford game in Palo Alto.

Delayed one entire day in the snowbound city of Chicago, the Army squad arrived here today after passing up a scheduled field workout at Galesburg, Ill., but hoped to get some practice at Hutchinson, Kan., this afternoon.

HOLLYWOOD WINS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20. — The Hollywood Millionaires defeated Oakland, 2 to 1, in a California league hockey game here last night. Dutch Singer was the outstanding player for the winners. The visiting team outclassed the Millionaires in passing and stick handling, but were weak at the net.

TOD MORGAN TO DEFEND FISTIC TITLE TONIGHT

BY FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Tod Morgan, a dark-haired, handsome little fellow from the far coast, who for the past four years has defended the junior lightweight title as a true champion should, may reach the end of his reign over the 130-pounders tonight, impelled among the has-beens by the capable fists of walloping Benny Bass of Philadelphia.

The challenger figures to whip Morgan on points or stop the champion before the end of the scheduled 15 rounds.

If Tod goes down to defeat and returns to his avocado ranch, he will leave behind a worthy record of a title holder who was willing to fight in defense of his crown. Since he won the 130-pound championship by stopping Mike Ballerino back in 1925, Morgan has engaged in 16 title fights, most of them tough ones. He has always been willing and ready and able to fight, which is more than can be said for most of our champions of recent years.

Bass, who is a 7 to 5 favorite to take Tod's title, is a busy, two-fisted little slugger who can box as well when he needs to. Bass prefers rough going, and is quite a body puncher, a style which should be effective against the none too rugged champion.

It will be the first championship fight in Madison Square Garden for 15 months.

OREGON COACH WILL BE ASKED TO RESIGN

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 20.—The executive council of the associated students of University of Oregon today had adopted a resolution asking the immediate resignation of Captain John J. McEwan, head football coach.

The council reached its decision after a lengthy discussion of a previous recommendation of the athletic committee. McEwan tendered his resignation several weeks ago to take effect at the end of the 1930 football season. Negotiations for a new coach will start immediately, it was understood.

Jack Benefiel, graduate manager, was authorized by the council to negotiate with Captain McEwan for termination of his existing contract.

Rematch Mandell Jimmy McLarnin

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell last night were signed for a return bout on February 4 by Matchmaker Nate Lewis of Chicago stadium. They will meet at 143 pounds, the weight at which McLarnin defeated the leghtweight champion at their last meeting. The title is not involved.

ART SHIRES TO ASK SALARY OF $25.000 YEAR

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Fancy salaries are sought by many league players for 1930, but Art Shires' announced intention of asking the Chicago White Sox for a contract calling for a salary of $25,000 next season is one of the biggest demands on record.

Babe Ruth's $70,000 and Rogers Hornsby's $40,000 are the only two contracts with larger figures than Shires is asking.

Shires, who drew approximately $8500 last season, wants his salary tripled because of his avowed drawing power . Shires has had hard luck all his baseball life, where his salary was concerned. Fines took a heavy toll of his last year's pay envelope.

Snubbed By Landis

When the Waco Texas league club sold Shires to the White Sox, he was supposed to get part of the purchase price. Shires carried the case to Commissioner Landis but he never got any part of the transaction.

Ruth's 1930 contract is expected to come up for renewal in January, but there is not expected to be any difficulty in signing the Babe unless he asks for a long term contract. It is understood the Yanks are willing to give him his $70,000 again next year, but they are not willing to gamble as much on him at this date for 1931.

Another American league youngster who has put in a bid for an enormous raise is Wesley Ferrell, North Carolina boy who won more than 20 games for the Indians last season. Ferrell's contract at the start of the year called for $3000, but when he became a regular it was raised.

Ferrell Wants $12,000

Cleveland has offered him a contract calling for approximately $7500 next season, but Ferrell is understood to want $12,000—four times his 1929 salary.

Two veterans who may be more difficult than ever to sign to 1930 contracts are "Dazzy" Vance of Brooklyn and Burleigh Grimes of Pittsburgh. Vance drew $25,000 last season and Grimes almost as much.

One of the main reasons Harry Heilmann, veteran Detroit outfielder, and Bob Meusel, Yankee left fielder, were waived to the Cincinnati Reds was because no American league teams wanted to assume their high salaried contracts.

Anderson Will Be Husky Line Coach

SEATTLE, Dec. 20.—H. Anderson, head coach of St. Louis university will be line coach at the University of Washington next year it was announced here today.

The former Notre Dame player will assist Jimmy Phelan, who was signed as the Huskies' head coach after guiding Purdue to a Big Ten championship this season.

MIAMI TO HARVEST CAULIFLOWER CROP

Miami, Fla., is planning another big heavyweight bout this February. One of the principals will be Jack Sharkey. The Madison Square Garden corporation will name his opponent, probably as soon as the Christmas rush is over. Schmeling, Griffiths, Ricko, Campolo, Von Porat and Scott are all possibilities.

BY WERNER LAUFER
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

As soon as all the holiday tinsel has been packed away in the attic for another year and the pine needles have been swept off the living room carpet, you are going to hear a lot of boisterous ballyhoo of a heavyweight boxing contest to be held in Miami, Fla., early in the new year. This boxing contest, so you will be told, will determine the undisputed heavyweight champion of the world.

With Jack Sharkey, the Great Gabbo of Boston, already assured one corner of the ring, the speculation as to who will sit in the opposite corner is mounting during these days of frenzied package wrapping.

"Tuffy" Griffiths, Johnny Risko, Otto Van Porat, Phil Scott, Victorio Campolo, Primo Carnera—these are just the foremost monickers in the churning cauldron. Besides, there are numerous lesser lights and "boy wonders" who are already mailing their sealed bids.

They Lose—But Clamor

The recent New York Christmas fund bout between Von Porat and Scott that ended in the second round when Phalling Phil went to the canvas claiming his usual foul, should have definitely put these two out of the running.

But you don't know these boys and their managers. No sooner are they out of the shower room after such a comical performance than their clamor for the right to take the moth balls out of Tunney's championship robes is louder than ever.

On December 27, Griffiths, the young sharpshooter of Sioux City, and Risko, Cleveland's entry, will meet in Madison Square Garden

GREENLEAF BEATS RUDOLPH, WINS POCKET BILLIARD TITLE

DETROIT, Dec. 20.—Ralph Greenleaf last night regained the world's pocket billiard championship which he surrendered to Frank Taberski in a playoff in Chicago last year. Greenleaf defeated Erwin Rudolph of Chicago by a score of 125 to 69 in 18 innings. Greenleaf first won the title 10 years ago in Philadelphia.

But the calibre of billiards played by Greenleaf and Rudolph last night was not in keeping with the sensational brand which they displayed in previous engagements. Greenleaf was guilty of two miscues. Rudolph played very snotty billiards and on four occasions was turned back on shots which would be easy for players much less skilful.

At the end of the ninth inning Greenleaf had failed to score while Rudolph was credited with only 25. It was a battle of strategy to this point although it must be said that Greenleaf had no chances to this point to count whereas Rudolph twice was stopped after making short runs due to his poor position play and inferior shotmaking. Rudolph showed plainly that he was feeling the strain and toward the end he failed on two relatively easy shots.

It has been estimated that winning the title was worth between $25,000 and $30,000. First place was worth a salary of $6000 a year paid by the National Billiard association, $1200 in prize money and 16 per cent of the net gate receipts. Rudolph received a salary of $3000, prize money of $1000 and 15 per cent of the net gate receipts.

Fields-Corbett Go Virtually Assured

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—The ring battle for which fans have long been waiting—Jackie Fields vs. Young Corbett—seemed an assured reality today.

Promoter Ancil Hoffman is now in Sacramento, to make application to the state athletic commission for official permission to stage fights here at Recreation park, on Washington's birthday, February 22.

CHINO QUINTET 25-15 WINNER IN H. B. GAME

Defeated in the second round by Chino, 25 to 15, Santa Ana high school was eliminated today from the Southern Counties Invitational basketball tournament at Huntington Beach.

San Diego high school went into the quarter-finals by beating Oceanside, 25 to 11. San Diego was to meet Chino this afternoon.

Chaffey, one of the favorites, ran true to form by vanquishing a scrappy Huntington Beach entry, 31 to 19, in the third contest of the day. Chaffey was to play the winner of the Whittier-San Bernardino tussle which was expected to be Whittier.

Coach Clyde Patton's Saints won their first round start, 31 to 11, from Garden Grove late yesterday. They got the jump on the Chilipeppers and were never headed. Their advantage by quarters was 13 to 2, 20 to 6, 26 to 6 and 31 to 11.

Chino, which eliminated Brea-Olinda yesterday by a score of 18 to 7 and did not look any too impressive doing it, showed considerable improvement in winning from the Saints today.

Led by Nash, its rangy center, the Chino quintet swung into an 8 to 4 lead at the first quarter and left the floor for the intermission with the score in its favor, 13 to 7. Santa Ana scored eight points to five in the third quarter and was trailing only 18 to 15 at the beginning of the fourth period. Chino snuffed out the Saint rally, however, and held the Patton team scoreless through the final quarter while adding seven points to its own total.

Quarter-final games were to be played this afternoon with final contests scheduled for tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The lineup:

Santa Ana (15)		(25) Chino
Herren (9)	F	(8) Happ
Gaspar (2)	F	(1) Wright
Lindley (4)	C	(12) Nash
Hall	G	Sagouspe
McChesney	G	Bayergue

Substitutions

Santa Ana—Vance for Lindley, Long for McChesney, Lindley for Vance, Vance for Lindley.

Chino—Mines for Wright, Wright for Mines.

CHAFFEY, WHITTIER SHOW CLASS IN OPENERS

Chaffey and Whittier looked most impressive in first round games at Huntington Beach yesterday, and became heavy favorites for the championship.

Chaffey defeated the veteran Fullerton five, 28 to 22, in the best played contest of the day, while Whittier buried the strong Orange cagemen, 41 to 23.

First round scores follow: San Diego 28, Tustin 16; Oceanside 21, Excelsior, 15; Chino 18, Brea-Olinda 7; Santa Ana 31, Garden Grove 11; Huntington Beach 27,

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Primo Carnera gets 100 letters a day. . . . He cannot speak English. . . . It is believed he will learn rapidly, as he won on a foul from Stribling in his first fight and was smart enough to foul Willie in the second bout. . . . Now Stribling is signed to meet Scott in London . . . the customers over there must be crazy about fouls. . . . A London writing gal interviewed Carnera recently in a restaurant, and he asked her to dance . . . she took the chance, and said that when she felt his hand on her back, it felt like the back of a chair. . . . Jimmy Phelan, during his playing days at Notre Dame, was a waiter in St. Joseph's refectory. . . . Gordon Locke, coach at Western Reserve, which was liberally smeared in nearly every game this year, spoke at the Reserve banquet the other night . . . he said he never had been with a loser two years in a row and he's going to try to put Reserve up there next year. . . . Locke was an All-America back when he played at Iowa.

BIGGER AND BETTER BATTLES

You might walk the streets for hours these days and finally find somebody who doesn't want to fight Art Shires. But the chances are you won't. Because everybody's doing it.

The ballyhoo for the Shires Dan Daly match in Chicago recently had hardly died away, and the echo of the impact of the Great One's glove on the mysterious Daly's whiskers still was sounding when the line started to form to the right.

While interest in the professional box-fighters has ebbed, largely through the fault of the boxers themselves, this new wrinkle in boxing has seized the imagination of the jaded customers. Why pay $90,000 to see a round of pulling and hauling followed by a foul blow, or what a play-acting pugilist can make appear as one? You can go see the ball-players and gridiron lads put on a real fight for much less.

ROBBY VS. McKEEVER

The thing might be carried out along other lines. For years Wilbert Robinson and Judge Steve McKeever of Brooklyn have flung verbal hooks at one another's chin. McKeever simply will not have Robbie as manager of the team, and Robbie, backed by the Ebbets interests, merely asks why not.

Judge Landis tried to bring the warring Brooklyn factions together in a New York hotel room the other day. Words flew in such gobs and with such passion that Landis finally had to bounce all hands with the dramatic gesture of throwing open the door. The two factions refused to ride to the lobby in the same elevator.

These two might be signed up and the gate would be greater than ever crowded any ball park. There might even be a series of bouts—like the Kid Lewis-Jack Britton serial, with great profit and glory for all concerned. As far as Judge Landis is concerned, the two could carry guns into the ring if they wished.

NOTRE DAME-PITT

The proponents of Notre Dame and those who think that Pitt is the best team in the world could be signed up by some promoter with assurance there wouldn't be any fouls asked or given. This quarrel could be billed as a battleropal preliminary to the Robinson-McKeever main bout—and would you pack them in? All the customers, of course, would be forced to check their brickbats and rifles at the door.

Other swell bouts could be arranged, such as Senator Moses versus a couple of those "wild jackasses," as he labeled the western progressives. Possibilities are unlimited.

PITTSBURGH IN DRILL AGAINST TROJAN PLAYS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 20.—Using Southern California plays as secured by Scouts Tom Davies and Charley Bower in the Trojan-Carnegie Tech game, the Pittsburgh third team scrimmaged against the Panther varsity yesterday.

Despite the intensive scrimmages practice sessions to date have not resulted in injuries and the squad is expected to be in perfect shape when it departs for the West coast Christmas night.

TROJANS RESUME PRACTICE FOR PITTSBURGH GAME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—Southern California's Trojans resumed their training grind today for the New Year's Rose Bowl battle with the Pittsburgh Panthers.

Coach Jones' men gathered for their first workout since the Carnegie Tech game. Light exercise was the order of the day, with scrimmages to come later.

Jesse Hill, fast Trojan backfield star who has been laid up with a charleyhorse, is expected to get back into action in the New Year's battle.

KLUTHE NAMED 1930 CAPTAIN OF DON ELEVEN

Captain Hylton had set as a leader.

The Bachelors had charge of all arrangements for the affair and the banquet room of the church was gaily decorated to carry out the spirit of Christmas. Three long tables faced the speakers' table. Chester Page, grand exalted ruler of the Brotherhood, was in charge of the affair which was one of the largest for many years.

Announce Lettermen

Every man on the football squad was present. The 29 Dons who will receive monograms and the 21 players who earned a gold football besides their letter, will be awarded their insignia as soon as the orders can be filled. Coach Cook, in making the selections, first awarded the 21 footballs and then because the season was such a lengthy one and the team had such a successful season, gave eight other players letters.

Those who will get the combined rewards are Captain Herald Hylton, Ed Adams, George Warmer, Hal Dunham, Ernest Stump, Frank Miles, Tim Wallace, Joe Warner, Bill Crawford, Phillip Martin, Smith Griswold, Captain-elect Al Kluthe, Wayne Garlock, Baxter Geeting, Franklin Van Meter, Melvin Beatty, Jack Sweetnam, Lloyd Manderscheid, Jack Rimel and Jack Dutton.

Those receiving letters only are Crawford Nalle and Nevin Hoy, John Keeler, Leonard Natland, Charles Andres, Orville Schuchardt, Carol Bertolet and Gene Olsen.

EASTERN TEAM PRACTICES FOR GAME IN NORTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—Twenty-two Eastern football stars, representing 16 universities, were today working the train stiffness out of their systems, at Kezar stadium here.

It took but little time for the members of Coaches Dick Hanley's and Andy Kerr's Eastern all-star team to limber up, in preparation for more intensive workouts before the Shrine charity East-West game here New Year's Day.

Coach Kerr of Colgate and Coach Hanley of Northwestern, are optimistic that the stellar aggregation they brought out, is the equal of last year's team that handed the West a licking.

Glasgow of Iowa, Twomey and Cannon of Notre Dame, Sleight of Purdue, and Nagurski of Minnesota are just a few outstanding members of the East team who have received All-American mention.

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of football for the Big Ten conference, accompanied the team to San Francisco.

The West team, comprising some of the greatest players on this side of the Mississippi, will retire Thursday to the Moraga valley, where it will start practice at the St. Mary's field, while the Easterners work out either at Kezar or down at Stanford, where Andy Kerr formerly coached.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS SCHEDULE IS TOLD

PARIS, Dec. 20.—Dates for play in Davis cup tennis competition were fixed by the cup committee today. The first round competitions must be completed by May 6, the second round, May 18, third round June 9, with zone finals to be played July 11, 12, 13 and interzone finals, July 18, 19, 20.

Final challenge round will be played at the Rolland Garros stadium, at Auteuil, Paris, July 25, 26, and 27.

Switzerland and Hungary today filed entry in Davis cup competition.

Holtzer, Sparks Meet at Stadium

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Maurice Holtzer, French boxer, and Ward Sparks meet in the main event at the Hollywood stadium tonight with prospects for a fast bout. The Frenchman is the favorite. They weigh 128 pounds.

AGREEMENT CLAIMED

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Although no contracts have been signed an agreement already exists for Yankee stadium to be used for the Army-Notre Dame game in 1930, Business Manager Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees said today in discussing reports that the game would be held elsewhere.

MIAMI PLANS BIG BOUT IN FEBRUARY

for what their backers say is the final step to the title shot in Miami. Aid from recent performances, their claims have more justification than any of the other yelpers. If either should score a decisive knockout, they should be right in that Miami ring.

Griffiths Improving Rapidly

Griffiths has been coming along at a great pace ever since he suffered his first knockout by Jimmy Braddock in his New York premiere. He has won every one of his fights since then, although he has given careful attention not to run into any bad matches. He won from Risko on a foul in their first meeting at Detroit some time ago.

But Johnny has a habit of reversing earlier adverse decisions and promises to do it in this instance. Furthermore, Griffiths is said by some experts to be shy of the experience needed to mix with a man of Sharkey's calibre.

After a period of fistic lethargy caused by lovesickness, according to his manager, Danny Dunn, Risko has been mopping up his opponents. He evened his score with Jimmy Maloney, who had previously beaten him in Boston. He knocked the former fish monger flat in two heats. He followed this by getting revenge on Ernie Schaaf, who had also beaten him in the same town. Risko gave Schaaf a good slathering, although Ernie put up a gallant fight. In addition, Risko won each of ten rounds in his fight with Von Porat, which gives you a good idea how hard it is to keep anybody definitely eliminated in the heavyweight circles.

Has Win Over Sharkey

It isn't more than two years ago that Johnny gave Jack Sharkey a whipping in the elimination to find a suitable opponent for Champion Gene Tunney's farewell appearance. And, for that matter, John could probably do the trick again, for it stands to reason that Sharkey hasn't improved any more than the Clevelander since that time.

But one mark on Risko's record has never been erased. Max Schmeling's clean knockout of the tough Johnny cannot be laughed off by saying John's heart wasn't in the business of fighting that night due to a busted romance. When a man is ducking hooks and blocking crosses, it's a cinch he isn't thinking about Kid Cupid.

Although Schmeling is said to be on the outs with the corporation on account of its high-handed methods of accepting and rejecting their matches, he will be back again from his favorite Germany by the first of the year. And he isn't coming over to play badmington.

With his personality, his resemblance to Dempsey and his giving the Miami fight an international flavor, don't fall into a swoon when you read some morning that the Madison Square Garden corporation has reconsidered and is giving Der Maxie the big plum.

Tools that eat DIRT!

Hoover dusting tools live on dirt.

Let them but touch the draperies, the walls, the door and window frames—dust is gobbled up. In the corners of the piano and radio, among the radiator coils, in the depths of the upholstery—fluff and dirt are instantly devoured. In the stairs, and around the tufts of mattresses, among the books on the bookshelves, in the fireplace—how cleverly they search out, how greedily they swallow, all the dust and lint and elusive bits of dirt.

Hungry dusting tools! Hoover dusting tools!

Swivel joints make it unnecessary for you to twist your wrist, spring catches lock the units instantly in place. Such helpers give to your routine dusting a very special speed and ease.

Yet above-the-floor cleaning is a small matter compared with that of cleaning floor coverings, which store about ninety per cent of the dirt in your home. Helpful as are the Hoover dusting tools, of even greater importance is the faster, easier, more thorough cleaning of rugs which results from the exclusive Hoover cleaning principle, "Positive Agitation." It is so effective that The Hoover removes more dirt per minute than any other cleaner.

Let us demonstrate The Hoover and its dusting tools.. Liberal allowance for your old cleaner. Phone us today.

BARBECUE PLANNED AT SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—Dan Mulherron, past president of the San Clemente Chamber of Commerce, will serve a barbecue feast to friends from Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Clemente at his beach front home Saturday. After the "feed" the guests will attend the Days of '49 Christmas benefit celebration to be staged by the Men's club at the Social club.

Mulherorn's guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton H. Cotton, San Clemente; Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hayes, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sarygent, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Newman, San Clemente; Dorothy and Mickey Butler, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Measday, Los Angeles.

S. A. LEGION TEAM DIRECTS CEREMONY

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—Installation of the officers of San Clemente post No. 331, American Legion, will be held tonight at the Social club under the direction of the initiation team of the Santa Ana post. A record turnout is expected. Refreshments will be served by the village post. A program has been arranged.

The Legion post announces that it will hold a dance on New Year's eve at the Social club to which all Orange county veterans and friends have been invited.

"MOST UNUSUAL" AUTOGRAPH

Presidential scribblings are these strange triangles, circles, parallelograms and other engineering patterns which President Hoover penciled upon a memoranda sheet during an interview. Signed by the Chief Executive, as shown above, they have come into the possession of Thomas F. Madigan, New York autograph dealer, who has set a high valuation upon them as being "the most unusual autograph to come out of the White House in 25 years."

Frances Willard

Robert Tannenbaum, 9th grader, was honored last Friday morning during the regular assembly period when Mrs. Edith Thatcher, sponsor of the Honor society and vice-principal, presented him with a gold scholarship pin as a reward for continuous records of a superior grade. Robert has not only made a most commendable record in his subjects throughout his junior high school course but has also held many school offices which carry considerable responsibility. He is serving his term as president of the Willard Booster club this semester.

Posture Assembly Held

As a culmination of the posture contests held in the various Santa Ana schools a general posture assembly program took place at Willard Friday morning when representatives of all schools were present and were judged by a committee, of which Walter Scott, supervisor of physical education, was chairman. It was a difficult task for the judges to make much distinction between the many school winners.

The first prize, which was a camera given by Ivie Stein, was awarded to Naomi Denning from McKinley school. Second place was won by Nellie Para, Artesia school, and third by Mildred Smith, Edison school.

The boy winning first place was Bob Griffin, Edison school, who won the tennis racket, given by Mr. Neal of the Sporting Goods store. The other place was won by Walton Klepper of McKinley.

These completed the grade school contests.

First place in the junior high schools was won by Lucile Cook, of Lathrop; second place by Jessie McClain, Lathrop; and third by Betty Rowland, Willard. Boys award went to Paul Hales, Willard, first; Harold Boles, Lathrop, second; and John Smith, Lathrop, third. The group winners of girls was decided in favor of Lathrop, while the group winners of boys went to Willard.

The Willard students taking part in the posture program, who had previously won recognition in the Posture Week events were: Betty Rowland, Jeannette Brown, Georgina Irwin, Norma Jane Whittington, and Vivian Westbrook. The boys were Paul Hales, Harold Brock, Bud Hood, Brooks Wright and John Scheel.

Classes Enjoy Speakers

The girls' vocations classes, under the direction of Mrs. Maurine Scott and Mrs. Laura Livenspire, had the honor of having R. E. Cowman and Mr. Anderson, Santa Ana business men, talk to them. Cowman spoke on "Pharmacy." He told of how far back the pharmacy profession dated and why today the drug store and pharmacy are connected as one business. He also explained all about the work and welcomed questions that the girls wished answered concerning the work.

Mr. Anderson spoke on office work. He included secretarial work, book keeping and accountancy. The girls enjoyed it very much as he gave the pros and cons of each line of work. They learned a great deal concerning these different types of occupations and greatly appreciated the opportunity of hearing from these men.

John Muir

The John Muir school had a program on Wednesday, Dec. 18. We had songs, recitations and several solos. Some of the children in the orchestra played for us. It was interesting.

Lois Rohrs.

The boys of our school have been waiting for a coach. Last week Mr. Whittam came. The boys like him very much. We have been practicing hard. He comes every night. If we win he said he would take us to the high school plunge and to see basketball games.

Norman Wyckoff.

Learn Carols

In Miss Good's room we are learning some Christmas carols. Some of them are "Silent Night," "He Shall Feed His Flock" and "Christmas." The one who learns them the best is to sing at our Christmas program on Wednesday.

Evelyn Fraser.

In Miss Mueller's room we have been bringing things to send to Guam. All the children bring different articles to school. We have filled six boxes to send. They give them to the needy children.

Lucille Knowlton.

Games Are Enjoyed

In the afternoon play grounds the boys play indoor basketball, and soccer. The girls play all kinds of games, team games, relays, stunts, races and trapeze work. Shirley Lingren is the junior squad leader, and Ann Womack the senior.

Helen Louise Ryherd.

In Miss Ingram's room we are preparing for January star study by talking about our own world and the planets near us. We have learned many new, interesting things about the sun, moon and stars.

Anne Womack.

ARMY KETTLES AWAIT PUBLIC'S CONTRIBUTIONS

In the midst of gaiety and the inevitable bustle on city streets at the holiday season: in the midst of color and the importance of purchasing gifts for friends and loved ones there stands a silent challenge to the citizens of Santa Ana—the little red kettles of the Salvation Army. Touching is the appeal they hold—unpretentious symbols of the true spirit of giving that prevails at Christmas-tide.

When hearts are warmed in anticipation of that day on which is celebrated the birth of the Christ child in a lowly manger, it is difficult to realize that in this community there live an humble people who are in need. Significant of this are the many letters requesting aid that have flooded the Salvation Army headquarters here. Illustrative of these are the following:

"Dear Sir: I am writing you this few lins to let you know now that I need help and I which you will give me something for Christmas. I have no mother no father nobody. But a poor lady that I live with."

"Dear Sir: I wish you could help me to give Christmas to my children because we are poor. My husband has a month that he hasn't work and I wish to give Christmas to my children. I have three babies."

"Dear Brothers in the Lord: My father and brother is not working and we are poor. We are six in the family two old folks and four children. I am writing these few lines so you will remember us for Christmas."

"Salvation Army, Dear Sir: Merry Xmas to you all. Please sent me something for Xmas. I am very poor and have four kids and don't know what to give them for Xmas."

"Salvation Army: I am a poor lady. I have no husband or children. I am an old woman. I have to work for my living. Won't you bring me some Christmas?"

"Dear Sirs: I am writing these few lines to ask you if you wont help me a little this Christmas. I am a widow and pretty old now so I cant work. I live with a lady but I cant do much work. If you could give me a little help this Christmas I would thank you very much."

And there were many such requests, scrawled in the fading handwriting of old age and painstakingly scribbled on ragged papers and bits of torn cardboard.

The Salvation Army authorities here are laboring to bring cheer into these poverty stricken homes. Confident that it is not the intention of citizens to let "streets of forgotten men" exist in Santa Ana at this Christmas time, Maj. Percy Morton and Capt. Joe Morton urge that assistance be given the needy at this season.

THE OL' GREEN RIVER

A merry war is raging between Utah and the United States as to title to 1000 miles of river bed along the Colorado and San Juan rivers. And this picture, of A. J. Tadge, Salt Lake voyager, was introduced in evidence. Tadge was a member of an expedition boating from Green river to the Grand Canyon. He testified three boats were lost in nine months, and held the stream not navigable. The government seeks title by declaring the streams non-navigable. Much early history of adventure is being recounted by the witnesses.

NEA

SAYS DRY LAW AIDS WELFARE WORK IN STATE

By ELWOOD SQUIRES

(United ress Staff Correspondent)
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 19.—(UP)—Remember the pathetic little figure, garbed in calico, who timidly pushed through the swinging doors and across a beer laden room to sing—

"Father, dear father, come home to us now."

But times have changed and the bleary, red nosed renegade who drank his family out of house and home is gone. In his place is a new, and respectable, character.

Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, director of the state department of social welfare, is convinced that all such scenes are history.

"Welfare workers in the old days had much to contend with in this respect," she declared.

"The melodrama was exaggerated, but enough of that sort of thing went on to keep the workers busy. The corner saloon and all its accompanying misery was an ever present problem. We may think what we will of prohibition, but something has changed the old order and we no longer are confronted with that phase of life at its worst.

"County workers constantly tell me of improved conditions as I travel about the state. The old time drunkards are apparently pretty rare. Most of them are staying home and taking an interest in the family they once neglected.

"Instead of sitting around a table in a smoke filled room, drinking liquor, the fathers are sitting in front of their radio tapping out melodies from the air, rather than an accompaniment to the drinking songs of old.

These same county workers tell of apparently incorrigible cases, where a complete reformation has been effected. The houses are painted, they are paying off mortgages, and cultivating gardens. The family which they once abused is now a pride."

An added interest in these individual cases in counties will soon be taken by the state, when organization of the state probation division of the departeinnt of social welfare is completed under John Plover, state probation officer. Heretofore the state has had no direct connection with probation work, but Plover will act as a cooperative agency between the various counties in California.

30 MORE ARE NAMED IN SUIT FILED AT BEACH

Suit was filed in the justice court of C. P. Pann in Huntington Beach, Wednesday, for a total of $97,032.42 against 30 residents of Huntington Beach and 20 more "John Doe" names, to be set forth later. The persons sued are those who held any stock in the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company. In order to file suit for such a large amount in a justice court the plaintiffs set forth a small amount against each name, all being within the range of the justice court jurisdiction. But under the peculiar wording of the action it is possible to take judgment against any one plaintiff for the full amount of $97,032.42.

The suit was filed by Dudley Chandler and Glen Behymer, as trustees. Behymer appears as the record attorney. They are residents of Los Angeles. The complaint sets forth that seven members of a certain Callahan family borrowed $89,431.53. The Orange County Bond and Mortgage company, it is claimed, guaranteed the Callahan note, then transferred to Chandler and Behymer as trustees.

Dated Dec. 27, 1926

This note, dated Dec. 27, 1926, never was paid and no interest was paid on it, it is said. The Orange County Bond and Mortgage company refused or was financially unable to pay the note, it is claimed, and so the trustees sue the stockholders of the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company for any part of or all of the note and interest, bringing suit jointly and severally for the part for which each stockholder is liable if all pay and for all of the money from each stockholder if only a few pay or can be made to pay.

The suit grows out of the defendants merely holding stock in the defunct bond and mortgage company. The Callahan note is of a form which, it is alleged, carries full liability to guarantors and all persons holding an interest in the transaction of any nature whatsoever.

Some of the persons sued are day laborers, others are bankers and capitalists, professional and business men.

Those named in the suit here are A. C. Alberts, Nellie Alberts, Fritz W. Bruggeman, W. H. Cochems, E. G. Conrad, A. B. Dinsmore, L. R. Dunfee, Al and Mary L. Giavochini, D. C. Gifford, Pearl Gifford, J. A. and Minnie L. Groes, H. F. Gramlich, R. W. Hampton, Ralph E. Hawes, B. M. Honold, Emma V. Honold, Mrs. Alice Lambert, Ella Lombard, H. M. and F. H. Malone, F. Similar Suits Here

Similar suits were instituted in the justice court and superior court in Santa Ana on Thursday, December 12, in which a total of 316 defendants were named. The suit in justice court was directed against stockholders whose share of the liability was less than $300, while that in superior court was for larger shares, some of the defendants being charged with as high as $12,000, $14,000 and $40,000. The suit in justice court here was directed against the Orange County Investment corporation, while in superior court the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company was named as well as the investment company.

REV. L. BURDEN SPEAKS BEFORE S. A. LIONS CLUB

An address by the Rev. L. Burden, pastor of the First Methodist church in Inglewood; vocal numbers by Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, accompanied by Miss Allien Lair, and 'cello solos by Eddie Burns, accompanied by Mis Allien Lair, and distribution of toy gifts featured the Christmas program of the Santa Ana Lions club yesterday.

After the Lions had had their fun, the toys were deposited in boxes for forwarding to the Orange County Health camp, in Santiago canyon.

In his talk, the Rev. Mr. Burden pointed out that the birth of Christ had changed the current of the life of the world and commented on the advancement the world has made by following the ideals of the baby born in Bethlehem 1929 years ago.

"Before the birth of Christ civilizations rose and fell," the minister said, in emphasizing the point that Christian civilizaton has survived and will continue to survive.

Stating that physical force never has been effective in settling wars of nations, although temporary success may be the reward of the victorious nation, the Rev. Mr. Burden declared that there never can be permanent peace until all the peoples of the world learn to love each other in the spirit of love exemplified by Christ.

"Unless we bring the influence of this love, and other Christian influences to bear we are headed for war," the speaker declared, and he added that "we have in the White House a man who recognizes the fact that wars cannot be settled by physical force and who realizes that permanent peace may be had only by application of the ideal of brotherly love throughout the whole world."

EARLY MAILING OF CHRISTMAS CARDS IS URGED

With the flood of outgoing Christmas parcels somewhat subsided, the flood of Christmas greeting cards into the Santa Ana post office today was very much in evidence.

"We are hoping that the greatest proportion of the greetings messages will be mailed today and Saturday," said Postmaster T. E. Stephenson. "The carriers will have a tremendous load of envelopes to work through their cases Monday and Tuesday and by hard, faithful work they will see that these tokens of good will are delivered before Christmas.

However, cards mailed late may be subjected to unexpected delays. A greeting delivered a day or two before Christmas gives more satisfaction to the one receiving it than would be the case if delivery is not made until after Christmas. Therefore, the Santa Ana post office and all its employes urge upon its patrons that greeting cards be mailed tomorrow in preference to Monday."

ROBERT SPEED IS SUCCESSFUL WITH WRITINGS

Five short stories and several articles sold in the first year of writing for profit is the gratifying attainment of Robert Speed, Santa Ana man.

One of the most recent of Speed's published articles is "Mexico, the Unmoving," in the December issue of the Nomad. The author, who is a recognized expert in matters of Aztec archeology, spent a number of years exploring Mexico and under the surface disturbances found, he says, a country as stable as the Sphinx, possessing a magic for the sensitive as compelling as any of that in the Old World."

The story tells in an interesting way of the author's journey through a part of Mexico with a well educated Mexican youth, Carlos. "Together we dreamed at Xochimilco and Guadalupe, together explored Guanajuato's catacombs and conjured back forgotten ages at Teotihuacan."

The description of the Pyramids of Old Mexico are especially alluring. Carlos and the author ascend to the summit of the great Pyramid of the Sun, next to Cheops, the largest artificial mound in the world, and see a mile away the great Pyramid of the Moon. Carlos declares that these pyramids were standing when the ancestors of the Aztecas came to ancient Mexico.

The Mexico of the Mexicans is vastly different from the American-rotted Tia Juana, Speed reveals. The article is beautifully illustrated.

Speed recently was awarded a $150 prize by the McFadden Publications and the prize story will appear in one of the magazines of the company under the title of "The Question Without An Answer." Following his illness of a year ago, Speed was forbidden by his physicians to return to business. Writing, he says, always had intrigued him, so he took up short story writing.

Delightful Luncheon Is Presented at Las Ondas

A delightful Christmas luncheon in the quaint dining room of Las Ondas cafe at Laguna Beach was enjoyed yesterday by members of the Justus Bridge club. The charmingly appointed luncheon was planned by Mrs. Harry Gardner, Mrs. Jess Elliott and Mrs. John Sexton.

While tables were arranged for the afternoon's card games, members held a gift exchange during which they presented their president, Mrs. Austin Harden, with a pretty boudoir pillow.

When bridge scores were collected Mrs. R. R. Russick was high with Mrs. Henry Lyle second and Mrs. Austin Harden low. They received attractively wrapped gifts.

Those enjoying the affair included Mrs. R R., Russick, Mrs. Henry Lyle, Mrs. Austin Harden, Mrs. Jess Elliott, Mrs. A. Granas, Mrs. John Sexton, Mrs. Don Matics, Mrs. Carl Knox, Mrs. Richard Gilliland, Mrs. Don Mozley, Mrs. Harry Gardner and Mrs. Henry Wagner.

Former Santa Ana Man Marries Hollywood Girl

Santa Ana friends of James Finley, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Finley of this city, have just received announcements telling of his marriage last Sunday to Miss Ramona Wallace of Hollywood.

The ceremony took place at the Wilshire Presbyterian church with the pastor of the church officiating and immediately afterwards the two left for a honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead.

On their return they will make their home at Ontario where Mr. Finley is superintendent of the Orange Bi-Products company. The young man is well known in this city where he attended the local schools, later graduating from Pomona college. His wife is a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Pythian Sisters Hold Christmas Party

Tall red tapers in unique holders made of pine cones and cotoneaster berries graced the tables which were laid in K. P. hall Wednesday for 65 members and their families of the Pythian Sisters. Vases of winter flowers enhanced the beauty of the colorful affair.

Mrs. Powers, mother of Calvin Powers, who celebrated her eightieth birthday anniversary yesterday was presented an elaborately decorated cake.

The children present were delighted when Mrs. Santa Claus entered and distributed gifts among the guests, as well as a box of candy and a great basket of bright red apples. The role of Mrs. Santa Claus was impersonated by Mrs. Peter Isherwood.

Judge Homer G. Ames Presents Talk on Juvenile Court

Notwithstanding all the discouragements the court has to face, Judge Hemer G. Ames of department 1 of the superior court of Orange county, said in an address to the League of Women Voters yesterday, the results in the juvenile court work in this county were gratifying. He gave an interesting talkk before the women who met in the gold room at Ketners' cafe for luncheon. He was introduced by Mrs. George Mangold, president, who conducted the meeting.

Stating that the only way in which to determine the success of the court activities with any degree of accuracy was to note the number of times individual cases were brought back to the court on subsequent defenses, Judge Ames declared that the percentage is exceedingly low and estimated that the rate here is not over seven per cent.

There are three classes of juvenile offenders, according to the speaker. First, those guilty of some minor infraction of the law without evil intent, such as violation of traffic ordinances; second, those not guilty of an offense and who have not committed a crime, but who fail to receive necessary discipline at home; and third, those who have actually committed a crime, or done something unlawful or immoral.

Although the offenders are not limited to any class of people, Judge Ames said yesterday, the majority of cases brought before the court in the first division, are from the best homes of the community. The second group of offenders are meted out discipline and strength by correction so that they will not become habitual law breakers. While the third group embraces the vast majority of the cases brought before the court. He cited several instances in which the court has taken into consideration the causes and motives for the crime before attempting to impose punishment.

"The law of the juvenile court is not penal, but is rather established on correction," Judge Ames said. "It is not designed to punish crime, but rather to prevent crime. We prefer to administer correction rather than justice and to do away with the old adage of the court 'Let the punishment fit the crime.'"

Judge Ames expressed his reluctance at having to admit the existence of cases in the delinquency of girls, who are brought before the court. He said he would rather have 20 boys than one girl in court, because in most instances the boys break down during the correction remedy, decide to turn over a new leaf and do better in the future, whereas the girls consider the "lecture sob-sister stuff" and merely laugh.

Methods used to conduct the court in department 1 vary, but the judge explained his informal routine. In the first place no newspaper reporters are allowed in the chambers during the session and the judge does not go on the bench. He endeavors to make a friend of the offender and tries not to let undue legal formality interfere with his role as as advisor.

While the court sessions are supposed to be private, Judge Ames, in commending the League of Women Voters for its interest in the delinquent child and the juvenile home of Orange county, invited a committee from the organization to be present one Friday afternoon during the court session. The courtesy as extended allows two women to visit the court, providing no names of offenders in the appearing cases be repeated in, or outside of, the woman's organization.

Mention was made at the luncheon of the gift of two volumes of 1929 session laws that were presented the Santa Ana League of Women Voters by Senator Nels Edwards. It was also announced that the next meeting will be held the third Thursday in January, while the study section will convene on the second Thursday in that month.

Miniature Trees Form Motif for Luncheon

Miniature Christmas trees decked with scarlet tapers centered each of the three luncheon tables yesterday afternoon when a group of friends of Mrs. Fred L. Cole and Mrs. Ed Prentice assembled for a pot-luck bridge luncheon, at the Cole home, 618 Cypress avenue. Bowls of catoneasters and holly berries were also used to further the yuletide motif, and favors and nutcups were in shades of scarlet.

Following the luncheon, an afternoon of bridge was enjoyed, at the close of which first prize was awarded Mrs. Cole, and second to Mrs. O. K. Carr. Both prizes were attractively wrapped in Christmas fashion.

Guests of Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Prentice were Mrs. John Gould, Mrs. O. K. Carr, Mrs. Cornelius Neuschwanger, Mrs. Roy Ivins, Mrs. Joe Steele, Mrs. Paul Carnahan, Mrs. Annie Johnson, Mrs. John Powell of Orange, and Miss Donna Crawford.

Hermosa Chapter Members Hold Merry Luncheon At Ketner's

The Christmas party of the Past Matrons' association of Hermosa chapter was a gay affair held Thursday in the blue room at Ketner's cafe.

Mesdames Fannie Reeves, G. R. Safley, C. D. Benight and Jennie Peek were hostesses at the beautifully appointed 1 o'clock luncheon. The tables were lovely with holly and centered with a hugh basket of poinsettias.

The president, Mrs. C. W. Ellis, was presented with a large bouquet of flowers as the occasion celebrated her birthday.

Mrs. Ellis, Secretary Mrs. H. T. Jones and Past Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Hervey Trueblood received special gifts.

Following the luncheon a brief business session of the association was held after which a white elephant exchange of gifts was enjoyed.

An enjoyable feature of the affair was the toast given by Mrs. O. M. Robbins.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Interesting Program

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church held its regular meeting in the church parlor recently. The session opened with a song, "The Kingdom Is Coming." Mrs. Frank Burke led the devotions, the theme for which was "The Christmas Spirit Should Prevail Throughout the Year." Mrs. Burke and Mrs. E. M. Mills led in prayer.

A letter was read from a scholarship girl in Kolar, India. She addressed the society as mother and thanked it again for her support.

The thank offering address will be given by Mrs. Moot Heisler on the morning of January 26, it was announced.

Mrs. L. G. Steward, who was the founder of the society of the First Methodist church, was made a memorial member. Miss Blanche Callings gave the lesson study from the book, "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem," and the Rev. George Warmer talked on arrangements for a more definite way to teach the children in missions.

A letter from Doris Welles stated that she had arrived at Bombay and soon would be in Calcutta at work. Little Olive Schweitzer and Margaret Davies gave a group of Christmas carols. They were accompanied by Mrs. Irwin.

"Holy Night" and other Christmas songs were sung by a trio, Mrs. Harry Hayes, Mrs. Mary Grimes and Mrs. J. W. Eyerly, with Mrs. Wetherell at the piano Mrs. Harry Bowman sang "There's a Song in the Air" by Ole Speaks. Mrs. Wetherell accompanied.

Standard Bearers

One of the jolliest parties of the Christmas season occurred last night, when Miss Ramona Smith entertained the Standard Bearers, an organization of the First Methodist Episcopal church, at her home on 710 South Ross street.

After a delicious potluck dinner, a business meeting was held, at which Helen Bower was unanimously elected secretary, to take the place of Margaret Guthrie, who recently resigned. Virginia Sawdey was elected chairman of the mite boxes, funds from which are to buy Doris Welles, missionary in Calcutta, India, an automobile. Short talks on missionaries were given by Ruth Juhlen and Justina Palmer.

Following the business meeting, a gift exchange was held. The rest of the evening was spent in singing and conversation.

Those present were the advisor, Mrs. W. D. Finn, Virginia Forney, Lola Christy, Zelma Beemer, Fern Danielson, Florence Ulrich, Bernice Summers, Justina Palmer, Helen Slabaugh, Helen Bower, Fontell Renchler, Virginia Sawdey, Doris Schofield, Janie Crawford and Miriam Samuelson.

Mrs. D. A. Hozknecht has returned to her home here following an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Gann of San Diego, who has been ill in a hospital there.

Pegasus Club Meeting Held at Home of Mrs. Was

Members of the Pegasus club were entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Frank Was of 2019 Victoria drive when they gathered at her home for their annual Christmas party.

The delightful program which had been arranged for the afternoon opened with the singing of two beautiful carols, "Joy to the World" and "Silent Night," by Mrs. C. F. Jackson and Mrs. Charles Brisco.

Mrs. Walter Foote presented an original poem, "L'Envoi," which was followed by a paper on "Christmas of a Child" by Mrs. Fannie Lash.

Mrs. George Bond offered two original poems, "Christmas Day" and "Christmas," and Miss Marjorie Lusk read a clever love story entitled "Those Shoes" which she had written for the occasion.

Mrs. Charles Fuller read Temple Bailey's "Those Who Stole" and Mrs. Grace Zaiser gave two readings, "Where The Christmas Trees Grow" and "The First Best Christmas Night."

Mrs. Was presented "December" and "Gifts" both original poems, and Mrs. Charles Brisco read a chapter from Tolstoi's "What Men Live By."

Lovely Decorations Used for Party At Barn

The spirit of Christmas pervaded The Barn last night when Santa Ana Community Players and their friends gathered there for their annual Yuletide party and program. Colored lights twinkled on a tall fir tree, gay with tinsel and shining baubles and cast a soft glow over the room walls of which were covered with sprays of cotoneaster tied with red and silver tulle.

In keeping with the occasion was the presentation of a Swedish play, "The Lighting of the Christmas Tree" by Selma Legerlof, under the direction of Gladys Simpson Shafer. The setting for the play was the living room of Lofdala, a Swedish manor house, and characters wore quaint costumes of the Scandinavian country.

The various roles were well cast and particularly delightful was the work of Leola Schroeder and Charlotte Quiggle who played the parts of daughters of the home. Harry Brackett, a veteran player, was Ruster, a flute player, a clever character role.

Frank Lansdown was Liljekrona, a violinist, and Mildred Snyder was Olga, his wife. Mabel Pruitt played the part of Halla, the cook, and Sanborn of Torstein, the man servant.

Preceding the play, Mrs. Charles Best, in Swedish costume, sang several Nordic folk songs with her daughter, Miss Joy Best, accompanying at the piano.

A short skit followed, "He Said and She Said," by Alice Gerstenberg, parts in which were taken by Julia Hyde, Margaret Gaebe, Sanborn Griffin and Elaine Williams.

Following a group of 'cello numbers presented by Edward Burns, Miss Allien Lair presided at the piano while the entire group sang Christmas carols.

During the social hour which followed, clever little gifts were presented each person. A number of the gifts were not used and these will be sent to the Ebell Day Nursery and the Orange County Health camp.

The delicious refreshment course was planned by Mrs. Frank Andrews jr., with the assistance of Miss Janey Wilde and Mrs. Henry Williams.

Decorating was done by Mrs. Charles Riggs, Mrs. Robert Shafer, Arthur Collins, Mrs. Joseph Snyder and Frank Lansdown jr.

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

"Marinating" and "Saute"

There are two terms used in cooking which are not asthoroughly understood as they should be: the first of these terms is "marinate."

This applies to foods, usually salad mixtures, which are dressed with a spiced oily liquid and left in the "marinade" a sufficient length of time for the food to assimilate the flavor of the spices and absorb some of the oil. The marinating process takes 30 minutes for raw vegetable mixtures and one hour for cooked vegetables or meats.

The second term is "saute." To saute a food means cooking it over a low flame in a little butter or cooking oil. Time is the element on which hangs success or failure in this method. The fire must be low and the cooking done so slowly and carefully that the food is barely brown when fully cooked. The delectable ragouts served in French and Italian restaurants are cooked by this method.

Inexpensive meat cuts are converted into the tenderest of tid-bits, and every bit of seasoning is so merged and distributed through the dish that one cannot tell where the basil left off and the garlic came on.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Finnan Haddie Au Gratin

1 cup canned finnan haddie
1 cup grated cheese
2 cups cream sauce
1-2 teaspoon French mustard
Salt and pepper
Generous dash of cayenne
1 or 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Thanks to modern marketing methods the housewife need no longer handle this odoriferous fish; she now buys it in a can and it is prepared and served without the aftermath of eradicating fish odor from cooking dishes.

Make the required amount of cream sauce, not too thick, and keep hot in a double boiler, add the grated cheese and stir until melted, then season to your taste with mustard salt and cayenne. Open the can of fish flakes, rinse them and let them drain and freshen for half an hour. Fold the flakes into the cheese sauce, cover and let stand until ready to serve.

Hot biscuits made an ideal base for the finnan haddie. Split the hot biscuits, butter lightly and put enough of them on a hot platter. Just before turning the finnan haddie mixture over the biscuits quickly stir in enough lemon juice to add zest and tang to the fish.

The calorie total for the finnan haddie au gratin is 1350, add to that 1200 for eight lightly buttered biscuits and the whole divided between six people gives an individual calorie total of a little over 400. In this dish there are adequate proteins and sufficient starchy foot to bar other starchy vegetables. Serve a leafy vegetable low in food value, with tomatoes as a second choice, and plain crisp lettuce with a little tangy French dressing for a salad.

IRVINE

IRVINE, Dec. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Cook Russell and children, Eleanor, Lena and Russell, of Chula Vista, visited several days in the home of Mr. Russell's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Russell. Tuesday evening Mrs. Joe Russell gave a birthday dinner in honor of her husband. Those who enjoyed the dinner besides the two Russell families were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sackman and daughter, Dorothy, of Santa Ana, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell.

Junior and Jake Graham and Mr. Brunner, of Montebello, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boosey Wednesday morning. The boys were on their way to Fallbrook for a visit with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Graham.

Mrs. Tom LeBard has been ill in her home here with an attack of influenza.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Customs change so much faster than laws and edicts. Here it is an accepted condition of life that beautiful actresses marry rich and highly eligible men, so we are never in the least surprised when it happens.

In fact, if a Follies girl, for instance, marries a rich man, it isn't news, but if she marries a poor one it is.

"Isn't it marvelous?" we ask. "Here is a beauty who could have her pick of husbands, who has a dozen millionaires at her feet, and yet she marries that poor haberdasher—just for love. Isn't it too romantic?"

A CASE IN POINT

And yet, over in London, when Francis Francis, the wealthy young guardsman wants to marry Sunny Jarman, who is a musical comedy actress, he has to resign from the Royal House Guards.

There is an old custom, it seems, which has become an unwritten law, that no officer in His Majesty's brigade of guards may so far forget his superior station in life as to marry an actress.

Frequently before, the same situation has arisen, and the honor code has forced the choice between love and duty to the king.

Naturally, it does not become news unless the man chooses love, when it is always romantic and glamorous, as it is in this case. For it does mean something to give up so desirable and showy a position as that of royal guardsmen.

The custom, of course, originated in the days when theatrical folk had no social standing, and could not possibly be considered eligible matrimonially.

Today there are titled women from the British aristocracy on the stage, and earls and lords of high degree have married stage beauties. There is no country where you find greater allegiance to theatrical favorites than in England.

CAREER VS. ROMANCE

Actors and actresses will always tell you that if you once win the heart of the British theatergoer, you will find him faithful ever afterward. And yet this old unwritten law, completely repudiated by reason and fact, is still as binding today as it was in the days of Robin Hood.

In a democracy such as ours we have our problems, but marrying in or out of class is not one of them—theoretically, at least. In fact, there is nothing we like better than to have our local Cinderellas walk away with the princes.

But there is a certain romance about giving up a career for love. There is a triumph that no woman can despise in being more important to a man than his position. There is a cavalier gesture that is rare enough in these prosaic days.

And after all, though Francis may give up his uniform, all is not lost. He gains the right to use that priceless phrase:

"Remember what I gave up for you."

PLACENTIA PUPILS PRESENT PROGRAMS

PLACENTIA, Dec. 20.—Christmas programs were the order of the day at Placentia school Wednesday.

Assembly was held in the auditorihm of the Bradford avenue school in the afternoon, and a short program of Christmas carols and selections by the orchestra enjoyed. Dewitt and LeRoy Lyon gave interesting readings.

Each of the Mexican schools had a party for the children, the teachers furnishing candy while Louis Jacobsen, president of the school board, furnished apples and the members of the P.-T. A. gave cakes for the Baker street school. The Christmas program of the Baker street school was held Wednesday morning on the school grounds and consisted of exercises by the first, second and pre-first grades, songs by the third and fourth grades and special songsb y the boys and girls of Mr. McLean's room.

The La Jolla school pupils had their program Tuesday afternoon, with a tree, Santa Claus and Christmas songs. The Richfield program was held Tuesday evening and was ushered in by Santa and his helpers, who displayed dolls and toys for the children.

"FLAPPER MODE" PASSES

Thrills of an Aerial Cameraman

Sydney Bonnick, Who Took Pictures Of Mexican Volcanoes and Maya Ruins A Year Before Lindy's Recent Flight Of Discovery to Central America, Has Been Photographing From Planes Since 1910 and He Has Explored Vast Jungle and Mountain Regions Without Ever Setting Foot on Them

(All photos by Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc.)

By MARION GILLESPIE

WAY back in the quiet days of 1910 Sydney Bonnick decided that he would rather be an aerial photographer than anything else on earth—or more strictly, above it.

At that time this meant leaning over the side of a swaying balloon basket and taking pictures of the pleasant countryside below with an ordinary camera. It was long before the days of "flying dark rooms" and special aerial cameras. But it was thrilling business even if it didn't take one very far away from civilization.

Now, aeronautical improvements have increased the flyer's margin of safety while in the air, but additional thrills have been brought into the life of a flying cameraman by the fact that these same improvements have made all the wildest and littlest-known parts of the earth especially inviting to him.

The crater of this extinct volcano near Mexico City . . . was revealed by this air photo to be the farm home of a timorous Indian . . . safe from all his enemies.

Flying Photographer Sydney Bonnick. . . . "I feel safer flying across mountain ranges . . . than walking across city streets."

It is now possible, for instance, for two men—the photographer and his pilot—to fly over unknown terrain and in 10 hours flying time chart a country that would have taken an engineering crew on the ground three months. The finished product of such an aerial survey is a composite photograph that shows at a glance the actual topography of the section.

Bonnick recently returned from his second aerial survey of parts of Mexico never flown over by man. His pictures show close-ups of mountains whose jagged edges could rip the plane wing from wing in the twinkling of an eye. And jungles so impenetrable that getting into them for any distance would require days of arduous labor cutting a path as wide as a Mexican's hat. His adventures included arguments with pythons, wild boars and alligators.

Bonnick's recent Mexican expedition was over an almost inaccessible region in a country inhabited by ancient ruins and hostile Indians.

"WE left Brownsville, Texas, for a destination far in the interior of Mexico," Bonnick relates. "As far as civilization is concerned it was the original and well-known jumping-off place.

"We were to survey some 1500 square miles of weird country—all mountains, jungles and swamps. We carried parachutes, of course, but I often wondered up there at 13,000 feet, if we should have to pile out in a hurry, which would be the best course to drift. There was small choice between snake-infested swamps and jungles and streams alive with alligators.

"We made a reconnaissance flight over the area to be photographed and went to work in earnest. A large part of the survey was shot in a flight of seven hours and 20 minutes.

"The next morning my pilot, George Kraigher, who had served in the Serbian and French aviation services during the war, rushed into my quarters to greet me with 'Shake, old man, we're in the war again! Go over and look at the plane!'

"I followed him outside and found eight Federal soldiers, with guns extended, guarding our plane, and they wouldn't let us near it! After some inquiry I found that the guard had special orders from the general in command of the district. Owing to the outbreak of a revolution, we would be unable to take our plane off the ground. We were assured, however, that our equipment would be protected.

"This condition lasted for several weeks, during which time we gazed at a cloudless sky and tore our hair. Photographic days were going by and we weren't able to take a single picture.

"The average aerial photographic time is one day in seven, and naturally our organization makes sure when a favorable day arrives that pictures will be made. It checks closely on weather reports, advance notifications of weather conditions and last-minute notice by phone or radio. If a photographer fails to turn in a roll of films after all these checks have been made, he has to furnish a first-class alibi.

"When I sent the New York office a picture of our plane resting in the hangar with eight Mexican soldiers standing guard in front of the entrance, my alibi was perfect!

"Eight armed Federal soldiers guarded our plane. . . . Owing to the outbreak of a revolution we were not to be allowed to leave the ground."

Today's Puzzle Picture: How many mistakes could you make if your motor suddenly died above this typical sector of Mexican mountains . . . and you had to pick a spot for a forced landing?

"AT one time we were commanded to go aloft and make a survey of the rebel lines, and under guard of one Mexican soldier who went in the plane with us, we flew over the territory and photographed the situation. When we landed we were surprised to find 12 bullet holes had damaged our fuselage, and we hadn't even known that we were being fired on!

"Aside from this episode we took no part in the revolution, although geographically we were in the thick of it. During the time the Federals chased the rebels and vice versa, we spent our time developing the pictures we had already taken.

"At the conclusion of our mapping, we made trips between Mexico City and Tampico to secure views of the volcanoes Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, known as the sleeping lady because of its formation. This location was 18,000 feet above sea level and the scene of the battle between the Aztec Emperor Montezuma and the Spanish invader Cortez.

"On one of our flights, 16,000 feet above the Isthmus of Tchuantepec, we were rewarded with a view that perhaps no one in the world had ever seen before—the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico at the same time, with the Isthmus stretching narrowly in between.

"After making pictures of the volcanoes, we proceeded to Merida Yucatan and took the first air pictures of the ancient ruins of Uxmal and Chicen Itza, remnants of the long-departed Mayan civilization recently visited by Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

"We also flew over one extinct volcano in whose crater an Indian had built himself a home and planted his small farm. The rim of the crater afforded a natural protection, and the Indian probably felt that he was fortified for life against his enemies.

"The Indians working in the fields, sighted us and ran into the house as we approached. No doubt ours was the first plane they had ever seen, and we could well imagine their consternation.

"THIS country for hundreds of miles is solid volcanic rock which absorbs the heat of the sun, and in the low altitude at which we made our pictures, there is an air condition that makes one feel there are a thousand devils trying to tear the wings from the plane.

"When I took these pictures, we struck just such an air disturbance. It knocked the camera against my face, broke a tooth and left me flat on my back on the floor of the plane with a 38-pound camera sitting on my chest.

"An uncomfortable situation in the making of pictures in tropical climates is the extreme difference in temperatures. In preparing for a flight we are obliged to wear heavy fur-lined flying suits and felt boots. We have to wear these fireless cookers with a temperature on the ground of 100 in the shade. An hour's climbing, and oppressive heat at an altitude of 15,000 feet gives way to penetrating cold. Returning to lower levels, the gas tanks, camera, and all metal is streaming with water due to the rapid condensation.

"DURING my last trip to Mexico, one of my pilots had an interesting experience. One of the oil companies had had trouble with bandits holding up the paymaster, so they decided to send the payroll out to the wells by plane.

"The paymaster loaded about 1000 pesos in gold into a leather bag, sealed it carefully, then when the pilot would swoop down over the field where the men were working, the paymaster would drop the leather bag over the side of the plane.

"The pilot's landmark was a point where two rivers converged. When he reached this spot, his course lay along the river to the right. He had flown the course many times, but this day, through some error, he followed the river to the left and after some distance realized he had been flying long enough to be sighting the oil fields.

"He looked out of the cabin and was surprised to see mountains looming up on either side of the plane, and knew he was off his course.

"There was no room between the rocky walls to turn the plane around, so he kept straight ahead, hoping to rise high enough to find turning space. The mountains were rising higher and higher each moment and suddenly he sighted a sheer wall of rock some 9000 feet high rising directly in his path! It took some quick thinking and quicker action!

"He nosed the plane at a downward angle, then suddenly brought it up to complete an upside down turn. At the moment the wheels were on top, he pulled the stick, righting the plane and found himself flying out of this cul-de-sac over the route he had entered.

"When the maneuver had been successfully accomplished, the breathless paymaster managed to gasp, 'I say, old man, was that stunt absolutely necessary?' to which the pilot replied fervently, 'you betcher boots it was!'

"I HAVE had one or two thrilling experiences in the States. On July 13, 1918, my pilot and myself flew under the International Bridge at Niagara Falls to get pictures that would be different. We got them all right, and we came near getting our everlasting, too!

"We were flying a two-place Canadian training plane powered with a 90 horsepower OX 5 motor. The wind was blowing right down the gorge and some of the pictures were made from an elevation of 10 feet.

"Because of the wind condition the plane would rise only to the level of the two lower bridges and we were forced to dive under and try to rise again. It was a foolhardy venture. We achieved the distinction of being the only flyers to fly beneath all three bridges at the Falls, and it's a record that can stand as far as I'm concerned.

"All of the thrills are not confined to land flying. When we were returning from Yucatan recently, C. H. Robinson, chief pilot for the Mexican Aviation Company's Merida run, told of having seen large schools of man-eating sharks off the Gulf coast. I decided we would photograph them.

"When we were about 10 miles from shore and not more than 50 feet above the water sneaking up on the playful creatures, Robinson turned to me and asked casually, 'Bonnick, did you ever get any dope on how long one of these planes will float if the motor quits?'

"But even with the possibility of a motor going dead over a school of man-eating sharks, flying holds its fascination. There is an urge to achieve further success in a profession which has little or no competition. Whether it is flying 16,00 feet in an icy atmosphere with my fingers sticking to the camera and my mustache covered with icicles like Old Bill, or at a lower altitude photographing an estate, country club or harbor developments along the water front, the interest is always the same."

The lure of the tropics has been too much for Bonnick. His visits to New York prove, at least to his satisfaction, that flights over Mexican mountains require less dodging than crossing New York streets. He recently returned to Mexico to conduct a third survey of little-known parts of the country.

$2,000,000 Improvement Program For Harbor District

$1,600,000 TO BE SPENT FOR ISLE PROJECT

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 20.—Newport harbor faces a $2,000,000 building and improvement program for the coming year, it is revealed by a survey of projects either under way or reasonably certain to go through. Most of the program will be under the supervision of City Engineer R. L. Patterson, and is revealed in a letter written to Gov. C. C. Young, who forwarded the information, with other data from all over California, to President Hoover for use in his nation-wide survey.

The largest single item, if it can be called one item, planned here is the improvement of Lido isle, for which bids have been called by the city council. These bids will be received January 6. The work includes grading, paving, curbs, sidewalks, sewer system, water system, ornamental lights, pleasure piers and a bridge from the mainland at Newport to the island. The estimated cost is $1,160,000.

High School Plant

The next largest is the high school plant for the new Newport Harbor union high school district, consisting of Newport Beach and Costa Mesa, for which a bond issue of probably $300,000 to $400,000 will be called, the exact amount not being determined so far.

Then there is the $200,000 harbor improvement program voted on October 22 last, $150,000 for dredging at the entrance and $50,000 for groins at the west jetty.

The acquisition of a right of way for a new street along the Pacific Electric in the west end and the improvement of that and other streets in that section is planned and will cost about $125,000. Improvement of canals in the west end and work in connection therewith is estimated to cost $30,000. The proceedings are under way and protests, if any, will be heard January 13.

The contract has been awarded for the improvement of Seville avenue and certain other streets in the Frick property on Balboa peninsula at a cost of approximately $45,000. This improvement consists of grading, concrete pavement, curbs, sidewalks, sewer system, water system, ornamental lights and decomposed granite paving in alleys.

Begin Paving Soon

Central avenue, Balboa, between Alvarado and B streets, is now being improved, bonds to the amount of $36,000 having been sold. Bids for paving will be opened January 6, the other work now being under way. Under the plan, there will be but one P. E. track instead of the two there now, and the driveway on each side will be nine feet wider than at present.

A new lighting system on this part of Central avenue has also been petitioned for. It will cost about $8500.

The city also plans dredging and other harbor maintenance work during the year amounting to about $20,000, new water mains, fire hydrants, etc., about $5000, and the construction of an aeration tank at the main reservoir, $8000, and new street construction, $2000.

Private work to be done during the year includes dredging at the west end of Lido isle, to cost about $80,000; dredging at Bay island, about $30,000, also considerable dredging around Balboa and Harbor islands, and the erection of a new building at Main and Surf streets, Balboa, on the property recently leased for 99 years by Walker and Hamann from E. R. Allen.

Grammar School Students Present Program Thursday

COSTA MESA, Dec. 20.— The school children of the grammar school yesterday presented a Christmas program in the Community church to a crowded house, a Christmas cantata being the main number on the program.

Mrs. Grow S. Brown gave two solos, Masters Bill Greschner and James Evans rendered vocal solos and Mr. Dale Hamilton Evans executed several numbers on the pipe organ.

BEACH SCHOOL SOCIETY GIVES YULE FANTASY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20.—Public schools have been dismissed for the holidays, to resume on January 2. Christmas programs were given by the students under faculty direction at both schools.

The elementary school assembly was the occasion for the superintendent, C. B. Baldwin, to present a Christmas message to the students. A playlet was put on by student groups with the Byrd Antarctic expedition as the subject. The eighth grade girls octette, the seventh grade girls sextette, took prominent places on the program.

In addition to the assembly there were Christmas programs in various rooms and a number of rooms enjoyed exchanges of gifts between the students.

The Scholarship society of the high school offered the Christmas fantasy, "Why the Chimes Rang" at the high school auditorium.

Fred Brooks, supervisor of manual arts, was in charge of scenes and set ups. He made and painted the screen and built the scenery at the school workroom.

Acting of the student cast was as fine as has ever been shown in a high school play. The whole performance lasted only about 45 minutes. The auditorium was filled to seating capacity, many hundred citizens attending. Admission was free.

Faculty members who were most active in the production were Miss Cora Henderson, director; Miss Pearle Shrimpl, costumes; Miss Martha Trafford, chancel scenery; Fred Brooks, scenery and set ups; Everett Ray, lighting; Mrs. Ruth Harlow, vocal music; Miss Margaret Squires, orchestral music. Students on the production staff with the faculty were Faye Bushard, properties; Arthur Frost, advertising.

The cast of characters was as follows: DeanPryor, peasant boy; Robert Heitz, his younger brother; Dante Siracusa, their uncle, the woodchopper; Velma Wentzel, an old beggar woman. Characters in the chancel scene were Omer De Sadeleer, priest; Jimmie Quiggle, rich man; Alvin Koenig, courtier; Doris Reed, haughty woman; Echo Hanke, young girl; Leonard Miyawaki, an old scholar; Lester Oliver, the king; Margaret Shank, an angel.

HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES FOR ANDREW MINDER

ANAHEIM, Dec. 20.—Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Hilgenfeld funeral chapel for Andrew Minder, 85, who passed away Wednesday at his home on West Lincoln boulevard. Services were conducted by the Rev. E. Burgi of the Salem Evangelical church and interment was made in the Loma Vista cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Minder are three brothers, George and Andrew F., of Anaheim; Edward A. of Ziiah, Wash.; three daughters, Mrs. Ida Miller and Miss Emma Minder, of South Gate, and Mrs. Marie Hartelt of Anaheim; 12 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The deceased had been a resident of California for the past eight years and was a pioneer of Minnesota and Ohio after his arrival at the age of 11 years in America from Switzerland. As a clerk in a store in Young America, Minn., in 1862, at the age of 13 years, Mr. Minder rode many miles through rain and darkness to Carver, Minn., to notify settlers of the outbreak of the Sioux Indians, crawling many miles on his hands and knees. A steamboat captain carried his message to St. Paul and through his efforts the community was saved.

OFFICERS NAMED BY SANITARY DISTRICT

CAPISTRANO BEACH, Dec. 20.—Aaron Buchheim was elected president and E. L. Holly was elected secretary of the Capistrano Beach Sanitary district, at a meeting held by the board of directors at the Capistrano Beach grammar school this week. Walter Congdon, Louis Dietze and Arthur Kuss, the other directors, were present.

The board decided to call on the services of a reliable sanitary engineer to survey the proposed sanitary ditrict and stimate the cost of the project. The next meeting will be held at the school house January 8, according to Secretary Holly.

SIX-HOUR WORK DAY BEING CONSIDERED BY OIL FIRMS IN FIELDS OF CALIFORNIA

By C. W. PATRICK

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20.—The major oil companies are considering trying out a six-hour work day in the oil fields in order to provide jobs. Curtailment of drilling operations causes reduction of force as this department of oil development furnishes most of the oil field jobs.. Since overproduction began to assume alarming proportions the oil companies have been forced to lay men off they can ill afford to spare in times when there is drilling activity.

It requires skilled and experienced drilling crews for the deep drilling in the California fields. The class of men needed here when there is plenty of drilling are made only in the California fields, which are the deepest in the United States.

The oil companies are put in a puzzling position. With production curtailment there is cessation of drilling operations and with cessation of drilling operations, there are no jobs for men the oil companies have been years in training and who can not be easily replaced if drilling activities begin, and begin they must in the course of time, if not in one field or another.

Same Wages, Plan

Standard Oil, Shell, Richfield, Union and Texas, it is known, have been conducting negotiations among themselves looking to the installation of a six-hour day. This plan would keep four crews active where three crews are now employed. It is said no wage cuts are contemplated, the men being paid on an eight-hour basis with a six-hour day.

The Standard has tried the experiment out in a small way at the Murphy lease in the Murphy-Coyote field, one of the Standard's prize leases. Watchmen and pumpers on the Murphy lease have been put on a six-hour day and are being worked on that basis now.

As drilling operations were curtailed, drilling crew members were given jobs as watchmen and pumpers, until conditions improved in the oil business. Many watchers and pumpers are in reality drillers who are capable of putting down wells in the deep California fields. The companies do not want to lose these men and hence the movement to keep them employed.

Crews Reduced

The Huntington Beach field is one field which is feeling the reduction in jobs. Last week the Standard sent three crews from here to Santa Barbara. At present the Standard has only one drilling project here.

Richfield now has two drilling projects here, solely or largely in order to retain expert drilling crew men on the company force. Rex Oil company keeps one crew busy in order to hold the men, drilling wells not needed rather than be caught unprepared or short of reliable men when there is a need for them at such time as activity is resumed.

The six-hour day plan originated with the companies, but needless to say the men are strong for it. Such a plan, the companies point out, is also in keeping with the suggestion of President Hoover to keep business going ahead at full speed, to keep men at work and to create jobs rather than reduce forces. This is just another odd angle of the oil game which can prevent plenty of problems and evolve more unusual situations than any other big business.

After spending a few weeks with Mrs. Oser's grandfather, John D. Rockefeller sr., they expect to return to this city.

IRVINE GRADE SCHOOL PUPILS GIVE PROGRAM

IRVINE, Dec. 20.—A large group enjoyed the Christmas program at the Irvine school house Wednesday afternoon. A beautifully decorated Christmas tree stood in one corner and the room was decorated with pictures.

The program included the following recitations and songs: Song, "Joy to the World," audience; welcome address, Arthur LeBard and Jesse Stone; two songs, Miss Matheny's first and second grades kinderband; piano solo, Helen Mitchell; recitation, Grace Stone; piano solo, Lucille Lambert; two songs and two recitations, Mrs. Bardwell's third and fourth grade pupils; two songs, Miss Stewart's fifth and sixth grade pupils; two harmonica numbers, seventh and eighth grade boys of Mrs. Gardner's room; two saxophone solos, Victor Debrower.

Mrs. Addey played the accompaniment for the program. After the program the candy and presents were distributed among the children and after they were dismissed, Mrs. Gardner called a meeting to make plans for the party to be held in the new school house before school starts after the vacation.

Among those present were Neva and Vera McDonald, Nellie Boyd, Maxine Hazen, Lucy Ahern, Ardyth Parham, Howard Hiser and Lewis Collins. The mothers present were, Mrs. Walter Mills, Mrs. Lorton, Mrs. Charlie Hendricks, Mrs. Bud Mitchell, Mrs. Horace Munger, Mrs. Salaetz, Mrs. Lemon Thrall, Mrs. Ray Lambert, Mrs. Ransler Baker, Mrs. Bill Whitehead, Mrs. Arthur Ross, Mrs. Phil Ahern, Mrs. Wolff, Mrs. D. C. Hazen, Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Ralph Stone, Mrs. Henry Boosey, Mrs. Frank Swain, Mrs. Jack Thornbarrow, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. DeBrower and Mrs. Bascom.

Newsboy Knocked Down by Truck But Keeps On Working

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20—Paul Haney, 6-year-old newsboy ran into the street in front of Canady's Jewelry store Wednesday afternoon directly against the fendar bar of a truck moving along Main street. He was knocked to the pavement out of the path of the truck. He suffered painful bruises but was not seriously injured. The newsboy after being cared for by the crowd went on down the street peddling his papers as though nothing had happened.

Social Meeting Held By Masons

ORANGE, Dec. 20.—Sixty members of the Masonic lodge were present this week at a social meeting of the organization when incoming officers were hosts to outgoing officers. R. E. Bunch, past master, was presented with a beautiful desk set. Wade Flippen, incoming master, made the presentation.

Cards were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served.

SKIT GIVEN BY GARDEN GROVE HIGH SENIORS

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 20.—The seniors of the Garden Grove Union high school went back to childhood days Wednesday. There was a Christmas tree, presents and Santa Claus.

A program of music, speeches and a skit were prepared by a group of seniors with Aguitta Wheeler, as chairman.

The entertainment included a Christmas story, Dorothy Allen; soprano solo, Ora Baker; harmonica solo, Dana Beal; reading, Lorena Christopher; whistling solo, Jerome Scofield; speech, Clifford Romack and a short skit by Walter Clark, Ben and Norma Casner and Estelle Crow.

Orville King acted as Santa Claus. The presents were bought by each senior, placed on the tree and given out by Santa Claus.

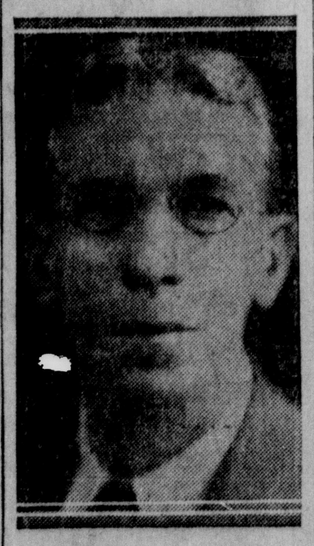
Orange Building Being Remodeled

ORANGE, Dec. 20—Rooms in the second story of the Keller Watson building on East Chapman avenue are being cleared of the old post-office fixtures stored there for some years as the building is being remodeled for the Elks clubrooms.

Remodeling work will be started at once.

TELLS FRIENDS ABOUT SARGON

"Sargon brought me health after everything else I tried failed. I've told dozens of my friends about it.



CHAS. A. HANSEN

"About three years ago my digestion went 'all to pieces.' I hardly knew what it was to be hungry, and what little I ate disagreed with me. I went on a strict diet, but this didn't help me. Rheumatism came on in my shoulders, hips and legs and caused me lots of suffering. I lost weight and was weak and run-down, and no medicines helped me until I started Sargon. I have taken five bottles, am gaining weight, my appetite is fine, my digestion is perfect and it's remarkable the way this medicine brought back my strength and energy. Sargon Pills put my liver in splendid condition and are the best laxative I ever took."—Chas. A. Hansen, Hondo, Calif.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

NEWS OF LOCAL SCHOOLS

Julia Lathrop

Wednesday at Lathrop was an event of Christmas giving. Before the regular assembly program the classes took their gifts for the Christmas barrels to the rotunda. These gifts of canned goods, toys, books, and fruit will be distributed where they are most needed. On Tuesday members of the Every Girls' club went to the school at Delhi with dolls and toys and candy for the Mexican children. A program was given by the Delhi children and the Lathrop students gave a short program. Mrs. Webber, who has charge of this Christmas work, was pleased with the response from the girls who contributed.

In order to further this spirit of Christmas the various classes arranged exhibits in the three corners of the rotunda. A lighted Christmas tree decorated one corner, a manger was arranged in a second and in the third corner was a house with a lighted window and snow dripping from the eaves.

Exhibits Were Gay

The exhibit cases in the rotunda presented a most attractive appearance during the last week. In one was a display of brightly colored waste paper baskets and desk calendars made by the Arts and Crafts classes. In another were plates of candies and jars of fruit covered with bright papers. These were made by the girls of the cooking classes.

In Miss Deane's L7 Home class the Christmas party was held on Tuesday so that the presents which the children exchanged could be taken to the Delhi children. No present cost more than 10 cents and each child received a gift. This class was gratified to find that 33 out of the 38 members were on the honor roll with one member on the scholarship.

New Scholarship Society

Since the point system was discarded last year, the teachers were asked to name five students from each class. Any student that has been named by four different teachers is automatically a member of the Scholarship society. The following have been named four times:

Low Seventh—Charles Best, Margaret Brugger, Mathew Brown, Louise Crawford, Roger Fuller, Enid Kengon, Winifred Nelson and Mac Nicholson.

High Seventh—Raymond Anderson, Franklin Davis, Marian Doty and La Verne Means.

Low Eighth—William Hudspeth, Nadine Johnson, Mary King, Betty Martin, Bernice Miles, Dorothy Proctor, Alice Skinner and Lorraine Wheeler.

High Eighth—Vivian Switzler.

Low Ninth—Mary Anna Baxter, Gordon Beisel, Agnes Bock, Ruth Dohmer, Eric Eastman, Phyllis Gerrard, Maxine Gidcomb, Richard Gilliland, Genevieve Hansen, Elmer Manning, Frankie Fern McDonald, Patricia McClure, Leo Snedaker, Edward Wickersheim, Glen Gardner, Marian Hester, Harry Reed and Robert Rittenhouse.

High Ninth — Helen Dugger, Elizabeth Holmes, Mildred Logsdon, Frank Lansdown, Vivian Martin, Charlie McWaters, Simona Posey and Martha Sharpley.

Scholarship Recognized

Thirty-six Lathrop students received scholarship pins at assembly last week. Pins of three classes, bronze, silver, and gold were awarded. Bronze pins are given for being on the scholarship roll two quarters, silver pins for six quarters, and gold for ten quarters. To Mildredn Logsdon, H9-1 was awarded the only gold pin.

The following students were to wear pins:

Bronze—Vivian Switzler, John Ramirez, William Curnett, Holmes Chambless, Ruth Cummings, Leo Snedaker, George Nelson, Genevieve Hansen, Maxine Gidcomb, Eric Eastman, Donna Endres, Gerald Crawford, Dorothy Preble, Beatrice Wendell, Louise Gardiner, Marion Doty, Russell Abbey, Helen Dennis, Billy Hudspeth, Nadine Johnson, Morten Jones, Mary King, Maurice Lycan, Bernice Miles, Betty Martin, Frankie McDonald Lois Pranke, Dorothy Proctor, Alice Skinner, John Wallace, Lorraine Wheeler, Edna Wilson and Franklin Davis.

Lowell

In Mrs. Duke's room we had a play, "The Troubles of the Shoe Family. The characters were Polly Flinders, Lucille Griggs; Mother Twitchett, Lona Boydston; Jack, Harry Clewly; Jill, Virginia Waters; Dr. Foster, Albert Wright; Humpty Dumpty, Pat Wood; Bo-Peep, Marjorie McCune; Curly Locks. Helen Juden; Johnny Stout, Ivan Brooks; and the old woman, Ida Bergsetter.

—Ida Bergsetter.

On Wednesday morning the kindergarten gave a program for their parents. This proved to be very entertaining and interesting. Very great was the enjoyment brought by none other than old Santa himself.

In Miss Lazare's room, the children are wrapping up their Christmas tiles with tissue paper that they bring. They are using strings and ribbons with which to tie them. Miss Larzare does not think red and green look well together, so we use everything but these two colors.

—Jean Russick.

Children Make Gifts

All primary classes have been making tea tiles for Christmas gifts. They have chosen their own colors and designs and have gotten a great thrill out of the work. Even the little B1's were successful in this project. December has been a joyful month in the music and art room for the children have made many gifts which will bring happiness to others.

Posture queen at Lowell school is Jean Russick. The king is Russell Haney. Although we won no prize, we are very proud of our king and queen. Jean is in the 4A grade and Russell is in the 5B. They are to be crowned with gold crowns at the Christmas program in the kindergarten.

—Mary Ellen Dudley.

We have had a good after-school play every night. The boys play football or basketball while the girls play volleyball or basketball.

The 5A grade has had the highest spelling average in Lowell school. We've had the highest average seven times. As a treat, the class having the highest average gets out ten minutes earlier.

The posture king for Lowell school was Russell Haney in the low fifth grade. Jean Russick was queen.

—Helen Warner.

In Miss Lazare's room we wrapped our baskets and tea tiles as presents. Each present had a card in it which was made in our art room.

—Helen Meyer.

McKinley School

McKinley school is busy with its Christmas plans. The primary graders have been busy with the Christmas presents that they are making in the art room. The third grade is making rose window cards and calendars. The second grades are cutting stencils to use in making cards. They are going to make calendars next week. The first grades are making book marks, calendars and Christmas tree ornaments.

—Alfred Wright.

Miss Hatch has sent away from some tea-tiles which the upper grades are going to design and paint for Christmas presents. Yesterday we made trees that would stand up by cutting three different colored Christmas trees out of shades of green paper which we pasted together. They made very pretty Christmas trees for table decorations.

—Ingram Kinsey.

All of the rooms are to put on a Christmas number for the program that is to be held in the kindergarten room Wednesday. All of the children in Miss Hatch's room are going to sing. We hope that we sing well.

—Kathleen Brown.

The high six class is going to have a play. Those who are in it are: Naomi Dennie, Gretchen; Paul Echols, Hans; Laura Hill, Dutch; Carol Shands, French; La Vene Parks, fairy; Billy Nowotny, American; Thomas Bradley, English; Joe Sanford, Swiss; Mildred Waterfield, Russian, and Doris Poll, Irish. We hope that our number will be a good one for the Christmas program...

—Paul Echols...

The low one class is to have a Christmas play. The name is "Jack Horner Gives a Christmas Party." The children who are to be in it are: Jack Horner, Ronald De Page. Mother Goose, Norma June Wright; Jack and Jill, Billy and Betty Dutton; Pussy Cat, Lenne Whitesides; Boy Blue, Robert Greenwald; Miss Muffet, Ethel Jones; Little Miss Ethicoat, Dorthea Crouch; Humpty Dumpty, Richard Kirkhart; Old Woman in the Shoe, Mary Lou Hales.

—Alfred Wright.

Write Christmas Rhymes

The upper grade classes have been writing Christmas rhymes in both the writing and English classes.

"Santa is a jolly old elf,
I have to laugh in spite of myself.
And when he comes on Christmas eve,
I'm sure a lot of nice toys he will leave.

"For a lot of nice little girls
He leaves pretty dolls with golden curls,
And for the boys who kindness claims,
He leaves puffing engines and roaring trains."

—La Vene Parks.

"I hope that Santa the dear old man
On this coming Christmas does the best that he can.
I hope he gives presents to each girl and boy.
For I know many who don't have one toy."

—Mildred Waterfield.

"Five little children were fast asleep
They were waiting for Santa down the chimney to creep.
They were Sally May, and Billy, Tom, Virginia Lee, and Minnie;
when 'Hush! Hush!' said Sallie May
'Here comes Santa in his sleigh.'
Then the children all went to sleep
When down the chimney Santa did creep."

—Muriel Snyder.

"Santa went to the chimney
To start his upward flight,
But I jumped and pulled him down
For I like him with all my might."

—Mercedes Kellough.

"Santa has an immense pack,
He brings lot of pleasure and toys;
For he has a true heart and a strong back
For the good girls and boys."

—Mollie Holzknecht.

Bird Exercises

The P.-T. A. canary thought that he should have exercise so he took it. The teacher in whose room he was, was cleaning his cage when he just slipped out before she knew it. He flew out and went on top of thewindow sill and he stayed there as long as he wanted to. The teacher had to call Mr. Skinner to help her catch him. They chase dhim and he flew up above the windows, and they really got tired, too. Mr Skinner tried to get him and finally just barely caught him.

—Marjorie Wonder.

Last week was Good Posture week. Every child was given a yellow tag on Monday. All who didn't have their tags taken from them were allowed to march in a good posture parade. Then the two best ones from each class were taken out of line for the final parade. The judges had a hard time deciding which two were the best. We all are glad that one girl out of the H6 class was the winner, Naomi Dennie. Walton Klepper of the L6 was the boy who had the best posture.

—Bertha Murillo.

We are making rhymes and jingles in Mrs. Rodgers' spelling classes with our spelling words. It is lots of fun to learn spelling this way. Try a rhyme yourself with the word Santa Claus and see how you like it.

—Du Vern Lambert.

Thursday, December 5, the Safety committee of McKinley school put on a play for the P.-T. A. It was about a careless boy who thought that he would cross the street. On Friday they played for the school children to teach them to obey the safety rules. The characters were: Policeman, Joe Sanford; Jack, Chester Clark; the boy on skates, Jesse Marroquin; the old woman, Naomi Dennie; the man, Thompson McNeal; doctor Raymond Clark; nurse, Marie Stuart; driver of the automobile, Lloyd Miller; Jor, Robert Horseman; school children, Lorraine Sweet, Virginia Davenport, Dorothy Waters, Marie Smith and Margaret Garrett.

—Chester Clark.

Last Monday the American Red Cross sent out a big card to be signed by all children who wished to join the American Junior Red Cross. All of the children who signed the card got a Red Cross button to wear. Your duty is to serve when you are called upon.

—Doris Poole.

Mrs. Stark's Low One class had 20 out of the whole class who were not absent or tardy for one month.

—Alfred Wright.

Naomi Dennie was the only girl last week in Santa Ana who made a perfect score in the standardized spelling test. There were 50 words.

—Marie De Loge.

Artesia School

The Girl Reserves went to the Y. W. C. A. last Thursday. We are going to have a party Saturday at the "Y." We are going to meet at our school. Miss Dorothy Cartwright is going to send some cars to take us over to the "Y." All of the other schools are going too.

—Jennie Canales.

Last week the third grade got the prize for having the least tardy slips. The prize was to go in the new school to see how it was and to see their room.

—Arthur Saldana.

Last week was good posture week at all the schools. Mrs. Ritter told us to stand for opening exercises as we always do. Then we chose the queen and king; Nellie Parra was the queen and Dagarerto Garcia was the king.

—Feliz Cruz.

We had 76 per cent in the school savings this week. Mrs. Abbey got the bank pennant for having the highest per cent of depositors putting money in the bank. She has not had the banner before.

—Lupe Hernandez.

Given Prizes

On last Monday, Mrs. Ritter gave a prize to all the ones who had perfect attendance for a month without being late. These are the ones who got a prize:

John C. Freemont

On Wednesday morning the pupils of John C. Fremont school had their annual Christmas program, which was as follows:

"Silent Night," by the school; "Christmas Bells," by kindergarten; songs by eight boys and eight girls from first grade.

A play by pupils of third grade.

A poem, "Santa Claus," Cleotilde Lucio and Mary Ruiz; song and acrostic by high first grade; song, "O Come All Ye Faithful," third grade; recitation by four girls from second grade; a song, "Who Will Buy My Toys?" five girls from pre-primer; song, "Away in a Manger," third grade; a play, "Christmas in Many Lands," fourth grade.

Folk dance by pupils from fifth grade; song, "Lullaby," Lillian Montana, and song, "Sextette," the sixth grade.

At the conclusion of the program the arrival of Santa Claus claimed the interest of everyone. With assistance of the teachers, he distributed presents. The gifts were made possible through the generosity of the Santa Ana B. P. O. E. Candy canes also added a festive note.

On Monday the school was presented with a delightful Christmas gift, a Victrola. For this much-needed addition, sincere thanks to Miss Carrie Seaton were extended.

Roosevelt School

Plans are getting under way for a real Christmas celebration at Roosevelt. Each class drew names and Wednesday when we had our Christmas parties, exchanged gifts. Miss Wirick's little kindergarten people had charge of the assembly.

Have New Mounts

The nature study room has three new bird mounts which have been done within the last two weeks. Merle Morris has done two, one of the western flycatch, and one of the sparrow hawk. Charles Swanner has made an interesting mount of California quail feathers.

Everyone at Roosevelt is rejoicing at the return of Miss Lindsay the history teacher, who was absent for a week on account of illness.

BATTLE FLEET TO LEAVE PORT FEB. 14

SAN PEDRO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The battle fleet of the U. S. navy will sail from here February 14 next for winter concentration and maneuvers in the Caribbean sea according to orders received from Washington.

The total force at the concentration will be 104 ships as against 180 at previous maneuvers. Only 84 units of the battle fleet will participate, the small number being due to modernization work and overhaul.

OLIVE

OLIVE, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Emilia Brelje arranged a pleasant surprise for her grand children, Irene and Mathilda Brelje, in her home Sunday afternoon in observance of their birthdays. After spending the afternoon at bunco and other games, lunch of chicken sandwiches, cake and ice cream was served to the following guests: Donald Timme, Dorothy Truempler, Elmer Lemke, Arthur Gollin, Melvin Boehner, Lawrence Timken, Arnold Boehner, Norman Schmid, Dorothy Luchau, Margaret Kreidt, Oscar Lieffers, Leora Matthews, Roy Truempler, Arthur Paulus, Henry Paulus, Irma Klassen, Walther Boehner, Hilma Krage, Elmer Luchau, Edna Heim, Alice Heinemann, Hildegard Boehner and Josephine Luchau. The Misses Irene and Mathilda were the happy recipients of many gifts.

William Luchau's was observed Sunday at a dinner given by his daughter, Mrs. A. Burdge, in her home, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luchau and children being present as guests with the Burdge family. After dinner the party repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luchau, where they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Eganton and children of Huntington Park, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Caldwell and children of Maywood, Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Meierhoff, the Rev. E. H. Kreidt and children to spend the afternoon and evening.

Ye Old Time Birthday club met recently in the home of Mrs. Oscar Gunther in Orange. Members present were Mrs. Lyman Gettins, of Santa Ana, Mrs. Henry Ehlen of Orange, Mrs. O. Burdg of Olive. Mrs. Fred Klaner was present as a guest of the club.

A quilting party was held in the home of Mrs. Hermann Meierhoff recently. After the quilting lunch was served by the hostess to the following: Mrs. Herbert Meierhoff, Mrs. Walther Otte, Mrs. Henry Luchau, Mrs. O. Burdge, Mrs. Arthur Brelje, Mrs. Walther Timme, Mrs. Emilia Brelje, Mrs. Elward Meierhoff, Mrs. Carl Liermann.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klaner and son, Frederick, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. Burdg Sunday.

Mrs. Edwin Brelje gave a party recently in observance of her husband's birthday. The evening was spent at cards, after which a luncheon of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paulus, Mrs. Emilia Brelje, Mrs. Martin Hemann and son Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brelje and daughters, Irene and Mathilda, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Paulus, Miss Florence Heim, Miss Meta Paulus, Robert, Harold and Arthur Paulus, and the guest of honor, Edwin Brelje.

SPRINGDALE

SPRINGDALE, Dec. 20.—Springdale school closed Tuesday afternoon for the Christmas holiday, which will extend over New Year's day, school to reopen January 2.

Christmas was observed in both rooms of the school on the closing afternoon. Santa appeared in Mrs. Randall's primary room and distributed candy to the children who exchanged gifts.

In Mrs. Young's room the upper grade children enjoyed their exchange of gifts and were given a Christmas treat by their teacher.

Mrs. George Crane has returned from a visit to Clearfield, Iowa, her former home, where she has been with a sister who is very low following an illness of several years duration. Members of the family met Mrs. Crane at Pomona and a family gathering had been prepared as a surprise for the traveller. A chicken supper was served, those present being Mr. and Mrs. Crane, S. J. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham and sons, of this place; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gisler of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gisler, of Talbert. Mrs. Crane's brother, Lee Wentzel, and family joined the family party after dinner.

Mrs. Irene Wentzel has been quite ill in her home since Friday of last week and has been under a nurses' care since Sunday. Improvement in her condition was noted Tuesday. Mrs. Johnson, nurse to George Gerhart, is caring for her.

Miss Gary, who teaches in the Christian college, Los Angeles, visited her father, J. R. Gary, one day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schonle and son spent Tuesday in Santa Ana.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Decker visited in Orange Saturday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Trickey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Graham were in Puente Sunday to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lyons and family.

Mrs. Albert Ruoff was a Los Angeles visitor on Wednesday.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

LOWER GAS RATES SEEN FOR LAGUNA

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 20.—That a reduction of gas rates throughout the territory served by the Southern Counties Gas company is possible, is the substance of a letter received by O. B. Dunham, secretary of the chamber of commerce, from the railroad commission.

The letter is in answer to one sent by Mr. Dunham for the civic body in which an investigation of the $1.25 monthly ready-to-serve was asked. The Realty board and the chamber of commerce have asked this, the latter making the formal request.

No promise was given in the letter to Mr. Dunham, signed by Leon O. Whitsell, member of the commission, as to the asked for reduction being given consideration at this time, the subject matter before the commission being a reduction in gas rates and not an elimination of the special monthly charge.

It is asserted locally that the charge may have been justified at the time the company extended its lines, but that since the extension of mains to Capistrano and San Clemente it becomes unfair to this community.

Election of directors comes before the chamber in January. Nomclosing date for them being December 24. Though John Jehle has made an energetic canvass to find persons who will serve, no nominations had yet been turned into Secretary Dunham on Wednesday.

'Our Dollar' Farm Center's Subject

YORBA LINDA, Dec. 20—George Kellogg, president of the Yorba Linda Farm center, has sent out invitations reminding people of the Farm Center dinner this evening. Phil Damon, manager of the Yorba Linda Citrus association, will talk on "Our Dollar, Here It Comes" and William Jerome, county assessor, will talk on "There It Goes."

Dinner will be served by the hostess committee, Mrs. A. C. Pickering, chairman, and all are invited to attend.

COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Arthur Fountaine, of Phoenix, is spending a few days in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gridley, on Balboa street. Mrs. Fountaine made the trip from Phoenix to Los Angeles by airplane.

Mr. and Mrs. Croft, residing on Thurin street, have had as guests in their home for several days, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Daily of Catalina Island. The Dailys are returning to their island home today.

Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Houston, accompanied by his mother, are leaving by motor car today for Dallas, Texas, where they expect to spend several days with relatives.

The H. L. Baird family had as guests in their home recently, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pitney, who after a short stay returned to their home in Long Beach yesterday.

The Loyal Workers, a Sunday school class of adults of the Community church, met in the church chapel last night for a short business session, their president, Roy Davis, presiding. Charles Kesel led in the devotionals. Those present were the Rev. A. F. House, the class teacher, Mrs. Grow S. Brown, Grow S. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman A. Daley, Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett, Charles Kesel, H. B. McMurtry, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Agnes Wright, Mrs. Willard Mellott, Mrs. Leroy Anderson and Miss Phyllis Greeley.

With the Rev R. L. Spicer of Los Angeles presiding, the regular weekly Bible study class met in the Ralph Viele home Monday evening, the Rev. Mr. Spicer discoursing on the books of the Hebrews. Those at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Straight, Jesse Viele and Mesdames Ralph Viele, E. M. Howson, C. C. Rittenhouse, Fred Watts, Dorothy Alleman, J. M. Galleghar, William Kerr, F. Rosenberg and C. M. Ulery.

ORANGE

ORANGE, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Jessie Stavig, who has been a visitor in the J. W. Armstrong home, has left over the Southern Pacific for her home in Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Bell, of 469 South Grand street, have bought a home at 1213 South Birch street, Santa Ana, and will move to that city in the near future.

C. W. Jordan of the Great Western Cordage company has left for San Francisco.

A family reunion is anticipated by the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Cole as the children of the family are all expected at home at the end of the week. Milton Cole, who is attending the agriculture college at Davis, has arrived home, Miss Katherine Cole, a teacher in the Pasadena public schools, will arrive home at the end of the week and is at present attending the institute in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Simmons and daughters, Katherine and Barbara Jean, will arrive from El Cajon Saturday to complete the family circle. Mrs. Simmons is the Coles' daughter.

James and Ross Simpson, sons of Mrs. Daisy Simpson, leave tonight for Keene, Kern county, for a hunting trip and a visit with their uncle, Erle Simpson.

Mrs. E. P. Crowley and daughter, Altha, of Sacramento, are guests in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Burns McAulay, North Glassell street. Mrs. Crowley is Mrs. McAulay's mother.

Following a custom of several years, Mrs. Clayton Rowell has presented the public library with a bunch of bitter-sweet gathered near the home of relatives in Iowa City, Ia.

Roy Edwards, who is an enthusiastic moving picture photographer as well as banker, exhibited a number of his pictures at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Muench Monday evening. Many of those present had the pleasure of seeing themselves on the screen. Those sharing the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Richards, Mrs. Daisy Simpson and children, Doreen James and Ross.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 20.—All but four pupils of the Westminster school who have been absent on account of scarlet fever quarantine were back in school Tuesday and on new cases of the disease have shown up within the last few days.

Prof. James Monroe, principal of the local school, has been able to discard his crutches, which he has been having to use since he tore loose an old wound in his foot recently when playing basketball on the school grounds.

George Houser, who had a leg quite badly injured when playing on the school merry-go-round, is able to be back in school again.

Frank Loftus lost about half an inch of two of the fingers of his left hand Tuesday when it became caught in the jointer while he was at work in the high school manual training department at Garden Grove, where he is a pupil.

Drill practice of the Aloha Rebekah lodge was held Monday evening in preparation for the installation service which is to be held on the evening of December 26. Practice is scheduled for Saturday evening also.

State Expected To Lead New York Car Registrations

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—California is on the verge of exceeding New York in passenger automobile registration, it was disclosed in a report on file with Governor Young today by B. B. Meek, director of public works.

On December 1 of this year New York's passenger car registration was 1,872,677. California's total for the same date was 1,872,099.

Although California has led the nation for some time in the number of registered automobiles per capita, it would not be surprising that 1930 will show California also leading in passenger car registrations, according to Meek.

LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 20.—Lions expect to be hosts to the Boy Scouts and to Scoutmaster Al Schleicher and Assistant Scoutmaster Hussell Hind Monday evening. Dan Grant and Robert N. Bowen are in charge of the affair.

St. Mary's Episcopal church will hold a holy communion service Christmas morning at 8 o'clock. The church will be decorated for the Sunday evening service preceding.

A Christmas musicale is planned by Miss Eleanor Mae Spencer for her students at the Spencer studio Saturday afternoon. Miss Spencer will give a farewell party in the evening. She is moving to Orange.

An effort is being made to raise funds for the float which it is expected will be entered in the Rose Tournament at Pasadena. The city has promised $50 of the money. Work is donated by members of the American Legion.

Audrey Allanson, 12-year-old son of H. D. Allanson, had his nose broken, lips cut and was badly bruised in a fall from a cliff in the extension of Boat canyon Sunday.

George A. Ragan, formerly of Santa Ana, has made arrangement to move with Mrs. Ragan to this city soon after the first of the year. He has purchased the residence of Dr. E. M. Mills. He will be associated with Ropp & Mackey.

Mrs. Maurice B. McMilland was hostess to the Duplicate Bridge club Monday in her home on Victoria drive. Prize winners were Mrs. J. Royster Helm and Mrs. Frank B. Champion.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hall, of Los Angeles, parents of Clyan H. Hall, of this city, are visiting in the latter's home over the holidays.

TUSTIN

TUSTIN, Dec. 20.—Master Roland Humeston is spending the week with his grandmother near Chino.

John D. Rinard, of Pasadena avenue, has been taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital for a minor operation.

Guest in the V. L. Humeston home Wednesday was Miss Margaret Humeston, of Long Beach.

Miss Louise Vance is spending the Christmas holidays in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Vance, of West Main street.

Mrs. Anna Heffley returned this week from Paloma, where she has been packing fruit.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Humeston motored to Chino last night to spend the Christmas holidays.

Charles K. Lewis, who is attending the California Institute of Technology, is expected home this week for the Christmas holidays.

Walter Huntley will return to his home this week for the Christmas holidays from California Institute of Technology.

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ware have left for a two weeks vacation in Arizona.

Students and faculty of Tustin union high school will enjoy an added vacation during Christmas holidays this year, and will return on the sixth of January, instead of the second.

Hubert Wakeham and Reginald Rust, who are attending Oregon Agricultural college, are expected home on Sunday for the Christmas holidays.

Miss Susan Shiffler returned yesterday from the Bible institute in Los Angeles, for the holidays.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 20.—Announcement of the postponement of the Rebekah and Odd Fellow Christmas tree is made. The tree was to have been held next Sunday evening but plans were changed on account of the breakout of another case of scarlet fever Wednesday, making it seem inadvisable to bring a crowd together.

Billy Clinton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Clinton, is the latest victime of the scarlet fever, the Clinton home having been put under quarantine Wednesday.

Mrs. Florence Summers, teacher of the adult classes in the Westminster Americanization school, gave a Christmas treat to her pupils and other Mexicans of the community Wednesday evening following class.

Teachers of the Westminster school go this evening and Saturday to Los Angeles to attend teachers' institute.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McCall and daughter, Miss Fay McCall, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Edward and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orel Hare and family, Mrs. Alice Hare were among local people who attended the student body play at Huntington Beach, "Why the Chines Rang."

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McCall entertained as their dinner guests, Mrs. McCall's cousin, V. M. Chesbro, and wife and two children, of Santa Monica.

The Reuben Edwards' home was released from scarlet fever quarantine Wednesday. One member of the family, Ralph, the oldest son, was ill with the disease.

Mrs. Nellie Groeschner, who attends U. C. L. A. came Wednesday evening with the close of the university to spend her vacation of two weeks at home.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNACK

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

At last the doll was fixed up right and Clowny said, "Now she's a sight that any little girl will love. I'm glad I sewed her dress." The doll said, "Thank you," with a smile. "I think I'll rest a little while. It isn't long until old Santa Claus starts off, I guess."

So to a little bed she went and dreamed about the big adventure that would come on Christmas morn'. My, what a lovely thought. A voice then rang out loud and clear. "Hey, Clowny Tinymites! Come here! The windup toys are out and there are things they must be taught."

'Twas Scouty who had yelled so loud. And Clowny joined the Tiny crowd. "My goodness," he exclaimed. "I never saw so many toys. I'm glad I've helped old Santa Claus with all his wondrous work because 'twill bring a heap of pleasure to a lot of girls and boys."

"Well, there is some work to do," snapped Coppy. "And it's up to you to lend a hand. Please wind some toys and see if they will run. You see 'twould be an awful fright if any were not working right. Just wind them up and make them walk. You'll find it lots of fun."

"Oh, sure, you can depend on me," said Clowny. "Let me have a key." And then he started winding things. His key went clickity-click. The other Tinies did the same and 'cross the floor the queer toys came. "Oh, watch them," shouted Carpy. "They are getting on real slick."

It was a funny sight to see. Each Tiny was busy as could be and all the windup toys a-walking round upon the floor. Old Santa shouted, "Well, there's lots of fun in store for real good tots." He watched the Tinies and the toys and then began to roar.

(The Tinymites get the reindeers in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

FORCES IN S. A. RECALL BATTLE MARKING TIME

Pending the filing of an injunction suit to restrain the city council from calling a recall election on the petition filed by the Citizens' league and possible action the council may take Monday night on the petition, the Greater Santa Ana association and the Citizens' league were marking time today.

The situation developing by the filing of the petition, the institution of an injunction suit to restrain the city from building a bridge across Santa Ana river and the proposed filing of an injunction suit to prevent the recall election had not changed today.

Fred Forgy, of the law firm of Scarborough, Forgy and Reinhaus, which firm has been retained by a property owner to prepare a complaint asking a court order to restrain the council from calling an election, said today that actual writing of the complaint has not as yet been started, but that investigations virtually had been completed of law points that would be involved in the proceedings.

Forgy expressed confidence in the grounds upon which the complaint would be based and asserted his belief that a restraining order would be granted.

According to the attorney there are many legal irregularities in the petition.

On the other hand, Wayne Goble, secretary of the Citizens' league, said today that competent attorneys have advised him that there are no fatal mistakes in the document.

OCEANVIEW

OCEANVIEW, Dec. 20.—The Oceanview Health center will not meet this month. The next meeting will be held January 24. All mothers of pre-school age children are invited to bring their children for examination. If the health center is not well attended it will have to be discontinued, so all interested are urged to attend.

The Oceanview school closed Wednesday afternoon for two weeks. School reopens on January 2. All teachers of the school provided treats in the way of candy or fruits for their classes. In the kindergarten an interesting program was given and mothers of pupils were guests. Each child had made a gift for his or her mother and at the conclusion of the program these were presented. Gifts were exchanged by the pupils and a special treat from Miss Fern Feaster was distributed. Gifts were exchanged in each class of the school.

The large quantity of clothing, fruits and toys which have been presented the local Parent-Teachers association to go to the Indian reservations, were shipped Thursday by Mrs. J. O. Irwin, who was in charge of the work here.

NEW YORK BONDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Price changes on the bond market today were characteristic of the narrow and irregular trend of the past week and activity was about evenly divided among the various sections of the list.

Credit conditions still remained at the recently "pegged" levels and therefore offered no incentive to increased activity on the part of bond markt traders and consequently values displayed little net change with the absence of operations.

Convertibles eased off after an early display of firmnes, with such issues as American Telephone 4½s, American Chemical 5½s and International Telephone 4½s selling off with their relative stocks. American International 5½s dropped all of a 1 point gain.

Rails appeared on the tape with typical frequence, but prices were not influenced by publication on a financial news ticker of the interstate commerce commission's consolidation plan. Such issues as Atchison 4½s, Missouri Pacific 4s of 1975, Pensylvania 5s and Nickel Plate 5½s, series A, were subject to fair turnover.

Industrials and utilities were dull little changed, while United States government issues moved irregularly in a narrow range, with Liberty 3½s off 1-32nd, while the first and fourth 4¼s were slightly higher. Firmness in European issues featured the foreign divison. South American loans were quiet and steady.

NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Further reaction in utility shares, after a period of narrow price movements in the earlier transactions, featured trading on the curb market today, with such issues as Electric Bond & Share, American Cities Power & Light, American & Foreign Power, Lisull Utilities and Standard Power & Light, in supply at concessions ranging to 3 points on a continuance of the recet selling pressure, largelyfor teh account of operators seeking to establish tax losses.

Renewed presure was also brought to bear on the Investment trusts and the steady downward movement in Prince and Whitely and Goldman Sachs was maintained, the former selling off a point and the latter fractionally. Bids for Lehman corporation and utility equities also found plenty of offerings.

Olisa nd mining stocks held within a narrow range for price movements Cities Service encountered goo dsupport on a slight recession, while other petroleums were also little changed. Newmont sagged more than a point in the mining division. Characteristics recent dullness prevailed in the industrial list, while amusements were featured by an adters A in the face of further heavy vance of almost a point in Fox theadepression in Fox shares on the big board.

L. A. PRODUCE

LOS ANGELES, Dec 20.—(UP)—A slight improvement in buying was noticeable on the Los Angeles market today although prices showed little change.

Apples remained steady. Loose Fuerte avocados were 50-60c and Pueblas at 45-50c a lb. Fancyp Kentucky Wonder beans from San Diego county brought 16-18c. San Diego county lima beans were 11-12c a lb.

Good local cabbage was 75c-01.00 a crate. Fairly good snowball cauliflower was at 50-65c a crate.

Venice Celery was 02.00-$2.25 a crate.

Eggplant from San Diego county and the Coachella valley moved slowly at 8-9c a lb. for the best. Grapes were in lights upply, a few cornichons from the San Joaquin valley being sold at 5-5½s a lb. Imperial valley grapefruit held steady at $4.75 a box for fancy 64s with 80s at $4.20 to $4.50 and 100s at $4.50. Fancy oCachella valley grapefruit sold at $5.25-$5.50 a box for the 64 size with 80s at $4.50-$4.75 while a little extra fancy stock was sold at higher figures. Some good San Diego county dry pack lettuce was $2.25-$2.50 a crate. Oranges continued in firm position especially on the smaller sizes of fancy packed navels. Loose standard navels from Tulare county remained unchanged and sold at $2.75 a box for large fruit with medium sizec at $1.75-$2.00.

Imperial valley peas were 8-9c a lb. Best California wonders from San Diego county were 15-17c al b. New potatoes from San Diego county wer sold at 5-7c a lb. Italian squash was 75c a lug. Summer squash was $2.00-$2.25 a lug. Tangerines from Bakersfield and the Imperial valley moved fairly well at mostly 8c a pound in jobbing quantities.

SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—The highest temperature here Wednesday was 89 and the lowest 65. The mean temperature was 72. The sun shone for more than 50 per cent of the time. It was the first time in the Spanish village's history that official weather observations had been made. This city now has a governmental co-operative weather station. Plans have been laid to make it an official station.

Ray Barnett of the engineering office is San Clemente's weather man.

Bill McLaughlin leaves Sunday for Independence, Kans., to visit his family over the holidays. McLaughlin states that he will return to the Spanish village in the spring.

Jimmy Bennett, fire chief, has received a check for $25 for the firemen's fund for the efficient work of the San Clemente department in putting out a fire at San Juan Capistrano earlier in the week.

ORDINANCE NO. 903

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SANTA ANA DECLARING RESULT OF ELECTION IN "GLORIETTA ADDITION."

WHEREAS, a special election was held in that territory known as "Glorietta Addition" on Thursday, the 5th day of December, 1929, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of June 11, 1913, relating to the annexation of territory to municipalities, and found in the Statutes of 1913, Page 587, as subsequently amended, at which election there was submitted the question of whether said new territory hereinafter described should be annexed to, incorporated in and made a part of the City of Santa Ana; and

WHEREAS, notice of said election was given by publication, in the time, form and manner as required by said Act, as appears from the affidavit of Laurine E. Arguello of the Orange Daily News, on file with the City Clerk; and

WHEREAS, it appears that said special election was held in accordance with law and said notice on Thursday, the 5th day of December, 1929, and that the polls for said election were kept open during the time required by law, to-wit, from six o'clock A. M. to seven o'clock P. M. of said day, and that said special election was held and conducted, and the votes received and canvassed, and the result thereof determined and declared, in the time, form and manner required by law; and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Santa Ana did on Monday, the 9th day of December, 1929, being the time provided for its regular meeting next after the expiration of three (3) days from and after the date of said election, meet and proceed to canvass the returns of said special election as required by law.

WHEREUPON, the result of said canvass having been found to be as hereinafter stated;

The City Council of the City of Santa Ana do ordain as follows:

1. That the new territory proposed to be annexed to said City of Santa Ana as aforesaid is particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Situated in the County of Orange, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Main Street with the center line of Delhi Road, said point being a point on the Boundary line of the City of Santa Ana, California; thence Easterly along said Boundary line and along the center line of Delhi Road to an intersection with the Northerly extended Easterly line of Emmett's Addition as per map thereof on file in Miscellaneous Maps, Book 8, Page 13, Records of Orange County, California; thence Southerly along the Northerly extended Easterly line and along the Easterly line of said Emmett's Addition to an intersection with the Northerly line of the Pacific Electric Railway Company's Right-of-way; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Northeasterly corner of Emmett's Addition No. 3, as per map thereof on file in Miscellaneous Maps, Book 8, Page 55, Records of Orange County, California; thence Southerly along the Easterly line of said Emmett's Addition No. 3, and along the Southerly extension of said line to an intersection with the center line of Dyer Road; thence Westerly along the center line of Dyer Road to an intersection with the center line of Main Street; thence Northerly along the center line of Main Street to the point of beginning.

2. That there was but one election precinct established and provided for the holding of said special election, the boundaries of which were the boundaries of said territory.

3. That the whole number of votes cast upon said proposition in the territory to be annexed as aforesaid was Twenty-seven, and the number of votes cast therein in favor of annexation was Seventeen and the number of votes cast therein against annexation was Ten; and

WHEREAS, it appears from the canvass of the returns of said election held in the territory proposed to be annexed to said City of Santa Ana that the majority of all the votes cast in said outside territory on the question of said annexation are in favor of annexation.

IT IS FURTHER ORDAINED, that the annexation of said teritory be and the same is hereby approved, and it is hereby ordered that a certified copy of this Ordinance, giving the date of its passage under the seal of said City of Santa Ana, be transmitted to and filed with the Secretary of the State of California, from and after the date of which filing the annexation of such territory shall be deemed to be complete, and thencaforth said annexed territory shall be to all intents and purposes a part of the City of Santa Ana.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, that a record be made and entered upon the minutes of the City Council showing the total number of votes cast upon said question at said election, the number thereof cast in favor of annexation, and the number thereof cast against annexation.

The City Clerk is hereby directed to cause this ordinance to be published three (3) times in the Santa Ana Daily Evening Register, a daily newspaper of general circulation published and circulated in said City of Santa Ana, and hereby designated for said purpose, by said City Council.

36 Household Goods

A MOST USEFUL GIFT

If you had the magic power, your Christmas gift to your family this year would be—Health and Happiness. That would be the greatest gift of all.

That's what I had in mind last Christmas, (1928) so I purchased a General Electric Refrigerator with all the latest "do-dads," cold control and all and that was my Christmas gift to my family.

We used it for 5 months and then circumstances made a change of residence necessary. The new home we leased had a refrigerator built in it, so we have had no use for our machine, it has been in storage at a G. E. store since July and is in 100% perfect condition, cannot be told from a new one and as we have no use for it we are going to sell it at a very substantial discount.

It is a large machine, containing 12¾ square feet of shelf or "loading" space, costing $395.00 and can be purchased at a bargain price. Can be seen at 505 So. Main St., Santa Ana.

FOR SALE—Baby bed. 517 Pacific, Santa Ana.

EXPLOITING THE CHILDREN

We believe in free speech. We are not fearful in this country of a Bolshevist revolution where the great mass of our people are comfortable and contented, and where the door of opportunity is still open to the aggressive and energetic seeker. Such great social upheavals come only in countries which, like France before the revolution of 1789, or Russia before the revolution of 1917, have become the despair of the masses. So long as Communists talk and rave, it is good policy to let them alone. Repression only gives their utterances an importance they do not actually have.

But when these Communists exploit their children, sending them to make a nuisance of themselves as they did at a recent meeting of the City Council of Cleveland and before the White House in Washington, our patience is about exhausted. It only illustrates the desperate failure of this group to attract public attention when they throw their children into the breach to arrest attention. They themselves are but strident voices crying in the wilderness. There is no one to listen. Therefore the exploitation of the children is their last line of reinforcements. Mr. Hoover was right when he ordered the police to release the children from jail and take them home to their parents. And the Cleveland authorities acted wisely when they corraled them all and gave them a ride home.

We only hope that those who are ready to suppress and to club and to throw these malcontents in prison will learn wisdom by letting these Communists orate to their heart's content, so long as they do not disturb the peace or interfere with the liberty of others. To take their orations seriously is to admit that they are a menace. This they are not. There is a general indifference to their economic doctrines. Keep the door of opportunity open to every one. Let the powerful rich think of the social good as much as their own good. See to it that justice is meted out evenly to all. With that the Communists in the United States will continue to cry in the wilderness. Even the exploitation of their innocent children will not aid them.

One Massachusetts high school is said to have a football field but no class building. Well, they're starting the right way, anyhow.

IMPROVING OUR FOREIGN SERVICE

Time was when anyone could serve his country at foreign courts. Our isolation and our aloofness from world affairs only required that we should send to foreign courts a gentleman of means who could tag along in the procession of diplomats at some social function and not look too disreputable. Those were the days when lame ducks, who had been defeated for Congress at a previous election, were sent to Peru or some other country for a holiday. Or it might be that a man of large wealth with a socially ambitious wife, who had contributed to the party campaign fund, was rewarded with a foreign post. We could name such. Some of them were sent to Mexico, but snarled things up for us there. Some were sent to Italy and played at ecclesiastical politics, as one did there. Some even coveted the Oriental splendors of Teheran or Cabul.

That is of the past. The United States is a World Power today. Since the war the United States has taken a place beside Great Britain and ahead of France and Germany and Italy in all the capitals of the world. Our investments and interests everywhere make it necessary that men of diplomatic and statesmanlike ability, men who speak the language of the country to which they are designated, who have some knowledge of the country and the people, shall be our ambassadors at foreign courts. President Hoover aims to make our diplomatic and consular representatives the peers of those from any country in the world. Perhaps, like Great Britain, we shall develop a diplomatic caste whose wisdom and courtliness will win the respect and the admiration of the nations. We are on the way. Poilticians out of a job no longer need apply.

A vegetarian who neither smokes nor drinks has just celebrated his 101st birthday. It must have seemed longer than that, however.

THE EASTERN STORMS

It is remarkable that since coming to California we find that the blizzards and zero weather back in the Middle West are so disastrous and terrible in their havoc.

We didn't know it when we were there, we were so close to it. It is strange how we have to get far away and see things through a telescope in order to see them at all. By the descriptions coming over the wires, we would not be in them, but at that, just at this season, we have an old pair of shoes that we would be willing to give for just five minutes of that. Yes, we will throw in our hat.

INVESTMENTS IN LATIN AMERICA

The World's Peace Foundation, organized through the bequest of Edwin Ginn, the publisher of Boston, has been doing a great deal in bringing to the public the facts underlying international relations. Its occasional pamphlets, which are sent to any one for $1 a year, are worth more than can be gotten anywhere for ten times the price. It is a pity that the work of that foundation is not better known, and that there are not many more who invest a dollar annually to get its pamphlets.

The latest pamphlet, containing nearly three hundred pages, is a detailed presentation of the investments of United States capital in the Latin-American countries, and the general facts which are related to the subject. Here one may learn something about the character of all the South American countries, the nature of their products, their financial condition, their exports and imports, the capital of other countries than the United States invested, as well as the far reaching international significance of foreign investments. Not only the government, and pretty much all the provinces and municipalities of the various republics are indebted to foreign capital, but the mineral resources, the great utility companies, the banks, and the industries are controlled by foreign capital. Standard Oil, American and Foreign Power, the packing industries of the United States, Mining and Fruit Companies, all have large holdings. The First National Bank of Boston owns a $5,000,000 bank building in Buenos Aires, the finest bank building in South America.

This study shows how much American business has, through the investment of capital, penetrated every single phase of South American society, and how essential it is that good will should exist between us and those countries. Should a spirit of strife arise in Latin-America toward the United States, it would be as destructive of American capital as a civil war right here in our own country. There is little doubt that large investments of capital by one country in another country, especially when these countries can furnish considerable resistance to each other's demands, is a strong deterrent of war between such countries. When, however, the lending nation is much stronger than the borrowing nation, then there is the tendency, as has been the case in Colombia, Haiti, and Nicaragua, for the stronger country to intervene in the domestic affairs of the weaker, with the result that the loss of life and money may be greater than the amount of the investments involved.

A presentation such as is made in the pamphlet mentioned marks the importance of amicable relations between this country and the countries where so much of our capital is invested. It also calls for a high order of diplomatic representation. This latter fact is evident in the successful work of Mr. Morrow in Mexico, who in a few brief months changed the relations between the United States and Mexico from suspicion and conflict to friendship and confidence.

KEARNEY SITE APPROVED

The Navy General Board has put the stamp of its approval upon Camp Kearney as the Pacific Coast dirigible base site. This support of Secretary Adams and Rear Admiral Moffatt will go far, undoubtedly, to convince Congress of the value of the San Diego site, and bring the base to Southern California.

It is unfortunate that Orange County could not have had this boom to her prosperity, but as we could not, we had rather see it, of course, come to San Diego than go north. We still believe the natural advantages of an Orange county site are superior to those of any other point on the coast.

Bigger Lunches in Sight As Dress Styles Change

San Bernardino Sun

A few short months ago the 18-day diet, credited to Hollywood, swept the country. Slimness and straightness were the qualities sought for the feminine figure. Suddenly this has changed. The new feminine dress styles are said to make five or ten pounds more flesh desirable.

In the community where most American movies are made, a restaurant hostess says the average luncheon check of screen actresses has recently increased by 20 or 25 cents over the average check of the past five years. She says:

They're all eating more. They all watch their weight, even now, but the new styles and the return of contours give them more leeway. They go back to the foods they ate as children. You'd be surprised at the crowd that consumes oatmeal and cornmeal mush now. The foreign stars are giving orders for cheese and salads. All are eating candy.

What is good in the matter of clothes and diet in Hollywood is pretty sure to be good in other places. Lunch counter and restaurant proprietors ought to be pleased. So should the prosperity boosters, who want more money kept in circulation. And so should the doctors, who have been warning against the starvation diet.

Gains In State Wealth

Oakland Tribune

The way California is forging ahead is revealed in the totals of individual and corporation income taxes collected under the Federal laws. The state which ranks eighth in the census population figures now ranks fifth in the list of income tax returns and has moved close to fourth position.

New York, of course, is first. The center of individual and corporation wealth has an income tax collection of 744 million dollars. Illinois has moved Pennsylvania out of second place with 217 millions while the Quaker commonwealth has 208. The great automotive industry has kept Michigan in its fourth place with 140 millions and then comes California with the magnificent figure of 130 millions. In other words, California leads all the eastern states save New York and Pennsylvania, leads Ohio and everything in the Middle West save Illinois and Michigan.

The figures show the material prosperity of a state which is yet young in an industrial way. They are truly amazing.

THE PIRATE

If Bill were older
(And quite a little bolder)
And didn't need
All day to heed
What older people said,
He'd be a pirate skipper
And sail a rakish clipper,
And night and day
He'd rob and slay
Until her decks ran red.

He'd spare the honest sailors
On merchantmen and whalers,
His trim-built craft,
Armed, fore and aft,
For them should have no fears.
But he would take rare pleasure
In capturing the treasure
That was the fruit
Of evil loot
By sinful buccaneers.

But when the day was over
The brave and daring rover
Who had not paled
Nor flinched nor quailed
Through perils and alarms,
Would dock his rakish vessel
And comfortably nestle
(All danger past,
And safe at last)
In mother's sheltering arms.

When Steadier Jobs Are Made

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Dulcey could almost appreciate the feeling of the chorus girl who didn't want a book for Christmas, because she HAD a book. Dulcey also had a book—a book of mingled grief and comfort. She was poring over it now. It was a bank book.

"You needn't grin, Sam," she said, catching her husband's eyes. "You'd be surprised how much you can learn from one of these things."

"I've learned a few things from that book myself," Sam admitted. 'Prominent Figures That Have Influenced My Life.'"

"I'm studying their jumps," said Dulcey. "Last year we had 5438 saved, and then—"

"And then came the dawn of a new lay-off."

"You didn't get steady work until March, and we—"

"Yes, we had to live. At least," said Sam, apologetically, "we thought so. And by March the little old savings account passed out with pernicious anemia. Then—"

"In August," said Dulcey, consulting the oracle, "we had $214, and then—"

"We took another vacation, at the suggestion of the front office."

"If," said Dulcey wistfully, "you only had steady work—"

"We could save ourselves right into the income-tax class. Puzzle: find the steady work."

"But, Sam, there MUST be a way—"

"So you and President Hoover agree!" said Sam, admiringly.

"What do you mean, agree?"

"President Hoover," informed Sam, kindly, "is much concerned with that problem, which ought to mean—"

"What? For goodness' sake!"

"Which ought to mean," concluded Sam, dramatically, "when steadier jobs are made, America will make 'em."

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

HOW MANY SCHOOLS ARE ENOUGH?

The United States expends more money on schools and colleges than all the rest of the world.

A larger proportion of young and old attend school in the United States than in any other nation.

Here and there, now and then, rumbles of rebellion are heard from critics and taxpayers.

A way must be found to cut the cost of schooling, is a cry that becomes more frequent every year.

All along, I have emphasized the obvious fact that, if costs must be cut, there are two ways the cutting can be affected, viz.:

From the outside—with an ax.

From the inside—with analysis.

Obviously the second way stands the chance of being the more intelligent.

If the cost of schooling must be cut, it should be cut as a result of educational reassessment and reorganization rather than as a result of financial restriction.

It may well be that very material sections of our highly developed school system have been created by the inventive genius of schoolmen rather than in answer to real needs of students.

For instance, David Snedden, professor of education in Columbia University, looks with a very skeptical eye on the elaboration of nursery schools and kindergartens for the general run of normal children.

He thinks that it is only a small proportion of children from four to six years of age that need educational agencies to supplement their homes. And certainly, he thinks, schools should be provided for children from two to four years of age only when their family conditions are abnormal.

It is his considered judgment that it would be a decided advantage to withhold altogether from school attendance until nine or even ten years of age children of superior intellectual heredity whose family surroundings are normal and wholesome.

He thinks that, save from the other than normal run of children in good village or suburban homes, most of the new "child-centered schools" provide stories, music, toys, manipulative arts, and companionship in excess, that their daily programs are too regimented, their activities too directed, emergencies too thoroughly anticipated, and their co-operations too enforced.

For perhaps sixty per cent of small children in America, Dr. Snedden thinks the normal home is all the organized educational opportunity that is needed.

He recognizes, of course, that we need nursery schools and kindergartens for children who in themselves or in their homes represent the exceptional or abnormal minority, and he gives his blessing to agencies of experimentation on problems of child guidance, but he holds a doubting finger before the indiscriminate and expensive elaboration of a nation-wide nursery and kindergarten system.

I do not say dogmatically that Dr. Snedden is right at every point; I suggest only that it is this sort of educational analysis that opens up the only intelligent way to face the problem of educational cost.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE TANGIBLE THINGS

Little children can understand only the tangible things, the things they can touch and taste and use for their own purposes. They scarcely understand our words. We have to go slowly in the beginning. Use simple words, the names of things first of all, for things are what children deal with, not ideas. These grow out of their experience with things, tangible things.

"I don't know what is wrong with Susie. Her cards came home with a poor conduct mark because she talks too much. I promised her a new dress if she got a better mark this month and it's just as bad."

A reward a month away is not a tangible thing to the child and he cannot get excited about it. He means well. He means to please you and get the reward as well, but a month away—That does not touch him. The reward must be immediate, following close to the good deed. And it must be a tangible one if it is to work well.

Praise accompanies the tangible evidence of well doing, of course. Children cherish kind words and smiles. But they value things that come with the smiles and kind words, too, and because they are very material things we try to see that they get all the experience with things in this stage of their growth. Children you see, are thing-minded. Ideas are to grow from the experiences with things and people and processes but the things come first.

Shy children are helped by the use of things rather than through words. You can tell a shy child that nobody is going to eat him; that nobody is going to care whether he sits or stands, does or doesn't do; that all he has to do is to enter the room and sit down. But you might as well save your breath for fear, such as possesses the shy child, is not blown away with your breath. It must be driven away by contact with comforting, physical contact with things.

When you want a shy child to enter a room where your guests are seated give the child something to carry in his hands, and something to do with that thing. Let him carry in a small tray of refreshments and pass them and try not to center attention upon him. Forget him after he starts his round. The tangible tray and his task will help him think away from himself and that is the very best cure for shyness you ever found.

I have no fear that the child will grow to be material minded because of his acquaintance with things. He is a spiritual being but his spirit must be born in truth and the beginnings of truth for us lie in the things about us. By and by the ideas for which they stand reach our consciousness and we are freed of the weight of material things and live on in the intangible realm of the soul.

The spiritual being is a matter of lifetime growth, however. So begin with things.

ASKING $100,000 damages, F. C. Finkle, who acted as consulting engineer for the Water Users' association here during the recent flood control campaign, today directed a libel suit against Horace C. Head, attorney for the flood control district, basing his case on statements made by Head in a published article dealing with the engineering record of Finkle.

Finkle flatly denied the truth of the statements made by Head, declared that the assertions had been made with the intent to injure his reputation and that they had damaged him as an engineer, a business man and a citizen.

In his complaint Finkle denied the truth of the following statements in the article written by Head:

1. That he ever was discharged by the Edison company from his position as chief hydraulic engineer;

2. That whenever any plan is proposed by others he will sell his services to its opponents for the purpose of criticising or opposing the project;

3. That he ever offered his services to the city of Riverside in litigation between that community and San Bernardino, or that he was told his services were not wanted, or that he then testified on the opposite side for San Bernardino;

4. That he ever testified as an expert witness for C. Echenique, of San Juan Capistrano in accordance with Echenique's contentions, or that later, when the same matter was involved in litigation, he testified in the opposite manner for either parties;

5. That Los Angeles attorneys and judges have declared his tes-

ALASKA AVIATORS ON RESCUE FLIGHT

NOME, Alaska, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Pilots Joe Crosson and Charley Gilliam took off from Teller at 10 a. m. today to fly across the Bering straits to Siberia in search of Capt. Ben Eielson and Elmer Borland, who have been missing for more than a month.

The two pilots flew Waco Stearman planes and their projected rescue flight was considered extremely hazardous and daring due to the poor visibility over the route.

Heaviest Snowfall in Over Ten Years Covers Entire Middle West

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Mid-America wore a thick vestment of snow today as the aftermath of a two-day blizzard and cold wave that wreaked havoc of disaster proportions.

Not in 11 years has such a snowfall been known in the midwest. More than 15 inches had fallen in many localities. The official measurement in Chicago was 14.8 inches. That was within .1 inch of the all time record.

Homeless men crowded relief agencies and public buildings. All who were physically able were given shovels and put to work clearing the snow piles from city streets.

Cost of the storm in dollars was mounting into the millions. Fires added perils to life and took their toll of property. Shipping was severely crippled by thudding

VICTIMS OF MINE DISASTER BURIED

McALESTER, Okla., Dec. 20.—(UP)—A long procession of conveyances wound through the streets today with 25 caskets bearing the bodies of Mexican victims of the Old Town mine disaster.

While a priest read the burial service, the caskets were lowered into a long trench that had been dug by 50 convicts from the Oklahoma state penitentiary. Stores were closed and the town joined the relatives of the Mexican miners in mourning.

Burials will continue through today, tomorrow and Sunday, until the last of the 59 bodies recovered have been laid away.

Two miners, a Mexican and a Negro, still were missing.

PROHIBITION SHARPEN TEETH OF PROHIBITION

Georgia Senator Seeking to Increase Appropriations To Carry on Work

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—For the first time since prohibition, the drys are on the legislative warpath.

With the wets more or less quiet since the last election, the congressional drys are formulating a plan to sharpen the teeth of prohibition.

This plan, to be started after the holidays, is twofold:

First, to see that all necessary funds are furnishing to federal endorsement agencies in appropriation bills for the next year and second to conduct a congressional inquiry on the possibility of coordinating existing enforcement agencies from an administrative standpoint.

In furtherance of the first project, Senator Harris, dry Georgia Democrat, has pending in the senate a resolution to call upon President Hoover for a preliminary report from his law enforcement commission. As an advocate of increased appropriations for enforcement, Harris wants to develop what the commission has learned thus far regarding enforcement needs.

Harris would like to boost the appropriations even above the figures proposed by President Hoover in his budget message. Mr. Hoover recommended $15,200,000 for the

50 INJURED IN SUBWAY TUBE IN NEW YORK

Short Circuit Causes Panic During Early Morning Rush of Workers

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The spark of a short circuit caused a panic on an inbound train of the Brooklyn Manhattan [illegible] today and sent [illegible] scurrying [illegible] clouded tunn[illegible] officials [illegible] been tr[illegible] said [illegible] was seriously hurt. Sixteen of the 50 were subsequently taken to St. John's hospital, Long Island City, where it was said their conditions were not critical.

John Corbey, motorman of the train, said he had just taken his cars into the tunnel that leads to Manhattan. It was the height of the rush hours, passengers were packed in tightly and the train was proceeding at a moderate speed.

Suddenly there was a flash on the floor of the tunnel and smoke rolled up into the first car. Corbey threw on his emergency brakes.

The smoke brought panic; passengers shoved through the narrow car doors toward the rear of the train; screaming women smashed at windows with their fists and the air was thick with flying glass.

Patrolman Thomas J. Smith, a passenger, clubbed his way through the crowd and forced the panic stricken passengers into some semblance of order. Within 10 minutes passengers were trickling out the rear door of the last car into the smoky tunnel.

Inside the train, however, the confusion added to the terror. Passengers shouted that the whole train was on fire and memories of the disastrous Times Square Subway wreck caused a riot.

Smith stood at the rear entrance and directed the passengers onto the narrow catwalk in the tunnel, sending them back through the smoke toward Queensborough Plaza station.

B. M. T. officials said the fire was confined to the first car, but an immense amount of smoke gave passengers the impression that flames were eating into the floors of all six cars.

The fire was extinguished less than a half hour after it had started, but many of the smoke grimed passengers who fought their way out to the Queensborough end of the tunnel had to be treated for shock and cuts caused by the flying glass.

Allegations Of Property Owners Denied

City Attorney Asks Action Be Dismissed and Costs Against Plaintiff

FILING LATE this afternoon a demurrer and answer to the suit filed by property owners in the West Orange district asking a court order restraining the city of Santa Ana from constructing a trestle bridge across the Santa Ana river, City Attorney [illegible] Swanner, alleges, among other things, that the complaint is ambiguous and that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. The answer makes general denial of all allegations made in the complaint.

The city proposes construction of the bridge as part of the program for opening and improving Santa Ana boulevard. The property owners, represented in the complaint filed by Attorney H. C. Head, allege that building of the bridge would result in possible clogging of the river in times of heavy floods with consequent damages to their properties by overflow water from the river.

The answer denies "that for a distance of more than a quarter of a mile above and below the place where it is proposed by the defendants to construct a wooden pile trestle bridge across the Santa Ana river, that the said Santa Ana river has banks not more than three to four feet high, or that the river bed has been so filled with silt by flood waters that it is almost on the level with the land adjacent to said river, or much higher to the lands to the south or southwest or southeast of the aforesaid place where it is proposed to construct a wooden pile trestle bridge across the Santa Ana river, or much higher than the lands of the plaintiff."

Admitting that the plan "adopted for the construction of said bridge provides for six or more parallel rows of wooden piling," the answer denies "that they will be driven at close intervals in the bed of said river;" that the bridge "at the place mentioned in the complaint would quickly, or otherwise, cause a dam to be formed by debris or silt lodging against said bridge during a storm, or when flood waters were going down the river, or at all, or would force the said waters out of the river bed, or upon or across lands owned by the plaintiffs, or either of them."

In conclusion, the attorney in his

TEXANS WORRIED BY CLOSING OF BORDER

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20.—(UP)—While commercial interests became increasingly alarmed by the closing of the port of Laredo, Governor Dan Moody communicated with the state department at Washington today in an effort to smooth out incidents blamed for the withdrawal by the Mexican government of its consulate at Nuevo Laredo.

Mexican Consul H. Enrique Santisbanez closed his office ostensibly in protest against actions of District Attorney John Valls on the Texas side. Valls refused Santisbanez's pleas for diplomatic immunity for General Plutarco Calles in connection with the slaying of two Mexican officers seven years ago.

The controversy moved to the state house here when merchants of Laredo informed Governor Moody that the closing of the port had caused serious economic consequences on both sides of the border.

Former President Of Neon Company Accused of Bigamy

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20 (UP).—Thomas C. Jones, former president of the General Neon company here, arrested recently in Kansas City on charges of issuing worthless checks, today faced an indictment charging him with bigamy.

The grand jury returned the indictment yesterday upon complaint of Mrs. Margaret Mattieks Brenholts, who was married to Jones in Nashville, Tenn., after he allegedly told her he was single.

Jones was said to have married Mrs. Irene Jones in Los Angeles and later abandoned her in Detroit.

Mrs. Brenholts, police said, was divorced from her first husband, a wealthy Columbus, O., business man, some time ago.

John Lenson, assistant circuit attorney, said he believed Jones might have married other women under similar circumstances.

BRUSH FIRE THREATENS TO DESTROY EXCLUSIVE HOMES

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—(UP)—A brush fire raging in the Griffith park hills and threatening scores of exclusive residences became so serious today that an appeal for volunteers was broadcast from radio stations.

The blaze started in Vermont canyon, not far from the imposing home of Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, and was quickly whipped out of control by a 40-mile wind.

All available fire equipment was called out and when it was evident that firemen could not halt the flames, Boy Scouts and other organizations were called to the aid.

Finally a general appeal was broadcast over the radio.

Five men were injured seriously in traffic crashes that resulted from the rush of fire fighters to the scene.

Four of the men hurt were employees of the city water department. The truck in which they were enroute to the fire turned over.

J. B. Dollar was injured critically and G. E. Davis, J. H. Calvin and R. H. Montoya suffered minor hurts.

M. J. Lakey, a fireman, was struck down by an automobile and was injured seriously.

Shortly afternoon firemen reported that 600 acres of land has been burned over. No homes had been destroyed, it was said, and fighters were concentrating on keeping the flames away from residences.

Twenty acres of flowers in the nursery of A. H. Kuromi were ruined by the flames and the heat.

Billows of smoke made it difficult to determine the progress of the flames.

Sling-shots and clubs were wielded by the young boys in the district as swarms of rats, rabbits, squirrels and gophers swarmed from the brushland.

FITTS TO BE CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA, SAYS RICHARDSON

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Buron R. Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney and former lieutenant governor of California, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor at the 1930 primaries.

This prediction was contained in a statement to the United Press today by Friend W. Richardson, who definitely eliminated himself from the race and placed his support behind the Los Angeles prosecutor.

Richardson said:

"Buron Fitts has made the most fearless and honest district attorney the state has ever had.

"He has brought underworld, political, official and wealthy criminals to justice.

"He is well qualified for governor of California.

"Every voter who believes: that the present orgy of state extravagance should be stopped, that the laws should be rigidly enforced and criminals brought to justice and that our great California president, Herbert Hoover, should be sustained—should urge Buron Fitts to become a candidate for governor."

Although Richardson urged that Fitts be "drafted" as a candidate, political observers at Sacramento read between the lines that an agreement between the two has already been reached, and that a formal announcement from Fitts will follow in a few days.

The Richardson statement culminates a series of conferences held between the two for the last week. On Tuesday Richardson told newspapermen, "You may say that either Fitts or I will run for governor."

Fitts, a native of Texas, came to California with his parents in 1906. He is a law graduate of the University of Southern California, being admitted to the bar in 1916. In the World war he served in France with the 91st division and was wounded in the Meuse-Argonne.

In 1920 Fitts was appointed deputy district attorney of Los Angeles and in 1923 was advanced to chief deputy. He was elected

CARLIN APPOINTED TO NEW POSITION

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Appointment of Keith Carlin, former private secretary to Governor Young, to the post of attorney for the state department of professional and vocational standards, to take effect January 1 was announced here yesterday by the governor.

Carlin has been in the governor's office for three years, first as executive secretary and later as private secretary. His resignation was announced a few weeks ago, before leaving on a trip to Virginia to take effect the same date he begins his new duties.

NAVY REDUCING SOLUTION NOW UP TO ENGLAND

United States and Japan in Accord on Slashes As Result of Parley

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP).—Great Britain will be compelled to say "yes" or "no" to actual naval reduction in London next month it appeared today as Washington pondered results of American-Japanese conversations here.

The Japanese delegates to the London conference left Washington yesterday.

While here they forecast actual naval reduction in the following words, uttered by former Premier Wakatsuki.

"The termination of competitive armaments and a positive reduction in naval strength may, we believe, be looked for as the outcome (of the London conference)."

The Japanese impressed Washington officials with the strength of their strategorical position at London. They want 70 per cent of the world's largest 10,000 ton cruiser fleet. They have built or building 12 craft of that type. That number would approximate 70 per cent of the 18 big cruisers

Accident Worst of Year In Washington—Party On Way to Xmas Holidays

SHIP FALLS 100 FEET

Secretary of Solon Was on Way to Springfield to See His New-born Babe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The worst airplane tragedy of the year here occurred today at Bolling field when five men, including Representative Kaynor, Republican, Massachusetts, and his secretary Stanley B. Love, were instantly killed.

They were bound to arrange family Christmas festivities when their lives were crushed out without an instant's warning.

The dead:

Representative William K. Kaynor, Republican, Springfield, Mass., member of the house military affairs committee.

Stanley B. Love, age 40, his secretary, Springfield, Mass., former newspaperman.

Captain Harry A. Dinger, crack army pilot who has flown Representative James, chairman of the house military affairs committee and other congressmen thousands of miles.

Private Vladimir Kuwma, army air corps.

Arthur A. McGill, friend of Representative Kaynor.

The party had planned to go first to Springfield, Mass., where Love was to see his new born baby and bring his family back to Washington for Christmas. Later it was planned to inspect national guard units at Hartford. It was Love's first time in the air.

It all happened with sickening quickness. The giant three motored Fokker had just taken off from Boiling field, and had risen 300 feet in the air. Gracefully it began to curve toward the north when suddenly one motor failed and the huge craft shot downward. In a second the tragedy was complete.

The Fokker hit the ground not more than 74 feet from where Lieutenant Cuddihy, ace navy pilot, crashed a few weeks ago. That hole now is marked with two red flags.

Unlike Cuddihy's plane the Fokker was not buried far into the ground. It hit first on the right side, burying the right motor and wheel. The center motor was buried just level with the ground, while the left motor made a two foot hole in the ground and then bounced back.

The rear part of the fuselage and the rear part of the cabin were left intact. The cabin door was not touched. The glass in the door was not broken. Some of the chairs in the cabin were not even scratched.

Dinger and Kuwma were in the cockpit. They were instantly killed. Dinger's watch stopped at 9:35 a. m. The three men riding in the cabin were thrown forward when the plane hit and were instantly killed.

Although the fore part of the plane was badly smashed, there was little difficulty in getting the bodies out.

MRS. MILES POINDEXTER DIES IN S. A. FOLLOWING OPERATION

Mrs. Elizabeth Poindexter, prominent for many years in social circles in Washington, D. C., and the author of many articles published in newspapers and magazines dealing with Washington society and Washington life, died here today at St. Joseph's hospital, following an operation Thursday night.

Mrs. Poindexter was the wife of Miles Poindexter, of Seattle, former United States senator from the state of Washington and former ambassador to Peru. She came here two weeks ago to visit with her sisters, Mrs. May Jorgensen and Mrs. Sabina Morton, both residing at 604 South Bristol street. She was taken ill suddenly Sunday night and was removed to the hospital on Monday, with an operation following later. She was 63 years of age.

Mr. Poindexter is on his way from Washington, D. C., and is expected to arrive here Sunday, when plans for the funeral will be completed. The body is at the Winbigler Funeral home.

In addition to the husband and the sisters mentioned, Mrs. Poindexter is survived by [illegible] San Diego, who is here; two sisters, Mrs. Isabel Rutter of Spokane and Mrs. B. C. McClelland of Seattle, and a brother, Thomas D. Page, Seattle.

Mrs. Poindexter gained considerable fame throughout the nation in 1923 when she penned a series of articles for publication by newspapers and magazines. It was she who wrote the expose of social circles in Washington that created a sensation at the time of publication. In other articles she commented on public officials, including President Coolidge. She wrote in behalf of the observance of all laws and in opposition to women entering politics, particularly in Washington. She was the author of a book on boys and girls, in which she asserted that because of the freedom of boys and girls of today they should always be accompanied by escorts or guardians. One of her characteristic assertions in public print was that any good looking young man, even though he be only a poli[illegible] boy, could "[illegible]" into high society in Washington, pro[illegible] in the right line of [illegible] answer, asserts that all the resolutions—including one of award of the contract for the work—upon which the injunction suit is based, "have all been regularly passed and adopted by the city council of Santa Ana, and that all of the acts to be performed by said defendants, and which it is sought by said action to enjoin and restrain, have been performed by the city council of said city of Santa Ana, and no injunction can therefore be granted to prevent the acts complained of in the complaint."

The defendants ask that the action be dismissed and that they have judgment for their costs incurred in connection with injunction suit.

In the demurrer it is declared that the complaint does not state in what particulars proceedings in the various steps taken in connection with the boulevard project have been irregular, and that "nowhere in the complaint does it appear that the plaintiffs, in the event of damage caused by the acts of the defendants would not have a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law."

Finally the demurrer alleges that the complaint is unintelligible and ambiguous."

Women Arrested On Theft Counts Released On Bail

Three women, arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of shoplifting and charged with petty theft, are scheduled to appear in City Recorder J. F. Talbott's court at 10 a. m., December 24, to answer to the charges.

The women, Irene Walters, 30, of 1429 South Stoneman avenue, Alhambra; Helen Black, 27, of 250 East 64th street, Los Angeles, and Lena McMillan, 30, of 401 West 106th street, Los Angeles, were released from the county jail on bail of $25 each soon after their arrests.

Several articles, found in their possession, have not been identified. Officer C. V. Adams made the arrests.

DRIVER COLLAPSES AFTER ACQUITTAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Robert O. Creel, Los Angeles advertising man, was recovering today from collapse which followed his acquittal on charges of manslaughter late Thursday.

A jury in Superior Judge Lyle Jack's court took only 10 minutes to find Creel not guilty of the death of Mrs. Ella Mack Lee, who was struck down by his automobile the night of September 23.

FINKLE SUES HORACE HEAD FOR $100,000

timony habitually is shaped in accordance with any side of a proposition in which he is involved or that he is thoroughly discredited as a witness on engineering matters.

Today an affidavit and notice were filed in connection with the lawsuit, stating that on December 28 at 10 a. m. the deposition of Head in relation to the matter will be taken. The deposition, or testimony from Head, will be taken in room No. 323 of the court house before Birdie Swanwick, court reporter. The affidavit states that the deposition is necessary in order to insure a speedy trial of the case.

Head's article quoted a high official of the Edison company as saying that the Kern river pressure lines built under Finkle's supervision failed, that the company refused to take Finkle's advice to rebuild them in the same manner, that they were rebuilt in accordance with advice from another engineer and that Finkle was dismissed as chief hydraulic engineer.

In his complaint Finkle stated that he was not discharged but that he resigned shortly after the lines were completed. The collapse of the pressure lines was only in a short section and was due to the failure of the Edison company to repair a small leak which was allowed to grow until the section collapsed, according to the complaint. Finkle said he was consulting engineer at this time and was not told of the leak. Finkle continued as consulting engineer for the Edison company for a number of years, after which he resigned of his own volition, he said. Since its installation the pressure line has been continued in constant use and there have been no other difficulties aside from the small leak, he said.

The engineer declared that he never had ignored the merits of any plan proposed by others merely becauses he was paid for so doing. He pointed out that he accepts employment for or against a project only in accordance with his personal beliefs based on facts relating to the plan as understood by him, and not otherwise. He further asserted that he never has testified for any side of a controversy simply because he was paid for so doing.

Finkle declared that he never offered to render services of any kind to the city of Riverside, that he never was informed by that city that his services were not wanted and that after this alleged refusal he did not offer his services to San Bernardino. In truth his services were solicited by San Bernardino long before the institution of the litigation referred to in the article by Head and before the city of Riverside knew about the litigation, the complaint alleged. It also stated that Finkle assisted in the preparation and conduct of the litigation until its successful conclusion.

The complaint branded the Head article as utterly false, malicious and dafamatory. It declared that the article had injured Finkle's reputation, that he had been deprived of some income which otherwise would have accrued to him, and that the article had been written for the purpose of bringing him into discredit and to hold him up to contempt before the general public. Finkle asked for $50,000 damages and $50,000 punitive damages. His suit was filed through Randall J. Hood, Los Angeles attorney.

state commander of the American Legion in 1920. When he ran for lieutenant governor in 1926 he was elected by the largest vote ever given any candidate for that office in the state's history. He resigned the post in 1928 to become district attorney of Los Angeles.

Governor Young, who is expected to be a candidate to succeed himself although his announcement has not yet been made, said he had no comment on Richardson's statement.

"When Mr. Riley became a candidate I said that that was what the primary was for," said the governor. "It's a free contest and everyone can enter who so desires."

The entrance of Fitts into the campaign gives the race two candidates from Southern California which, it is generally conceded, will be the battleground for the Republican nomination. Whether this will result in a division of strength in that section or definite alignments is a question that is puzzling political observers at the state capitol.

suggested by London as the United States' maximum. Two more of this size would give Japan 70 per cent of the American fleet estimated on the 21 ship basis suggested by this country as its maximum requirement.

Japan is not particularly interested in destroyers. But she rates submarines almost as important as cruisers. Her 78,497 tons of submarines is greater than the British fleet and is only 10,000 tons below the American tonnage. After elimination of obsolescent British and American submersibles, the Japanese submarine fleet is superior to either.

Under these conditions, Japan will go into the London conference possessing more than she asks in submarine tonnage and practically at the desired 10,000 ton cruiser level. Yet, her statesmen predict "positive reduction in naval strength." The United States desire for 21 large cruisers is considered by observers as an asking figure subject to reduction if London will proportionately reduce British demands.

If London accepts lower levels, the United States will do likewise, and Wakatsuki's statement intimates Tokyo's willingness to follow that lead. The impression here is that Japan's program will be subject to compromise when the delegates gather in London January 21.

prohibition bureau as compared with $13,925,000 being spent this year.

There is another phase of the Harris resolution, rooted in the suspicions of some drys concerning the secret activities of the commission. They want to smoke out a report now if they can. The resolution is unlikely to reach a vote before the Christmas recess.

Authorization for the second part of the plan is expected before Christmas. The senate already has adopted a resolution authorizing an inquiry into coordination of enforcement activities and it is expected to be adopted in the house before adjournment, so the inquiry can be started early in January.

Both houses were doing more Christmas shopping than legislating today. The house is working on the agriculture department appropriation bill.

crash, the fuselage had been dragged out by a tractor to a dump on the edge of the field. Soldiers were busy digging out the motor and the wreckage was all cleaned up by 10:30 a. m.

Officials and fellow congressmen were stunned by the accident.

President Hoover learned of it from Secretary of War Hurley, who was on his way to the cabinet meeting when he heard of the crash.

Major General Summerall, chief of staff, said Captain Dinger was one of the best pilots in the army air corps. For that reason he had been selected to fly planes bearing congressmen on special missions.

Little could be learned about McGill, a friend of Raynor. He left a forwarding address in the name of Mrs. Sullivan Burgess, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Dinger is married and the war department said his wife was at Bolling field. He was born at Mayport, Pa.

Kuwma's next of kin is his father, Theodore Kuwma, of Shelton, Conn.

Representative Raynor asked Assistant Secretary of War Davison yesterday for a plane to take him to Massachusetts.

Davison assigned his own plane for the trip—the tri-motored Fokker. It is specially fitted with a desk and Davison has flown thousands of miles in it, usually taking his stenographer and using the plane as an aerial office.

waves. Merchants lost heavily as the snow drifts kept patrons at home.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Creeping slowly onward from the west, cold weather today dispelled the fog which shrouded the North Atlantic seaboard for days. Sleet storms to the north and a blizzard to the west had combined with the fog to cause one of the most complete tieups of all kinds of traffic in years.

Trains into New York from the west were as much as 10 hours late due to the blizzard; air mail service was at a standstill for the eighth successive day; wire communications to the north were still precarious as a result of the freakish play of the elements; shipping began to move cautiously here after four days' delay.

Meanwhile the western blizzard's breath was felt throughout the south, snow flurries being reported in New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola, while spring like temperatures preceded the advance of the cold wave in Pennsylvania.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(UP)—France's determination to reject all proposals at the London naval disarmament conference for abolition of the submarine and her insistence that she must be left free to set the limits of her own naval needs was revealed clearly in the first day's debate on the 1930 naval budget.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

Perhaps there is nothing more difficult to endure than the perplexing sense that you are only partially attaining what you have attempted to do. It runs through all of life, but it is particularly trying when you have been striving so hard to be brave during days of sorrow, and seem to be making no progress.

Remind yourself that it is the motive and the effort which count, and not your consciousness of success. Because Christ, through His indomitable spirit triumphed, when He appeared to fail, so shall you, since something of that divine fire is embedded in the depth of your spirit.

SAYS PEACE TO BE STRESSED AT 1930 MEET

Shriners of Orange county to the number of 125 paid their respects to Leo V. Youngworth, of Los Angeles, imperial potentate, at noon, today, in a complimentary dinner at St. Ann's Inn. Accompanied by a group of prominent Shriners of Los Angeles, the imperial potentate stopped over in Santa Ana for luncheon on his way to San Diego, where the temple will put on a big ceremonial tomorrow night.

The luncheon today was held under the auspices of the Orange County Shrine club and President Charles J. Cogan presided. Otto Haan, Orange county representative of the potentate of Al Malaikah Temple, Los Angeles, occupied a seat at the head table.

A cordial greeting was extended the visiting group by Shriners from all parts of the county. There was no attempt on the part of the committee on arrangements, headed by Carl Mock, to present a big program of entertainment because it was desired to give the imperial potentate time in which to present some of the highlights of the program being arranged for the convention in Toronto, Canada, on June 10, 11 and 12, 1930. Solos by Robert L. Brown and Maurice Phillips constituted the special program.

Has Visited 80 Clubs

Youngworth has visited 80 of the 157 temples in North America and many Shrine clubs during his incumbency of the high position he holds in Shrinedom and he declared here today that everywhere he has gone he has found the greatest enthusiasm for the Toronto meeting because the world-wide movement for peace is to be given special emphasis.

"We are hopeful of making the Toronto gathering one of the world's greatest peace demonstrations," Youngworth told his listeners. "Grand masters of the Masonic lodges of the United States and Canada and governors of the United States and the Canadian provinces are to be invited and urged to attend this important meeting. Many already have signified intentions to be present.

"The more I travel and visit among the 157 Shrine temples in North America, the more I am impressed with the character and personnel of our membership. And the more I talk with men everywhere the greater becomes my enthusiasm for this great movement.

"I take the office of the imperial potentate very seriously and realize that the occupant of that office represents some 600,000 men who are unquestionably outstanding men and Masons.

Sees Great Benefits

"Our next annual session in Toronto should be of great benefit to Masonry, the Shrine and to humanity generally. This meeting can and should be made the occasion to cement more closely the friendship which exists not only between Canadians and Americans, but between the English speaking people. But, above and beyond this we should take advantage of this opportunity for a physical demonstration and definitely align ourselves in favor of the great idea of universal peace and good will among all the nations of the world.

"The very foundation of the philosophy of Masonry, the outstanding idea of Free Masonry, is the brotherhood of man——the true brotherhood of the peoples of all the nations of the world. Masonry is indeed a universal organization and if there is anything that is fundamental in Masonry it is that the people of the world should enjoy peaceful existence and be permitted to enjoy peace and happiness, whatever their color, their race or creed.

"We must all be impressed profoundly by the activities of our government and that of Great Britain, as manifested by the recent meeting of our president and the premier of Great Britain, and by their open statements of intention and desire to arrive at peaceful understandings and to formulate plans and agreements that would forever banish war and create a definite, permanent and universal peace among all nations.

Masonry To Have Part

"Although actual hostilities ceased on Nov. 11, 1918, reparations have only recently been adjusted and the armies of occupation will not return to their native lands until June, 1930; so out of these conditions and developments there arose in my mind a desire to have Masonry participate in some definite and effective way in these activities and by express action demonstrate its approval of this intelligent and sincere effort to secure a definite and universal peace."

BROTHER'S TESTIMONY HOLDS MAN TO TRIAL ON CHARGES OF NON-SUPPORT OF CHILDREN

A man took the witness stand against his brother in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday and, as a result the defendant brother was held to answer to superior court.

It was in the case of the people versus Charles F. Miller, Anaheim taxi driver, charged with non-support of his children. His brother, T. D. Miller, of Santa Ana, took the witness stand and told the court that his brother would not take care of the children.

His testimony was damaging, but he was reluctant because "he is my brother, and I have a feeling for him."

The defendant then was called to the stand and during cross examination suddenly suffered a nervous collapse and toppled from the witness stand to the floor. A physician was called and attended him and after a few minutes he was able to return to the stand.

At the conclusion of the hearing Miller was held to answer to the superior court on bail of $500.

FIVE GET JAIL TERMS AS PART OF PROBATION

Five prisoners, who had entered pleas of guilty to various charges placed against them by the district attorney's office and applied for probation, were given jail sentences for varying terms as conditions of probation, which was granted in every instance by Judge G. K. Scovel today.

The mental stability of one defendant was questioned by the court and a condition of the probation in the case of Schley Sain, charged with grand theft, was that he be examined as to his sanity by the county physician. Sain, it is stated, took a car in Westminster for a trip to Huntington Beach to see his brother "because he got tired walking." The report of the probation authorities stated that Sain had been wandering around the country doing odd jobs for the last two years and that he was crippled from infantile paralysis. Sain is to spend 90 days in the county jail as another condition of the probation.

A term of one year in the county jail was a condition of the probation granted to Cruz Garcia, who previously had pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Garcia was arrested for his deviation from the law on November 11.

Z. L. Bernor and Oliver Hamlin were granted probation for five years, but a condition of the probation was that they serve terms of one year in the county jail. They were charged with the theft of copper cable, valued at $700, from the Pacific Electric company, and had pleaded guilty. Another special condition of their probation was that they remain within the seven southern counties of the state after their release from jail during the remainder of their terms of probation.

The term in the county jail to be served by Richard Shope as a condition of his probation was set by the court at 60 days. Shope had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of arson, filed by the district attorney's office. He was granted probation for two years, to be remanded to the custody of his father at the end of the jail term.

XMAS PROGRAM OF BIBLE CLASS OPEN TO PUBLIC

A Christmas program has been arranged for members and guests of the Men's Community Bible class for the service in the Fox West Coast theater Sunday morning. The meeting has been opened by the class to members of their families and the public.

Christmas music will dominate the program and many features are scheduled that should attract a large attendance. Carols will be sung by a men's chorus of 15 voices, under the direction of E. H. Elsener. Herschel Clayton, former musical director of the class, will be present to sing for the seventh consecutive year "The Holy City." Clayton now lives in Covina. Mrs. Arthur May, soprano, will be another soloist. Duet numbers will be presented by Mrs. E. R. Elsener and O. J. Smith. Instrumental music will be furnished by Paul LeBar, organist, and the class teacher, under the direction of James Ingham.

The Christmas message will be presented by the class teacher, the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church.

BLANEY TO ADDRESS TWO FARM CENTERS

Meetings of the Farm centers in Yorba Linda and West Orange are scheduled for tonight. Blaney, executive secretary of the Orange County Farm bureau, will report at both sessions of the national convention of the Farm Bureau federation, held last week in Chicago.

The Yorba Linda meeting will be a dinner session, commencing at 6:30 in the Women's clubhouse. The West Orange gathering will be held in the West Orange grammar school. Farm Advisor H. E. Wahlberg will be on the program at the Yorba Linda meeting, speaking on "Fertilization."

CITY WILL NOT HAVE TO REPAY HIGHWAY FUNDS

The city of Santa Ana will not have to repay to the county of Orange the $10,000 which the board of supervisors appropriated from the motor vehicle fund toward the cost of the rebuilding of South Main street, two years ago, it was indicated today by receipt by City Attorney Charles D. Swanner, of a telegram advising that the appellate court had sustained the Orange county superior court in its decision, in the case of W. E. Chilson vs. County Auditor W. C. Jerome, that a three-fifths vote of the board was sufficient to authorize the appropriation.

The fund was made available on the affirmative votes of Supervisors Willard Smith, George Jeffrey and S. H. Finley, who was a member at the time. Supervisors William Schumacher and John Mitchell cast negative votes, their opposition votes creating doubt as to the authority of three men to vote money from the motor vehicle fund to a city street project.

In order to determine the point, W. E. Chilson, a property owner on South Main street, filed a friendly suit against County Auditor Jerome, demanding that he issue a warrant for the sum.

Later Charles Harbison, a property owner in Anaheim, filed a complaint of intervention, alleging additional reasons why the county auditor should not issue the warrant.

In the meantime, Jerome, holding that the apportionment had been legally authorized, issued a warrant on the county treasurer for the sum.

When the case came to trial, it was heard by Judge Benjamin F. Warmer, of San Bernardino, brother of Dr. George Warmer, Santa Ana pastor, sitting on the bench. Judge Warmer held the three-to-two vote to be sufficient. An appeal was taken to the appellate court, with the result just announced.

It is not believed that the case will be carried to the state supreme court.

Evangelist Dies In Arizona Home

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20.—The Rev. Harry K. Shields, nationally known as the "Singing Evangelist," died in his home in Winslow, Ariz., this week, from an attack of heart failure. The Rev. Mr. Shields was the brother-in-law of the Rev. J. G. Hurst, pastor of the Christian church of this city. The Rev. and Mrs. Hurst on receiving a telegram announcing the death, left at once for Arizona to attend the funeral.

The Rev. Mr. Shields had conducted evangelistic meetings in this city. For several months before his death he had to give up singing on account of the condition of this heart.

London's first trunk telephone line was opened with Brighton on December 17, 1884.

LOTTERY TICKETS BRING $100 FINE

Lee P. Morrissey, 33, an insurance agent of 3650 Virginia avenue, Lynwood, was fined $100 in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning on a charge of having lottery tickets in his possession. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by city police officers at Fourth and Birch streets. Morrissey had approximately 50 tickets of the Louisiana Lottery, according to officers.

WESTMINSTER

WINTERSBURG, Dec. 20.—A. C. Bridges of Boulevard Gardens, this week sold his home and one-half of the acre which he owns in the tract, to an Illinois man. Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Bridges moved to Huntington Beach where they are located at 807 Huntington Ave. The new owner has not yet taken possession of the house.

High school closed Wednesday for the holidays and local young people are now carrying out vacation plans.

Mrs. Harper of Boulevard Gardens, who has been confined to bed with influenza, is able to be up.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Turner, former local residents, are expected to arrive here Monday from Tucson, Arizona, to see after local property interests and to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Perle Elliott were hosts at a dinner at their home in honor of Mrs. Elliott's two aunts, Mrs. Jane Burris, and Mrs Annie Richardson, their cousin, George Richardson. Mrs. Elliott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Morse of Huntington Beach, and their son, Victor Elliott, were also present.

Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Burris are sisters of George Morse and it had been many years since the three had met. The visitors are of Mesa, Arizona, and are returning to their home soon. They traveled here by motor.

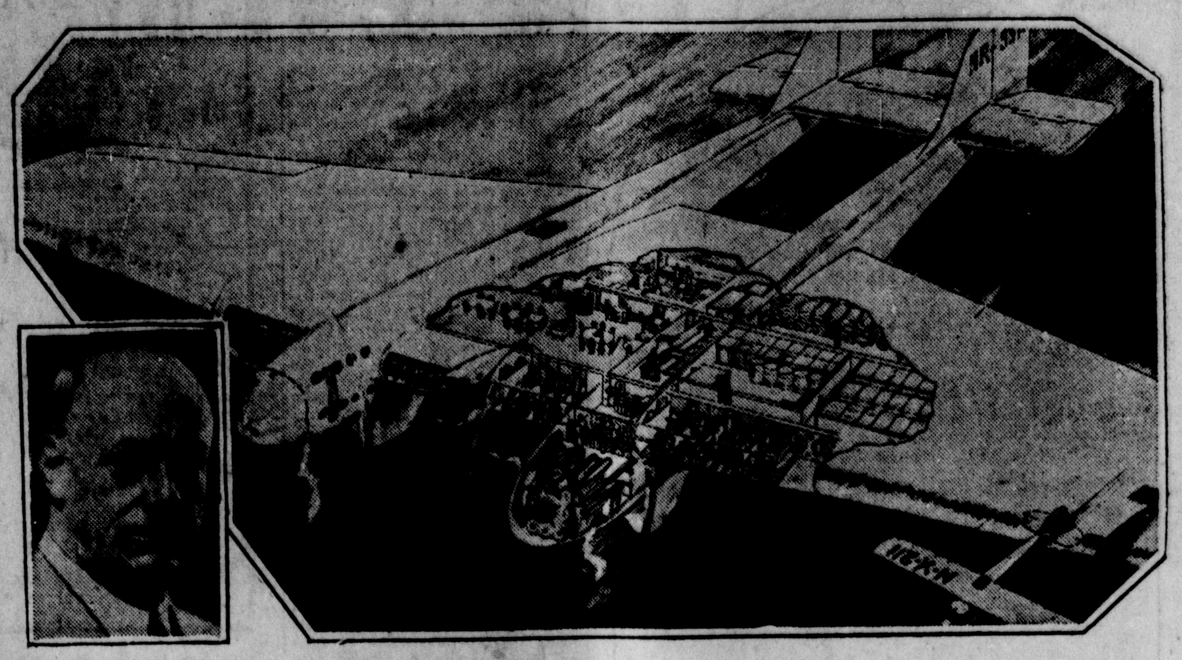
Charles Blaylock of Wilmington was an overnight guest in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blaylock, recently.

Harry Visher, who for several years has been foreman of the oil pumping plant of the Texaco Oil company in Wintersburg has been transferred to the Norwalk field and has moxed with his family to Norwalk. The new foreman has not yet arrived at the plant.

Dr. and Mrs. Little of Santa Ana, brother-in-law and sister of Charles Blaylock were recent visitors in the Blaylock home.

GIANT PLANES PLANNED FOR U. S.

The largest airplanes in the world, as American aeronautical engineers have planned it, is pictured here. Four of these, for regular passenger and freight service, are to be built by the General Development company, of Connecticut, through its vice-president and chief consultant, Dr. William Whitney Christmas, lower left.. He is the inventor of the aileron balancing device now used on every airplane in the world. Early in 1930 construction is to be started on the giant craft, which under Department of Commerce regulations will have a maximum carrying capacity of 206 passengers, and a crew of 17. In the picture, in which part of the interior is exposed, you see how observation compartments with glass fronts are to be placed in the leading edge of the wing, which will be so thick that two main decks will be contained in it. Berths are planned for 160 passengers and there are to be smoking and card rooms, a spacious lounge and a dining salon seating 42 persons. Freight and mail compartments with electric elevators will be placed in the wings. Pilots and radio operators will form the central projecting cabin. Eight motors of 1200 horse-power each will work in units of four on two giant four-bladed propellers. The wing span is to be 262 feet—100 feet greater than the Dornier DO-X seaplane, now the largest in the world.



CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR MODERN YOUTH SHOULD BE DIFFERENT

NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Jazzing up the Christmas gift to suit the collegiate or the high school boy or girl is a trick.

But, as usual, there is one way to selve it. That way lies in being consistently and unwaveringly modern. For, in the last analysis, modernism is a youth movement, be it in paintings or cuff button designs. Young folks are sure to like things done in the contemporary manner.

Boys and girls at this age are exceedingly conscious of their surroundings. Their individualism is breaking out like an epidemic. They crave rooms that will express them. Give them some strinkingly lively piece of furniture or furnishing and you will be sure to please.

Wide Choice In Furniture

Modernistic studio daybeds are an excellent choice. Failing the cash for one of these, a modernistic end table to stand at the head of an ordinary studio bed is an excellent choice. These have stepback, skyscraper designs, come in gaudy colors and are tremendously decorative. Modernistic lounging chairs, foot stools, bookcases and desks all are excellent gifts.

If money is a consideration, as it usually turns out to be, a squat modernistic lamp, with a shade of ruddy tone and cheerful design, is a real contribution. Sofa pillows may come in the new six-cylinder design, be in triangles or other unusual geometric shapes, in bright, arresting fabrics, or any number of decorative art objects are good. Many young folks of this age are "cliff-dwellers" in city apartments or have rooms in their college halls. They appreciate electric equipment for cooking "snacks" for colorful peasant pottery for serving same. Lunch cloths and napkins in gaudy design are good, too, and of course a basket of small cans of all kinds of choice edibles would never go amiss.

Lounging Togs Good

Lounging togs for leisure hours are good. Pajamas for both sexes. Smoking outfits and boxes of fancy colored and gold tipped cigarets or a supply of other "smokes" will please those who indulge. Beverage sets, perhaps one of the new kind that assume odd shapes of people, animals, buildings, are a good gift.

This is the age that craves this or that book that happens to be expensive or rare. One such, covered with a jacket of its own, made out of calico, hand-blocked linen or even modernistic paper, is good. For girls, one of those queer, gangling dolls to add that dainty, "little girl" atmosphere, evening dress suits or anyhow the memory books, travel books and diaries. For boys, trick shaking outfits, luggage with some new quirk, canes that have watches, cigaret lighters or something concealed in their handles, fancy evening sets or satin suspenders and garters.

For both boys and girls, things to wear are a good choice but remember this is a very choosy age. Girls like purses that have belts and shoes in their ensembles, evening accessory sets of huge green, red, rose or yellow chiffon hankies, purses and slippers or winter sports togs that are very modern in design and execution. Boys like evening dress suits or anyhow the latest word in dress shirts, ties, cuff links, watches and so on.

For Young Musicians

Radios, ukuleles and other musical instruments usually are most acceptable. For girls or boys who drive their own cars, fancy radiator caps or some extra-extra as inside equipment is good. Seasonal tickets to opera, symphony or other musical treats or lectures are welcome to certain young folks. Fraternity or sorority jewelry almost always pleases. Pets, especially unusual ones, may delight. But one should always consider the difficulty in keeping pets. Fold fish are about all most young folks can bother with.

Though the collegiate and high school age tends to conformity, remember that it is the unusually shaped or colored article that pleases. For, with everyone making this or that a fad, isn't it not only modern but exceedingly human, to want to be different? Buy with this in mind and lean more towards the modern gift than less and you'll be a welcome Santa Claus.

THREE ARRAIGNED ON SUPPORT COUNTS

Three men were arraigned before Judge G. K. Scovel today on informations from the office of District Attorney Z. B. West charging non-support of their children. Two entered pleas of guilty and made application for probation, while the third pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial.

The informations charged that Fortina Parra failed to provide for his three children and Ignacio Rodriguez was delinquent in his duties of support toward his four children. These defendants entered pleas of guilty and applied for probation. The hearings on probation were set by Judge Scobel for December 27.

The jury trial will be for Wilbur Wilson and will take place on January 16. The information charges that he failed to provide for his 4-year-old daughter. A special venire was ordered by the court to provide a jury panel, as there is another jury trial scheduled for the same day.

ACCESSORIES ARE LOVELY

New accessories are feminine and lovely. Below: Reboux makes a beret and scarf set of light blue and brown velveteen. Below: For formal daytime, a black purse has a white jade and jeweled flower pot and plant decoration. For evening a brocaded bag has a tassel of pearls. The gold yellow evening handkerchief of chiffon has real lace insets in the corners. A black chiffon evening handkerchief from Europe is edged with white and decorated with a coat of arms in lace. The new crystal necklace has rondelle of rhinestone.

SANTA ANA MAN AT DEDICATION OF NEW CHURCH

The Rev. O. Takahashi, representative of the Japanese Church Federation of Southern California; H T. Fothergill, of Coachella; P. A. Robinson, of Santa Ana, and Charles Robinson, of Orange, extended greetings from their Christian churches at the dedication of the new Japanese church parsonage in Coachella last Sunday, was revealed today.

The services of dedication took place in the building itself. Various friends interested in the Japanese movement had sent flowers to grace the new platform. These were arranged in the artistic manner common to the Japanese.

H. Sakai, of Coachella, was chairman and ably conducted the meeting. Mrs. K. Kodama, wife of the pastor, presided at the piano and musical numbers interspersed the program, among them being some songs by the choir of Japanese women and a group of songs by Miss Grace Shibata, in Japanese costume. She sang first in English and then in Japanese.

The program was conducted, for the most part, in Japanese.

Reports from the building committee, the story of the Christian movement among Japanese residents of the valley and the ceremony of dedication, were followed by greetings from R. Otomo, S. Hono and T. Aritoni, representatives of the Society of Friends of Jesus.

Firemen Called To Three Blazes; No Damage Done

Santa Ana's fire department made three runs during the last 24 hours. None of the fires, however, caused any serious damage.

Fire companies Nos. 1 and 4 answered a call to the Adams cigar store, at 412 North Broadway, this morning to extinguish a small blaze which had started in the flooring, probably from a cigaret.

At 12:20 a. m., today, firemen from central station were sent to the 1400 block on North Flower street to put out a fire which had started in a stump at the rear of a new house. There was no damage.

Firemen extinguished a small fire in a trash pile at the place of Jerry Allen, 921 East Seventeenth street, at 12:10 a. m., this morning. Several trees caught fire but there was no damage.

Court Notes

An information charging driving a motor car while intoxicated was filed against T. L. Harris today in superior court. When arraigned before Judge G. K. Scovel, Harris entered a plea of guilty and asked for probation. The hearing was set by the court for January 10. Harris is alleged to have driven his car on East Center street, in Anaheim, on December 11, while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

E. Schostag has filed a suit against M. E. Durfee, et al, asking judgment for $500, interest, attorney's fees and costs, on a note dated May 10, 1928, which he claims is unpaid and past due.

The inventory and appraisement of the estate of Frank Buehring, which was filed today in superior court, showed that the estate was valued at $3655.

The Title Guarantee and Trust company yesterday afternoon filed a suit in superior court to quiet title to 22 lots in Newport Beach. The action was directed against Elizabeth Ballard, et al.

The answer and cross complaint filed today in the suit of Adolphe Callens vs. Gustave Van Der Berghe, et al, denied the claims in the original suit and asked for judgment against Callens for $1680 alleged to be due and unpaid for pigeons he purchased from the defendants. The cross complaint alleged that the Van Der Berghes, relying on information from Callens, who acted as their agent, purchased an orange grove last year at a price of $25,000 which they claim was worth not more than $17,000. They also assert that Callens informed them the crop would make a net return of $5000, whereas it returned net only $950. They ask judgment for $12,050 on the cross complaint.

POLISH HARBOR NOW FACTOR IN BALTIC TRADE

BY MAURITZ A. HALLGREN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—(UP)—In increasing measure the port of Gdingen on the Baltic is finding its name in the shipping reports and in the news columns. The reason is not far to seek. Ten years ago an unambitious fishing village with but 400 inhabitants, Gdingen is today a roaring city of 40,000 souls and destined shortly to become much larger.

Despite its mushroom growth, Gdingen is not a mushroom town. It has been deliberately conceived and is being built in accordance with a very definite plan. It is the creature of Poland's desire for a practical harbor and port through which can be handled the bulk of Poland's foreign trade. Situated on the Baltic coast of Corridor, normally ice-free the year around, and affording a natural and valuable harbor for ships of all kinds, Gdingen appears to fulfill all of Poland's requirements in this respect. It stands but 20 kilometers away from a great rival port, the Free City of Danzig.

Work on this stupendous project was begun in 1920. Three years later the first ship put into the harbor to discharge a cargo. During 1929, it has been estimated, 3,000,000 tons of shipping will pass through the port. The Polish government anticipates a population of 1,00,000 when the town has been completed.

As yet, however, the job is far from done, and in consequence the place presents a curious, jumbled sight. Tall office buildings rear themselves next door to dilapidated fishing shacks; imposing government structures stand alone in the swampy land surrounding the original village; a network of paved, but houseless streets stretch out over the sand and prairie. In the harbor the confusion in much the same. It is only with difficulty that one can distinguish the sailors and the longshoremen from the thousands of building laborers and artisans who are busy there.

By the end of 1929 there will have been completed seven kilometers of wharves, thus terminating the first phase of the harbor construction program. Aside from this part of the project, there has been erected for the government a large postoffice building, a marine school and several smaller buildings. Private interests have put up office buildings, a huge cold storage warehouse, a rice warehouse and two general warehouses, while an Upper Silesian mining company has built an extensive, modern coal dock.

Up until now coal has been the principal article of export passing through Gdingen, this item accounting for 87 per cent of the total business of the port. Exports other than coal have included furniture sent to South America, polished rice to England, and cement and sugar sent to many countries. Imports have included unpolished rice from Rangoon, steel products and paving stones from Sweden, wine from France and machinery from the United States. Most of this shipping has been carried by tramp steamers, but lately four established steamship companies have made Gdingen one of their regular ports of call. The majority of the ships putting in at Gdingen have been Swedish, with vessels flying the German flag in second place.

Annual Session Of Brea Civic Group Set for January 8

BREA, Dec. 20.—The annual meeting of the Brea Chamber of Commerce will be held January 8, it was announced at the meeting held in the Olson and Dyer cafe Wednesday.

An announcement was made by E. H. Peterkin that the girls' league of Brea-Olinda high school is making a campaign for jams, jellies and any canned food, which will be distributed Christmas eve to the poor families of the community. Christmas morning the members will go to the health camp and take food, scrap books, dolls and other toys.

O. A. Andrews, vice principal of Brea-Olinda high school, announced the Christmas pageant to be presented in the evening in the school auditorium.

The president called on W. D. Shaffer for a few remarks regarding his machine shop. Mr. Shaffer responded by asking the members to come with him on a sight-seeing trip of his plant.

OVERSEAS ADDRESS

When the American Gas association held its annual convention at Atlantic City, a convention address was delivered in England and was heard by the 6000 persons attending the convention through the transatlantic telephone service. This is the first instance of the transatlantic telephone being used to transmit an address from England during a public utility convention.

CAPITOL WINTER COMES

King Winter laid his icy paw on the nation's capitol, and here you see a striking night view of the famous dome, framed between the frozen branches of trees when sleet and drizzling rain formed a sheet of ice over Washington. Two representatives, approaching the capitol building for the opening of the Seventy-first Congress, slipped and fell and were painfully injured.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Richard Halliburton has already made himself hundreds of admirers. These will be glad to have the opportunity of reading his new book, "New Worlds to Conquer."

Following the trails of the early Spanish discoverers, he tells of his adventures in the glamorous lands to the South. San Salvador, the island where Columbus first landed, he rediscovered by airplane. The trail of Cortez's conquest of Mexico he followed on foot, climbing twice, to Popocatepetl's lofty crater.

In Yucatan, land of the ancient Mayas, he found the famous Well of Death where human sacrifices were thrown to the Rain God, and from which a hundred skeletons of men and girls have been dredged. To challenge the grim tradition of the pit he lived from the sacrificial altar into the dark waters seventy feet below. And then to satisfy the doubters he did it again.

Bound for Nicaragua, a lucky chance landed him on the magic island of Cozumel, where the corals grow in exotic gardens beneath a turquoise sea, that is a swimmer's dream of paradise.

Made 50-Mile Swim

His 50-mile Panama Canal swim was an adventure that attracted wide newspaper notice. For the first time in the history of the Canal the great locks were opened to lift and lower a single individual.

He found and climbed the peak in Darien from which Balboa first stared at the Pacific. In Peru, the land of the Incas, he searched out the hidden mountain city of Manchu Picchu to which the hundred sacred Sun Virgins escaped from Pizarro and his men. Crossing the Andes to Argentina and Brazil, he and a most engaging monkey earned their living through the heart of South America with a hurdy-gurdy.

Then he flew to French Guiana to see for himself the horrors of Devil's Island prison colony. There he came to know many of the tragic castaways, heard their stories, and putting on the prison uniform lived as they lived.

Finally he went to Robinson Crusoe's island, found himself a cave, a suit of goat's skin, a beard, a cat, a parrot, and a man Toosday, and reenacted Crusoe's story.

Here, indeed, is a knapsack of the true adventurer's gold—dreams brought to reality by the alchemy of courage and daring. Mr. Halliburton writes with poetic appreciation, a strong feeling for the dramatic, and a sense of humor that never fails. The qualities that have made his earlier books number their readers by the hundreds of thousands are all here plus a more mature understanding of the life he sees and the adventures that come his way.

"Philosophic Way of Life"

In "The Philosophic Way of Life," by T. V. Smith, five philosophers go in quest of a sixth and find him in you. At the mouth of this web, ponder a moment before you plunge. Do you dare to enter? If you feel the need of a little philosophy to ease your predicament by helping you decide whether you should go in for a little philosophy or not, read this book.

In it, you will be praised for your self-reliance; you will be honored as the source of all virtue; you will be flattered as a final judge. Consider how much of this you can stand and still be yourself. If you err in this crucial self-knowledge, you may come out in the end such a person as you now dislike, with only this consolation: that that person as you now dislike, with only this consolation; that that person as you now dislike, the person you now are. Very apparently the reading or not reading of this book is a serious matter, not to be lightly decided.

Consider the experiences of others. A few hundred persons heard five lectures on "Philosophy as a Way of Life" at the Chicago Art Institute in the spring of 1929. No person of them is the same today; some came to pray and went away to scoff; some came to scoff and went away to pray; some came sober and went away smiling; some came smiling and went away sober; some came wise and went away feeling foolish; some came foolish and went away feeling wise; many bore in silence whatever they bore; and some helped those lectures to become this book. None of them, however, is the same. Nor will you be the same tomorrow.

If, being already for some time guilty of philosophizing, you now elect to proceed, you have had your warning and the five philosophers who sought a sixth may now divide you as their reward.

There is no doubt that "Salt Water Taffy" by Corey Ford, is without equal among modern deep-sea adventure books. It represents the sine qua non, the ne plus ultra (possibly the non compos mentis) in salt water autobiographies. It is amazing, incredible, fabulous—and every word is as true as the next.

"In fact, this yarn," says Dr. Walter E. Traplock, F. R. S. S. E. U., "is written by the daughter of [illegible] old friend Ezra Triplett; and having known Ezra when he was in command of my Yawe 'The Kawa,' I can readily predict the extent of its authenticity. It's hearty and briny and gusty. It's just full of the keen reality of vital facts—and then some."

Adventure After Adventure

Little June Triplett was not more than three hours old when she first reported aboard the schooner of her father Captain Ezra Triplett. At first she was content just to lie about her father's boat; but as she grew older she began to meet adventure after adventure in the South Seas.

When June was 3 months old she learned to spit a figure eight in the wind. She was 7 years old when she cut open a female shark and found a copy of "What Every Girl Should Know" inside. At an early age she learned to throw the bulwarks. Single-handed she captured a baby water-spout named Gladys and kept it for a pet. She was the first white woman to witness the Dance of the Virgins, in company with old Sedlitz, a beach-combing salt who hailed from Epsom. At last when her father's boat finally caught fire, June plunged overboard and swam back to New York, emerging in the nick of time on the Ile de France, to be welcomed by enthusiastic reporters.

In this unparalleled sea story we have a tale so breath-taking that it might pass for fiction, were it not for the equally breath-taking photographs which accompany it. The camera cannot lie.

COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Dec. 20—William Paterson, local realtor, has moved his family into an apartment of the newly constructed Paterson building, which was recently finished for him on Newport boulevard at Broadway.

The manager of the Alpha Beta store here, Grant Illingsworth was in Riverside yesterday on business for the company.

A crew of the Orange county road department has finished a strip of pavement through the business section of town between Eighteenth street and Broadway.

Mrs. Minnie Reid, who has charge of the Americanisation work for Costa Mesa, and Mrs. Florence L. Summers, of Newport Beach, who is similarly employed there, were in Los Angeles in attendance at a teachers' meeting being held in the city.

Leslie Pickering, of Davidson City, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Slecks, was visiting with them in their home on Bay street yesterday.

E. E. Murphy and mother, of Huntington Beach, who have property interests here, were in town yesterday attending to matters of business and calling on Costa Mesa friends.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reynolds residing on Newport road at Bay street, have with them at present their daughter Mrs. Jack Colwell, and children, of San Diego, who will spend the Christmas season here. Mr. Colwell will accompany his family here soon.

The boys of the newly organized Community church basketball team played their first game of the season at the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, going up against the First Christian church squad. The boys suffered defeat at the hands of their Santa Ana neighbors, but Coach Merle Ewell states that he was well pleased at the way the boys performed considering the length of time that they have been in training. Costa Mesa boys in the line up were Coach Ewell, Chisholm Brown, Jean Willcutt, Laurence Wright, Harold Long, [illegible] Smith, Willard Conwell, Le[illegible]ing, Clyde Hunter, Robert [illegible] and John Willcutt. John W[illegible] was at center, Hunter and [illegible]ing were guards, and Ewell [illegible] Fuller played forward when t[illegible] game started.

BABES IN TOYLAND' PHILCO'S OFFERING

The first scene of Act I of Babes In Toyland," a musical extravaganza in two acts by Victor Herbert, with book and lyrics by Glen MacDonough, will be presented by Jessica Dragonette, soprano; Robert Simmons, tenor, and supporting cast when Philco's Theater Memories are broadcast through the NBC coast-to-coast system, including KFI between 6:30 and 7 tonight.

Familiar personages of the nursery rhymes of childhood are the characters of the operetta. The first scene is laid at a country fete contrary Mary's garden, near the Widow Piper's home.

Uncle Barnaby gives a dance to announce his engagement to Contrary Mary, the sweetheart of Alan. Tom-Tom wishes to marry Barnaby's niece, Jane. Barnaby declares both Alan and Jane are at the bottom of the sea. He proposes to Mary but is promptly refused. Just then two ruffians testify that Alan and Jane are dead and claim their rewards Alan returns. Mary greets him coldly and he declares he will go away and become a monk.

IRON MAN OF HOCKEY

Starting his ice career in 1905 in a Canadian amateur league, Dick Walker, Seattle hockey player, has been in the game 25 years.

Buster and Tige Take Air Tonight Over CBS and KHJ

The Brown-Bilt Footlites, broadcast from KHJ over the Pacific coast and Mountain units of the CBS tonight from 8 to 8:30, take the air audience to other theaters of the imagination. The program features two skits, Buster Brown and Tige in more misadventures, and a black-face act. A Russian quintet, which undoubtedly is composed of members of the Right Royal Russian family who escaped from the mob by crawling on hands and knees from Petrograd to Sebastapool—will make its debut on this program. Eleanor Rennie, KHJ staff contralto, has "Two Songs of the Bayou" up her sleeve; Bob, Ed and Chappie will recall "Some of These Days," while Raymond Paige and the Sierra Symphonists will amuze with Romberg's "Roy Symphony," "Old Zip Coon," "Alabamy Snow," etc.

EDISON CHORUS TO PRESENT PROGRAM

The fifth annual Christmas radio program of the Southern California Edison company chorus of 60 voices will be broadcast over KFI between 8 and 8:30 tonight. The program will include many of the old favorite carols of Christmas time and a number by Mrs. Harry Ross, soloist. Hugo Kirchhofer will direct the chorus.

The singers of the Edison company chorus are all employes of the general office organization in Los Angeles. Miss Ann Ortman, of the company's investment department, is president of the chorus.

MARY AND BOB AT HOME FOR HOLIDAYS

Mary and Bob, the young True Story hour travellers, arrive at the home of Mary's mother, near New York, tonight. Their arrival will be broadcast during the True Story hour, which goes on the air over WABC and the coast-to-coast stations of the Columbia system, including KHJ, at 9 o'clock.

Old ties and old friendships are renewed as Mary and Bob join in the singing of Christmas hyms.

Radio fans will share a thrilling story with Mary and Bob during the evening as Mrs. Farley, a member of the church in the little town, reads Mary a letter that she has received from an unhappy woman, a poor storm-tossed soul who felt there was no solution for her or her children in life with a husband who no longer seemed to care for them.

This, too, was the problem Mrs. Farley faced many years ago and which she now tells to Mary, feeling that it will bring hope to many other women sharing her sorrowful plight.

'SAFETY' TOPIC AT OCEANVIEW SESSION

OCEANVIEW, Dec. 20.—The regular meeting of the Oceanview school Parent-Teacher association was held Wednesday afternoon in the kindergarten room, with a large number of members and visitors present. Mrs. Murray, president of the organization, presided over the meeting. Christmas carols were sung. Mrs. Cadias announced that the study circle meetings will be resumed January 14. Mrs. J. W. McIntosh, safety chairman, gave a talk on "Safety."

The kindergarten department won the prize offered the class for the largest attendance of mothers during the first three months. Mrs. Oldfield gave an interesting talk on Christmas, telling of childhood memories of the holiday as observed in her native country, Switzerland.

A round table discussion was held while Mrs. John Holt sang, "Star of the East," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. DeLaverne.

Mrs. Clinton Brush, presented each of the teachers of the school with a Christmas gift.

STEIN'S

Written By HARRY D. RILEY, Studebaker Dealer

That's the thought I wish to impress you with. A real honest-to-goodness HEADQUARTERS for Christmas Gifts, and I don't mean maybe.

When (Mr.) Ivie Stein, (I don't know why that big he looking man puts the "Mr." in parenthesis, especially after one "took a look") but anyway, after he complimented (or kidded) me on my ad writing ability, I paid him a visit, and really, I was surprised. Never dreamed such a variety of merchandise was collected under one roof to select from. Things appropriate for every one from the papa and the mama to, well, the only thing I couldn't find was nipples for the baby, and he courteously volunteered to get those for me.

I saw fountain pens, for the papa, that were beauts, and pencils (with extra leads); and if he is a professional man, Doctor, Lawyer, Dentist, as such they are usually good card "sharks," there were cards, and little round chips in cases, and too, some little "diamond" studded square blocks, Ivie said "you roll 'em." I don't see how they could roll, when they're square, anyhow they're called dice, Ivie said.—there were chair cushions, desk lamps, and one of the most useful gifts to me has been a scissor and envelope opener set, hardly a day goes by that I do not use it several times; then too a small leather-covered pocket memo book is next to most useful and it's wonderful to keep other girls' addresses in—?? Stationery (to write home for money on) and many other suitable gifts, such as

Eversharp Pencils Brief Cases
Pen Desk Sets Keytainers

For the Mama, Oh here you'll find some wonderful things, everything but a marcel—a new kodak is about the best I know of, there isn't anything that gives us a bigger kick than to get out the photograph albums and look at Uncle Mike and Aunt Bridget and little Ikey and the rest—

Gift Stationery Photograph Albums
Bibles Leather Purses

For the girls, well, some folks think all girls are chickens, but they're not, even though their dads are henpecked, well, there's just so darned many things, here for instance, etc.—

Bridge Sets Silver and Bronze Sets
Portable Typewriters Purses

Now, for the boys, there's nothing that will tickle a boy's palate like

Games Mechanical Toys
Books Small Kodaks

Last, but not least, the little tot's most appropriate gifts—

Children's Gifts and Games
Children's Books

I have made a few suggestions here, my friends, but the best way to do, is to COME DOWN, "HEN AROUND" the store and I'll guarantee you'll be able to satisfy every wish.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, Dec. 20.—Dr. and Mrs. Charvet, of San Bernardino, were Sunday visitors in the home of Mrs. Charvet's sister, Mrs. Cora Steck.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCormick and family were Sunday visitors in Belleflower, where they were guests of Mr. McCormick's mother, Mrs. Kate McCormick.

Mrs. Thelma Hollenbeck, sister of Mrs. W. P. Treece, and Harry Shade, of Los Angeles, were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mrs. Treece.

W. P. Treece returned Monday with a crew of men from Hesperia, where he has completed a contract in rig building. Mr. Treece is now on a contract for the Rex Oil company in the Huntington Beach field.

Mrs. O. Jensen, of Boulevard Gardens tract, secured a lovely embroidered bed spread at the Mooseheart bazaar held Saturday at Huntington Beach.

An artistic roofed drive has just been completed at the Worthy super-service station at the Oceanview corner by the owner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Porter entertained as their house guests over Sunday night and Monday, Mrs. Porter's niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Will Sanger, of Big Pine.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters and family are now cozily settled in the home which they recently purchased of H. H. Hathaway.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Finlayson were Sunday visitors in Long Beach and Compton.

The increased attendance at the Wintersburg Methodist Sunday school continues, 161 pupils again being enrolled for the second time last Sunday.

Precious Remedy For Rheumatic Pains

Recently Improved and Druggists Praise It

Acute Inflammation, Swelling, Pain and Distress Speedily Surrender.

When you are tortured with rheumatic agony you want to get rid of it as soon as possible.

You want to be at work again because you want to bring home the weekly pay envelope so necessary to the comfort of your family.

You want to drive all this suffering out of the system—and keep it out.

Broad minded pharmacists will advise Allenru because they know of the countless number of people it has helped.

They know it is a real remedy because of their training and because the makers of Allenru have so much faith in it that they authorize druggists everywhere to dispense it with the distinct understanding that one big bottle must do what the buyer expects it to do or money back.—Adv.

Stubborn motors that say "No" when they're cold

. . . start quickly, purr smoothly on "DRY" gas

SOME cold morning—when you are in a hurry—you'll discover what's the matter. "Grind, whine, growl," goes the laboring starter. "Gurgle, sigh, wheeze," goes the flooded carburetor.

Suddenly you'll realize that "wet" gasoline, full of heavy kerosene-like fractions, is causing your starting troubles. Not enough can vaporize to catch from the spark in a cold motor!

Some refiners add "wild" light fractions to make "winter gasoline." That doesn't correct the trouble. Your motor will sputter and miss for blocks after it starts. Such gasoline is still "wet."

Worst of all is the oil dilution which "wet" gasolines cause. The gasoline that can't burn pours down cylinder walls, washing away the oil film, ruining the crankcase oil.

Shell 400, the "dry" gas, has the heavy "wet" parts removed in refining. All of it can vaporize. Half choke is enough to make it start quickly on the coldest morning. It runs smoothly without any choke almost as soon as the motor starts. And because it burns cleanly, you avoid oil thinning.

Fill with Shell 400 the next time your tank is almost empty. Give this really quick starting "dry" gas a chance to cure your stubborn motor.

BLOW YOUR BREATH ON A COLD MIRROR

. . . that's what happens to "wet" gasoline in a cold motor—it condenses in droplets on the cylinder walls. "Dry" gas, on the other hand, stays vaporized better and therefore burns more cleanly

"Why Prohibition So Succeeding," for High School Oratorical Contestants and Others

The material printed below comprises the fifteenth publication of material intended for the use of the high school students in helping them to prepare their orations for the forthcoming oratorical contests on the subject, "The Citizens' Obligation of the Eighteenth Amendment," which culminate in the finals in Santa Ana on Feb. 28.

Each high school has been furnished some material for the use of its students. There are some books and pamphlets in the office of The Register which can be used by the students here at any time they desire to come in. An hour will be set apart for help in the way of counsel by Register representatives for any high school students who desire additional information.

The next installment of this material will be published next Monday night. It might be well not only for the students but for all people who desire to keep informed on this matter to preserve these papers or the clippings.

THE ADVANCE OF PROHIBITION

Cumulative experience since the Prohibition Act was written into the fundamental law of the land as the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, has proved that the tremendous benefits to the nation, to the community, and to the individual are today increasing in all expected and many unexpected ways.

A nation-wide survey of the effects in their economic, social, and moral aspects which have followed the operation of national prohibition yields constantly growing evidence of improving conditions in business, in politics, in family life, with labor, with employer, and with the country as a whole. Savings bank investors have more than doubled in number since 1919; the saloon is no longer a political power in the community; more homes are being built; more employees are saving money and using it to economic advantage; real estate values are helped; constructive business is supplanting the destructive saloon, and the result of the entire process is the enhancement of national prosperity and happiness. This but partially tabulates the findings throughout the United States.

In chronicling almost daily the mounting advantages which have come with prohibition. One of the leading eastern newspapers has interviewed heads of organizations representing fully 14,000,000 Americans, compassing all section of the United States. The results of these extensive inquiries are significant and encouraging. The replies convincingly refute the propaganda of the liquor interests that the dry sentiment is waning or is about to collapse, and show that in reality lar appreciation of its benefits were lar appreciation of its benefits were never closer to the people than right now. The interviews also show that the influential voting citizen, who represents the best element in the American public, believes that prohibition is an important step in the right direction, and is determined not to risk losing its benefits by allowing adulterated or modified prohibition to be put over by any subterfuge of the organized wets.

What Herbert Hoover Says

Herbert Hoover, our President, formerly secretary of commerce, who is admittedly in a position of vantage to estimate accurately the economic value of prohibition, finds that the operation of the Volstead Act has already been preeminently successful. He said recently:

"There can be no doubt of the economic benefits of prohibition. I think that increased temperance over the land is responsible for the enormously increased efficiency in production, which statistics gathered by the Department of Commerce show to have followed the passage of the law.

Mr. Hoover pointed out that higher productivity, better movement of commodities, full employment, higher wages, greatly increased savings, and large additions to home building have marked all of the prohibition years.

Another Expert's View

Dr. Thomas Nixon Carver, nationally known economist, and professor at Harvard University, declares that national prohibition gives the people of the United States untold economic advantage over rival countries. He characterizes the use of intoxicating drink by any nation as a tremendous waste and warns that no land today can maintain its position in the progress of competing nations and be held back by the drag of intemperance. In a study which he has completed for the Encyclopedia Brittanica, he says in part:

"So long as all the rival nations are wasting resources and manpower in drink there may be no differential advantage in favor of any one or against any of the others; but when one nation, such as the United States, makes a definite advance in this form of economy, unless it indulges in some folly that will neutralize the advantage thus gained, there is no reason to doubt it will gain on all others, year by year, decade by decade, and century by century, and eventually dominate the civilization of the world. They who refuse to take this great step forward in the economy of human resources, whether they understand it or not, are definitely choosing to occupy a secondary position in the civilized world."

The Violator Is the Failure, Not Prohibition, Says Henry Ford

The words of Henry Ford, in whose factories drinking of intoxicants in any form brings peremptory dismissal, carry increasing conviction of the success of the Eighteenth Amendment. The following is from "Mr. Ford's Page" in the Dearborn Isdependent:—

"The fact that a law is violated does not mean that that law is bad. Burglars consider that laws against house-breaking should never have been framed, gunmen are of the opinion that the statute which makes it an offense for them to take the lives of their fellow men is all wrong, and thugs in general are quite certain that their liberties are unnecessarily curtailed by legislation of any kind. Yet no one would assert that the burglar, the gunmen, and the thug are right....

After its five years of trial, prohibition is not a failure. It is the people who have neglected to correspond with it who are the failures. If it took Christianity hundreds of years to obtain a footing, why should anyone consider five years sufficient for a tryout of the greatest reform since the introduction of Christianity itself? The good that has already come from it infinitely outweighs the evils, and the evils that are do not arise from prohibition but the failure to practice it.

Foreigner's Estimate of Prohibition

William Paxton, Scottish writer and Fellow of the Royal Geographical society, concludes his recently published book, "The Truth About Prohibition," with the following unqualified endorsement:

"I believe that prohibition in the United States, in spite of the lawbreakers, and the wealthy and unscrupulous people who encourage law-breaking, is one of the most beneficial measures in the history of government; and I am confident that, with passing years and the rearing of a race that has never seen a saloon, America will give a lead to the whole world in solving one of the most difficult problems of modern times."

Millions of Dollars Saved Yearly

Among the many accomplishments which the report of the subcommittee on the alcoholic liquor traffic of the House of Representatives credits to prohibition is the fact that it "had enabled charitable organizations to take $74,000,000 per year from funds formerly used to support cases of drink-caused poverty, and use this money in constructive welfare work." The report also declares that "Labor is becoming a capitalist," and explains that "this is not alone through the many great labor banks which are today playing a prominent part in financing industry, but also through individual purchases of corporation stock by employes, many of whom under the license system had no marginal funds to invest in anything." Likewise does the House committee find that "the increase in the number of contracts for residential buildings has been record-breaking since the Eighteenth amendment went into effect," and that "the higher standards of living developed since prohibition have favorably affected both manufacture and distribution."

Signs of the Times

The 1925 International convention of the World Woman's Christian Temperance union, representing 750,000 women in 51 different countries, held in Edinburgh, stands as a prophetic indication of the cumulative sentiment in favor of prohibition in all nations. The reports from the 51 countries comprised the most optimistic signs of a definite trend toward dry legislation. Resolutions adopted at the close of the convention based a forward-looking program on the ground that world democracy, world peace, world purity, and world patriotism demand the world-wide extinction of the liquor traffic. Of the success of prohibition in the United States, Miss Anna Adams Gordon, president of the world organization and leader of the American delegation, said in part:

"Prohibition has strengthened the moral, physical, financial and spiritual fiber of our national life. Drinking has been reduced between 70 and 80 per cent. For the last three or four years the New York City Salvation Army has had to give up its annual "Boozers" day because there were not enough drunks on the street to make the gathering a success.

"Since the enactment of the Eighteenth amendment arrests for drunkenness have been reduced more than one-half. Alcoholic insanity has been reduced 66 per cent annually. Inmates of county jails have been lessened 200,000 per year. Mortality rates have been lowered 1,000,000 over a period of three years. Homes are happier and children are healthier; streets are safer for the boys and girls; thousands of children who once would have supported drinking are now high school and college students."

(To Be Concluded)

Logan School

Logan school is the only one of all the schools in Santa Ana that is working now. We had to wait for the new building to be finished and started a week late, so that is why we are in school now. We are having good attendance even if it is hard to give up our vacation. There were only three pupils absent in the whole school today.

—LORENZO MARTEL.

Mrs. Campbell has been teaching us Nature study and English. In Nature study we have been learning about birds. The Frances Willard girls gave us a program and very good presents. I think they were very kind to us, I am glad that Mrs. Bertha Palmer has come to teach us for a few days. We are having a short vacation on account of the new building not being done for the opening of shcool.

—JOHN FLORES.

In Miss Lamb's room we are making tiles for the hot dishes. These will be Christmas presents for our mothers. On Tuesday the Girls' club of Frances Willard gave us a party and some presents. They were so nice to us, we wish to have them come again. Mrs. Palmer is in our school because we have to make up the 5 days we lost at the beginning. Mrs. Campbell is on her vacation. The night class at Logan school had a party December 18th.

—YNEZ GONZALEZ.

The girls of Frances Willard came Tuesday to bring us gifts. Three of the girls sang "Silent Night" and "Deck the Halls with Holly." They sang the prettiest of anyone I ever heard. I got for Christmas a very pretty gift. I like it very much.

—YGNASIA ESQUIVEL.

In Miss Lamb's room we are making tiles. Each tile costs four cents. Our school will be in session five days during the vacation because our building was not finished in time to open with the other schools.

—CANDELARIO ARREOLA.

We read library books in Miss Good's room every Friday. We enjoy them very much.

—JOAQUINA LAZANO.

Teacher Returns

Miss Black is back in school again. She was ill for a week. She is our physical education teacher. The Logan boys' team were going to have a game with the John C. Freemont team but didn't because Miss Black was ill.

—ISABEL FLORES.

Salestino Valencio, a pupil of the Low 7th grade of The Frances Willard school visited our class today. He was in our school last year. He came to see our new building, his friends and teachers. We were glad to have him visit us.

—JENNIE REYES.

The Frances Willard girls gave us a party Tuesday. Some of the girls sang Christmas songs which we enjoyed. Their Christmas party always brings joy to the girls and boys of Logan school. We are going to have our school party Friday. A happy merry Christmas to all.

—ROBERT OVIEDO.

Mrs. Harter had a party for the night school class and their friends Dec. 18. About 100 pupils came to the party. She had candy and nuts for them and the school was decorated for the party.

—MANUEL ESTRADA.

TUSTIN

TUSTIN, Dec. 20.—A guest in the R. J. Carney home on East Seventeenth street this week is E. T. Carney of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Carney expects to remain until the middle of January.

The regular meeting of the Isaac Walton league has been postponed.

Initiation of new members featured the regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters in the Pythian hall last night. Following a short business meeting, Mr. and Mrs. George Firtch, Mr. and Mrs. George Young, and Miss Bonnie Kiser were initiated. The meeting was in charge of past chiefs, who served refreshments of hot tamales and pumpkin pie with whipped cream.

About 50 were present. The installation ceremonies will probably be January 2.

Mrs. N. L. Edson, who has been packin fruit at Paloma for the past few weeks, is expected home tomorrow.

Hard-Boiled Santa

The Story of a Cowhand Who Had One Chance To Be Kind . . . And Took It

By RUTH TUTHILL

Illustrations By GEORGE CLARK

When the boy Ralph rode . . . Jensen felt each buck-jump as though he'd been sitting on the horse himself.

JENSEN suspected from the first that the boy had run away from something. Something that might catch up to him any day and hale him back. Jensen didn't ask him any questions. But he watched.

Jensen was top cowhand on the Randolph ranch. He had a reputation for hard-boiledness. He was proud of it and lived up to it. The boy Ralph had drifted in one cold evening, a few weeks before Christmas, and had asked to be taken on.

Questioned if he could ride, he said: "A little." Said it with a little slight grin. Jensen, watching even from the first, thought he could probably sit a horse better than some and took him on.

"How old are you, Buddy?" asked Jensen.

"Nineteen."

"Raised around here?"

"Nope. North. Panhandle-way."

"Come from that a-way myse'f," said Jensen. "Ain't been back for most 20 years."

The boy said nothing. He was a fair-haired boy with bright blue eyes. And he had, of course, splendid shoulders and a slim, hipless shape, being a cowboy.

"That new hand sure can ride," they said in the bunk house a day or so later. They'd picked on him for the bad horses and he'd sat them all.

Jensen had watched each ride. He'd seen green hands tried out before now and hadn't cared a damn whether they stuck or not. He'd laughed when they were thrown. But when the boy Ralph rode he'd felt each buckjump as though he'd been sitting the horse himself. After the ride on "Tornado" the boy had been white and faint and Jensen had been the first to bring him a whisky flash, though he had never done anything like this before in his life. You rode and you took your medicine.

"You sure are kind," said the boy as he wiped his mouth with the back of his hand. "Kind like Santa Claus!"

KIND! To Jensen, the scowling, hard-boiled one! Jensen wasn't sure he liked the idea of being thought "kind."

Nights they played poker. The boy had a way of winning. Even Jensen lost to him. And Jensen wasn't accustomed to leave a poker game poorer than when he went in.

"Say, Buddy," he remarked, after having been cleaned out of 50 bucks, "you must be gettin' quite a pile saved up."

"Aimin' to," said the boy Ralph. "I expect to be needin' it."

A cowboy saving money!

They were out after a bunch of cattle, rounding them up and getting them in for the branding. Jensen hadn't gone with the outfit. Something had gone wrong with the windmills. He had to see about the repairs.

He was alone in the ranch house. The bunks with their rough blankets were empty. There was one under the window that seemed to Jensen emptier than the rest. It was Ralph's. He remembered how the boy's fair, wind-burned face looked mornings with the blond hair rumpled and the vividly blue eyes blinking with sleep. Once he'd raised himself on his elbow in the night and had looked across at Ralph's bunk. The moon was round and high and in the light of it the boy's face was pale and still. Jensen had lain that way a long time, looking. There were snores and restlessness and mutterings all round him, but the boy slept calmly and quietly.

He looked like a girl sleeping there, Jensen thought. His mouth was soft and tender like a girl's. Jensen hadn't noticed before how curved it was. And suddenly, at some memory, Hard-boiled Jensen turned on his stomach in his bunk and hid his face on his arms. Next morning he was ashamed of himself. Hearing Ralph swearing profusely and more than holding his own among the other cowboys with a choice collection of profanity, he tried to forget that he'd been such a boob in the night. Why, the boy was pretty nearly as hard-boiled as he was himself. And he was only 19.

JENSEN, himself, had been rather soft at 19, he remembered. Too soft to face trial for the money he hadn't stolen but which he couldn't prove he hadn't. That's why he had called himself Jensen and had run away to Mexico. Mexico had taken all the softness out of him. After 15 years he had come back. It was a risk, but Texas called him. So he was back as Jensen, the hard-boiled.

He had found out about Molly a long time before. He'd guessed. A Panhandle man he'd met in Mexico City had told him. Well, that was all right, too. He'd wanted her to think he was dead. Besides, he'd done things in Mexico that separated them worse than dying. No one had known they were married anyway, boy and girl folly, kept secret until they could live openly together. A few stolen meetings, that was all there had been to their marriage. Dreams now. Almost forgotten.

Then the money had been missed. Jensen had carried the letter in which it had been sent from the postoffice to the ranch owner for whom he'd been working. It was a clear case against him. Even Jensen himself couldn't think of anyone who would have had a chance at it. But still, if he hadn't been so soft, if he hadn't quit, if he'd had the guts to stand trial, perhaps the truth would have come out. Oh, well!

It wasn't until just before turning-in time that Jensen had a chance of a word with the boy alone. . . . He found him under the windmill, where Ralph went to wash up.

More likely he would have rotted in jail for it. He was glad he'd done as he did. As for Molly, he hadn't hurt her any.

Life had been bitter in spots but he'd gotten a kick out of it. More than he would have got out of being married to Molly he reckoned. Still he remembered her as she was at 17, blond and blue-eyed and tender-lipped. It was that that had got him in the night. Ralph's mouth in the moonlight had somehow reminded him of Molly's. Looking at Ralph's empty bunk now it came back to him.

SOUNDS of horses outside. Men's voices. Jensen went to the door. Three riders out there seen in the dim light that came through the ranch house doorway, the sheriff and two revenue officers.

"We're lookin' for Tom Runyon," said the sheriff. "He here?"

Jensen started. He hadn't heard his name spoken in a long, long time. Had they found out about him? After 20 years, was he going to jail?

He stuck his hands in his belt because they trembled, and leaned against the doorjamb—a tall, muscular, indifferent figure.

"Nope."

"Ain't got nobody workin' for you by that name?"

"Hell, no."

"Have had, ain't you?"

"Nope. Ain't never heard the name before."

The men looked at each other. "Damn funny!"

They began again. "Ain't seen anything of a boy 'bout 19 or 20, white-headed, blue eyes, a good-lookin' boy? Great hand at poker. Sure can ride. Must have blown in here about a month ago if he come at all."

Jensen snapped out of assumed indifference like a spring that is pulled too taut. But you'd never have known it. Ralph! They meant Ralph!

"Nope. Ain't been here. What's he wanted for?"

"Bootleggin'. Been gettin' stuff over the line and totin' it up Panhandle-way by auto. Married, too, the damn fool. We got the dope from his wife. Give her the third degree. Women can't keep a secret."

"Well, he ain't here," said Jensen. "If I meet up with any one that covers them points you mentioned I'll sure let you know."

In two days the outfit was back again. Christmas was coming and the men were in holiday spirits. The boy Ralph rode at the head of the herd. He was gay and dirty. He was singing a cowboy song.

"'For we all love our cowboy. Although he done wrong.'" The long-horned cattle and their blatting calves came trooping along with the cowboys riding to left and right. Ralph was the gayest, the happiest of the lot. Jensen was conscious of something like pride of him swelling his heart. The boy sure had nerve. He was game. You'd never think he was up against the sheriff.

IT wasn't until just before turning-in time that Jensen had a chance of a word with him alone. He found him down under the windmill when Ralph went to wash up. The boy was stripped to the waist and his smooth shoulder and chest muscles were white in the cold starlight. A good-lookin' boy, the sheriff had said. Yes, he sure was that! Again that swelling of pride at Jensen's heart.

"There's been three of your friends lookin' for you, Buddy," he said.

The boy stopped throwing the icy water over him from the tin dipper. Then he laughed.

"Sure didn't know I had that many! Who was they?"

"The sheriff and two revenue officers. Thought they was lookin' for me at first, though I ain't committed no bad crimes jest lately. But they said it was a bootlegger they wanted and that let me out. Bootleggin's about the only thing I ain't done or been accused of doin.' Then they went on to say they wanted a boy 'bout 20, a white-headed boy that sure knew how to ride and play poker. They give his name as Tom Runyon, but I reckon they meant you, Buddy."

The boy thought a minute, shining there in the starlight like something out of classic Greece, then evidently decided there wasn't much use in lying.

"I reckon they did, maybe. Tom Runyan was my dad's name and they named me after him. Took advantage of me when I was a baby. Sure don't know why they done it when he wasn't man enough to stand by my mother when I was a-comin.' Gawd, but I was glad to shake that name! A quitter like him!"

JENSEN'S bold, hard eyes had a queer expression in them. Almost like the beginning of tears. He was looking at the boy's mouth, which at this moment wasn't tender. Of course he'd been right that night in the moonlight. It was like Molly's.

"Maybe he didn't know what-all he was quittin'," said Jensen.

The boy laughed. The lips that were like a girl's, like Molly's curled scornfully.

"He sure knew he was quittin' my mother."

"Buddy," said Jensen, for he had to be sure, "what was your mother's name?"

"Molly," said the boy briefly. 'And she sure was a good woman. My stepdad seen that anyway, and treated her accordin'. Well, she's dead now. It don't make no difference to her any more."

Molly dead! Well, that settled things. No use hoping now.

"Reckon you might have taken your stepdad's name if you didn't like your old man's," said Jensen—said it rather wistfully.

"He wanted me to and I'd have liked it. But my mother wouldn't let me. Seems like she always liked my dad better than she did the others, spite of everything."

"Some women is like that!" said Jensen. "Faithful!" And there was something like triumph in his voice. Molly hadn't forgotten.

"And some men is like my father—quitters!" said the boy. "Well, what you goin' to do about my bein' wanted? Let 'em take me to jail?"

"I AIN'T aimin' to," said Jensen. "I was was aimin' to get you off to Mexico—you and that girl they say you've got hitched up with."

The boy shook his head. "It can't be done. She's got a kid comin'. That's what I'm savin' money for. It's to make her comfortable when the kid comes."

"When's she expectin' it?" Jensen said in a hushed voice.

"'Bout three months now, accordin' to the doctors." There was a curious mixture of embarrassment and pride about the boy then.

"Well, there's doctors in Mexico City and hospitals—good ones! Don't you worry, Buddy. I'm goin' to he'p you, like your dad would he'p you if he had the chance."

"Before I'd take he'p from a skunk like him I'd rot!" said the boy.

Jensen smiled. "Guess it's jest as well you and your old man never met up, Buddy," he said. "But you're goin' to Mexico jest the same."

The boy was thoughtful. He was considering the proposition.

"When do you reckon them officers will be ba'k for me?" he asked.

"Expectin' 'em any time now," said Jensen.

"Then there ain't no use tryin' to get me across to Mexico," said the boy. "There wouldn't be time to go up the Panhandle and get the girl. And I won't go without her. Takes a man like my father to do a thing like that!"

"No, you ain't like him," said Jensen. "But there'll be time all right. There's a way. Leave it to me, Buddy. I'll see you get plenty of time. You saddle that pinto pony of mine and get goin'. I'll fix it. I've always liked you, Buddy. Shake."

The boy put his hand into Jensen's and gripped it. You sure are kind," he said. "I ain't forgotten how you give me the booze the day I rode Tornado. The girl's the best friend I got, I reckon, but you're next."

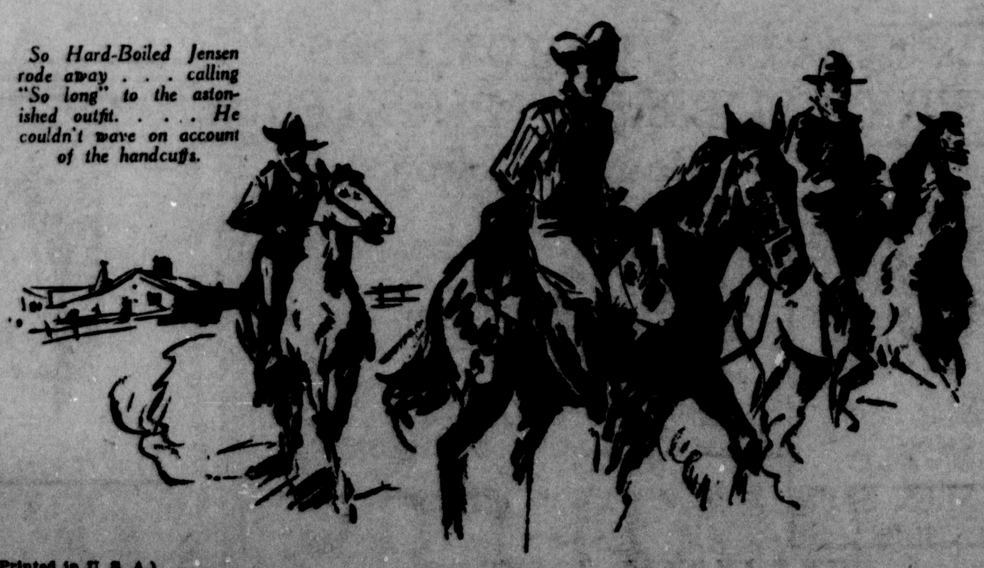
"WELL," said Jensen the next night when the sheriff returned, "still lookin' for Tom Runyon?"

The officers' faces were stern. "Yes, and quit your foolin'. We got proof that a man by that name's been on this here ranch for a month."

"Longer'n that," said Jensen. "Tom Runyon's my name and I've been workin' here best part of five years now when I ain't been bootleggin'. That good-lookin'-kid stuff don't fit me, but the name sure is mine. Reckon I'm your man."

They looked at each other. Something damn funny about this! "Well," said one of the revenue officers, grimly: "It's a cinch we ain't goin' back to headquarters without no prisoner at all. You'll have to come along with us seein' you're Tom Runyon and the warrant's sworn out in that name. You bootlegger's up to all kinds of dodges. Guess there's another Tom Runyon that we'll have to get later. But you'll do for now. Sheriff, got your bracelets?"

So Hard-Boiled Jensen rode away, rode away calling "So-long" to the astonished outfit. He couldn't wave goodby to them on account of the handcuffs. Rode away smiling. By the time they'd find out their mistake the boy and the girl he married would be safe in Mexico. But he was in for it. They'd find out how he'd fooled them and it would go hard with him when they tried him for that old crime. Robbing the mails. That's what they'd say he'd done. And he wouldn't be able to prove he hadn't. For he'd have to stand trial now. He'd given himself up. And willingly! Funny how just finding out you had a kid of your own by a woman you'd loved—a game kid too—made it easy to do things like this!



So Hard-Boiled Jensen rode away . . . calling "So long" to the astonished outfit. . . . He couldn't wave on account of the handcuffs.

POSTAL HEROES FACE PERILS IN WINTER ROUTES

BY CECIL OWEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Peace has its heroes no less renowned than war.

Should any doubting Thomas question the verity of this adage, there are countless reports in otherwise prosaic government files to prove his scepticism unjustified.

Records of bravery and heroism paralleling the deeds of daring by those who have faced enemy gun fire bear testimony to the valiant service by the nation's public servants.

Consider some of the men who carry the mails over dangerous mountain routes, through winter blizzards in the far northland of Alaska, or over floating ice packs in frozen lakes. In the past two and a half years 56 "star route" mail carriers have lost their lives while in the performance of duty.

Work Under Contract

To many a lonely outpost of civilization the intrepid star route carrier is the sole contact with the outside world. His daily, or sometimes weekly and monthly visit, is an event of the first order. Star routes are maintained in many parts of the country where travel is dangerous and regular mail delivery a hazardous occupation. These men are not paid salaries but work under contract, awarded after competitive bidding.

Among the most dangerous star routes served by rural carriers are those from Newport to Otter Rock, Ore.; Ellison Bay to Detroit Harbor, Wisconsin; Rocky Bar to Atlanta, Idaho; and from Sandusky to Kelly's Island, Middle Base and Put-in-Bay, Ohio.

On the Idaho route mentioned deliveries are made by carriers traveling on snow shoes during winter months, packing 50 pounds of mail, and not infrequently they have been caught by snowslides and swept to death.

Rescued From Ice Trap

Between Ellison Bay and Detroit Harbor, Wis., and from Sandusky, O., to nearby islands, the service must be performed over the ice in winter and in the fall when lakes are frozen. During the spring thaw it is extremely difficult and hazardous to carry on the service. A number of carriers have met death between these points.

The Hitchcock brothers, carriers on the route out of Sandusky, were once trapped in a storm and running ice. They were carried down the resistless force of a drift in which they had become wedged. Given up for lost by the islanders the carriers were finally rescued in an exhausted condition and so completely weighed down with ice as to be helpless. It was necessary to tear away and cut away their ice-armored garments.

Similar incidents illustrating the hardihood and daring of the unsung men who risk their lives almost daily that the mails may go through appear often in the records of the Postoffice department.

Musical Program Is Arranged For Methodist Church

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 20.—A musical program has been arranged for the morning service at the Garden Grove Methodist Episcopal church, it was announced today by the Rev. Floyd J. Seaman, pastor.

The program includes an organ number by John M. Pearson; vocal solos by Mrs. S. W. Holt, P. H. Prior, "The Annunciation;" Mrs. I. F. German, "While Shepherds Watched;" Frances Bragg, "Hark, What Means Those Holy Voices;" Mrs. M. R. Sprinkle.

At the morning service the pastor will preach on "The Unique Christ." He will lead the Epworth services at 6 o'clock. The Sunday school will have a program Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. There will be no mid week service Wednesday.

WINTERSBURG

Miss Reberta Irwin was the honor guest Saturday evening at a party given by her mother, Mrs. J. O. Irwin, in observance of her 15th birthday anniversary, the social occasion being observed in the Irwin home at Oceanview. About 30 guests were present and one of the group, Lois Treece, was also celebrating her 12th anniversary upon the same date as Miss Irwin.

The guest list included Mrs. Turner, son, Louis, and daughters, Helen and June Turner; Everette Wiggin, Pasadena; Mrs. Edna Mays and LaVerne Mays, of Whittier; Miss Genevieve Christensen and Miss Virginia Christensen, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Porter and daughter, Joan, of Long Beach; Henry Lang and Miss Muriel Irwin, of Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. Axil, of Los Angeles; Miss Juanita Gothard, of Long Beach; Beth Burdette, Irene Robinson, Mrs. W. P. Treece, Lois Treece, Jack Treece, Ed. Sizer, Kenneth McMillen, Coy Rogers, Vada Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin, Miss Reberta Irwin of this place.

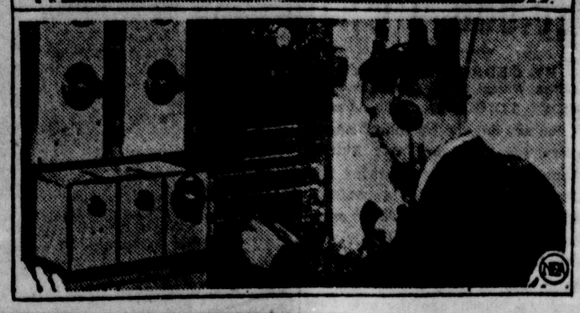
A number of the guests from a distance were entertained over night and Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Irwin and daughter.

HARD TO TOPPLE

Corporal Izzy Schwartz, veteran flyweight boxer who recently retired from the ring, never was knocked out and was knocked down on but two occasions.

PHONE LINKS SHIP AND SHORE

The first two-way telephone conversations between a shore point and a ship at sea were held the other day when persons in eastern cities talked to officers and passengers aboard the steamship Leviathan 200 miles out of New York. The historic event is pictured above as H. A. Lafount, left, of the Federal Radio Commission, D. W. Chapman, president of the United States Lines, and William S. Gifford, right, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, talked with Commodore H. A. Cunningham, master of the Leviathan, through the ether. Below is the short wave length telephone equipment in the deck house aboard the Leviathan. Here incoming and outgoing calls are handled at a charge of $7 a minute up to a distance of 1400 miles.



ARMY TACKLES NEW DESIGN OF PURSUIT PLANE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The most vulnerable spot—the tail of the plane—in pursuit flying may become impregnable if the Air Corps' tests of a new type two-place, three-gun plane prove successful.

This recolutionary change was intimated in announcement today by Assistant Secretary of War Davison that the air corps soon will commence experiments with the new pursuit plane. A new type three place, twin-motored, long distance observation plane also is to be tested, Davison said.

The tests will be made to prove the tactical usefulness and military value of the planes and to determine how they fit into the army air defense program, Davison announced.

"The new pursuit plane, instead of carrying only one man and two machine guns, will carry two men and three guns," Davison pointed out in explaining how it is expected to revise air fighting tactics.

"It is worth while to point out with great emphasis," he continued, "that the rear gun should eliminate the most defenseless spot in pursuit flying. So far, the aim of a pursuit pilot has been to get on the tail of his pursuit opponent in order for him to sign the latter's death warrant, because at present the only pursuit weapons are forward guns in the nose of the ship. With a gun covering the rear of the plane the situation changes as the rear gunner can put up a strong defense and make the position of the attacking pilot extremely unhealthy.

"The bi-plane pursuit plane is no larger than the present single-seater. The gunner is placed in a small compartment with his back to the pilot and is protected from the blast of the propeller by a windshield. Unlike the rear gunners in observation planes, he does not stand up in order to handle his weapon, but is seated with his eyes almost flush with the edge of the cockpit. Fixed to a low post on the fuselage is a machine gun which covers and protects the rear of the plane. It is not possible at this time to discuss the equipment or performance of the new ship nor the specific uses to which it may be put, for various reasons dictated by policy and also because it is an experimental type which we do not yet know a great deal about.

"As for the new long distance reconnaissance plane, that, too, is a distinct novelty in Army Air Corps equipment in more than one respect. It is a monoplane equipped with two powerful motors and is designed to fly or climb on one engine. So far our only monoplanes have been in the cargo class. The new observation craft is also believed to have a wider cruising range and higher speed than observation planes now in use. Orders for two experimental craft of this type have been placed.

"These ships carry crews of three men in tandem—observer, pilot and gunner. The observer is located in the front cockpit and on account of the monoplane design he has exceptionally good visibility in all directions. The plane will be equipped with a powerful long range radio set so that it will be in constant communication with its ground station and able to make conection with its base.

SAINTS ELIMINATED FROM HOOP TOURNEY

Al Kluthe Elected Captain Of Don Football Team

COLLEGE SQUAD IS HONORED AT GRID BANQUET

Al Kluthe, all-conference center, will captain Santa Ana's junior college football next year.

The giant Anaheim snapperback, who played every minute of every conference game for the champion Dons during the great season just closed, was unanimously elected by his teammates last night.

The occasion was the college's annual banuet, sponsored by the Brotherhood of Bachelors, at the First Methodist church.

More than 200 classmates, officials, parents and friends assembled to pay their respects to the greatest team ever produced at the Santa Ana institution.

Kluthe Elected Unanimously

During the banquet ballots were passed to the Don players by Coach Bill Cook. Kluthe was named unanimously on the first ballot.

Kluthe, a three-year star at Anaheim high school and captain there in his senior year, was one of the outstanding linesmen on the champion Santa Ana college aggregation which boasted the most powerful forward wall in the history of the conference.

The banquet was enlivened by many brief but inspirational addresses.

Leo Calland, head coach at the University of Idaho and one of the youngest mentors in the Pacific Coast conference, was the principal speaker. Others who talked were Coach Bill Cook, Coach "Tex" Oliver of the high school; the Rev. George Warmer, pastor of the Methodist church and father of George Warmer jr., one of the stars of the Don eleven; Dr. M. A. Patton, board of education member; Raymond Adkinson, high school vice-principal; Captain Herald Hylton, Dr. Lyman Adams, Baxter Geeting, George Warmer jr. and Captain-elect Al Kluthe.

Rev. Warmer Talks

The Rev. Mr. Warmer opened the program with a humorous talk about the team.

Geeting, graduating halfback, recited an appropriate poem about the spirit of the squad and lauded Captain Hylton for his achievements.

Coach Oliver spoke of football in high school and college.

Dr. Patton, who accompanied the team to Sacramento for the playoff game for the state title, was prevailed on to tell how the team acted on the trip and had many humorous experiences to relate.

Coach Cook, who piloted the Dons through their successful season, lauded the team for its efforts and thanked each member for the work acomplished. He stated that 14 regulars would be missed next year but hoped that the remainder of the squad would carry on the good work of the 1929 team.

George Warmer, in behalf of the team, presented Captain Hylton with a handsome wrist watch and then Hylton presented Coach Cook with a pair of binoculars from the team.

Calland Is Speaker

Calland gave as his main points the desire to want to play football and to be prepared to play football. His outstanding example was Morley Kaer, All-American player for U. S. C. several years ago, who rose to the top rank of football by sheer determination and desire to learn the game.

Kluthe, in thanking his teammates for the honor bestowed on him, mentioned the high point

RICE SELECTS ALL-AMERICA: IGNORES COAST

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Purdue are represented with two places each on the All-America football team selected by Grantland Rice which appears in the current issue of Collier's Weekly.

Army, Iowa, Arkansas, Minnesota and Harvard are represented by one player each.

The selections represent the findings made by Rice aided by an advisory board of football analysts consisting of the following: Dick Hyland, New York American; H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News; George W. White, Dallar News; Edward Cochrane, Kansas City Journal-Post; R. L. (Dink) Templeton, San Francisco Call-Bulletin; A. M. Keeler, Atlanta Journal.

THE ALL-AMERICA

Quarterback, Carideo, Notre Dame.
Halfbacks, Cagle, Army, and Glasgow, Iowa.
Fullback, Welch, Purdue.
Ends, Donchess, Pitt, and Schoonover, Arkansas.
Tackles, Sleight, Purdue, and Nagurski, Minnesota.
Guards, Montgomery, Pitt, and Cannon, Notre Dame.
Center, Ticknor, Harvard.

The Pacific Coast, although represented on Collier's advisory board, won no place on the All-America.

Chris Cagle, Army, halfback, was chosen by Rice for a third consecutive time. Frank Carideo of Notre Dame was chosen at quarter, and John Cannon, his teammate, was put at a guard. Montgomery of Pitt was the other guard, and Donchess, also of Pitt, was placed at an end.

Harvard was represented by Ben Ticknor, center and captain-elect. Purdue's two players chosen were Sleight, tackle, and Welch, fullback.

WEST POINT SQUAD DELAYED BY STORM

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 20.—A blizzard encountered enroute to sunny California threatened today to hold Coach "Biff" Jones' West Point Cadets muscle bound from practice sessions on their transcontinental trip to the Army-Stanford game in Palo Alto.

Delayed one entire day in the snowbound city of Chicago, the Army squad arrived here today after passing up a scheduled field workout at Galesburg, Ill., but hoped to get some practice at Hutchinson, Kan., this afternoon.

HOLLYWOOD WINS

TOD MORGAN TO DEFEND FISTIC TITLE TONIGHT

BY FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Tod Morgan, a dark-haired, handsome little fellow from the far coast, who for the past four years has defended the junior lightweight title as a true champion should, may reach the end of his reign over the 130-pounders tonight, impelled among the has-beens by the capable fists of walloping Benny Bass of Philadelphia.

The challenger figures to whip Morgan on points or stop the champion before the end of the scheduled 15 rounds.

If Tod goes down to defeat and returns to his avocado ranch, he will leave behind a worthy record of a title holder who was willing to fight in defense of his crown. Since he won the 130-pound championship by stopping Mike Ballerino back in 1925, Morgan has engaged in 16 title fights, most of them tough ones. He has always been willing and ready and able to fight, which is more than can be said for most of our champions of recent years.

Bass, who is a 7 to 5 favorite to take Tod's title, is a busy, two-fisted little slugger who can box as well when he needs to. Bass prefers rough going, and is quite a body puncher, a style which should be effective against the none too rugged champion.

It will be the first championship fight in Madison Square Garden for 15 months.

OREGON COACH WILL BE ASKED TO RESIGN

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 20.—The executive council of the associated students of University of Oregon today had adopted a resolution asking the immediate resignation of Captain John J. McEwan, head football coach.

The council reached its decision after a lengthy discussion of a previous recommendation of the athletic committee. McEwan tendered his resignation several weeks ago to take effect at the end of the 1930 football season. Negotiations for a new coach will start immediately, it was understood.

Jack Benefiel, graduate manager, was authorized by the council to negotiate with Captain McEwan for termination of his existing contract.

Rematch Mandell Jimmy McLarnin

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell last night were signed for a return bout on February 4 by Matchmaker Nate Lewis of Chicago stadium. They will meet at 143 pounds, the weight at which McLarnin defeated the lightweight champion at their last meeting. The title is not involved.

ART SHIRES TO ASK SALARY OF $25,000 YEAR

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Fancy salaries are sought by many league players for 1930, but Art Shires' announced intention of asking the Chicago White Sox for a contract calling for a salary of $25,000 next season is one of the biggest demands on record.

Babe Ruth's $70,000 and Rogers Hornsby's $40,000 are the only two contracts with larger figures than Shires is asking.

Shires, who drew approximately $8500 last season, wants his salary tripled because of his avowed drawing power . Shires has had hard luck all his baseball life, where his salary was concerned. Fines took a heavy toll of his last year's pay envelope.

Snubbed By Landis

When the Waco Texas league club sold Shires to the White Sox, he was supposed to get part of the purchase price. Shires carried the case to Commissioner Landis but he never got any part of the transaction.

Ruth's 1930 contract is expected to come up for renewal in January, but there is not expected to be any difficulty in signing the Babe unless he asks for a long term contract. It is understood the Yanks are willing to give him his $70,000 again next year, but they are not willing to gamble as much on him at this date for 1931.

Another American league youngster who has put in a bid for an enormous raise is Wesley Ferrell, North Carolina boy who won more than 20 games for the Indians last season. Ferrell's contract at the start of the year called for $3000, but when he became a regular it was raised.

Ferrell Wants $12,000

Cleveland has offered him a contract calling for approximately $7500 next season, but Ferrell is understood to want $12,000—four times his 1929 salary.

Two veterans who may be more difficult than ever to sign to 1930 contracts are "Dazzy" Vance of Brooklyn and Burleigh Grimes of Pittsburgh. Vance drew $25,000 last season and Grimes almost as much.

One of the main reasons Harry Heilmann, veteran Detroit outfielder, and Bob Meusel, Yankee left fielder, were waived to the Cincinnati Reds was because no American league teams wanted to assume their high salaried contracts.

Anderson Will Be Husky Line Coach

SEATTLE, Dec. 20.—H. Anderson, head coach of St. Louis university will be line coach at the University of Washington next year it was announced here today.

The former Notre Dame player will assist Jimmy Phelan, who was signed as the Huskies' head coach after guiding Purdue to a Big Ten championship this season.

MIAMI TO HARVEST CAULIFLOWER CROP

Miami, Fla., is planning another big heavyweight bout this February. One of the principals will be Jack Sharkey. The Madison Square Garden corporation will name his opponent, probably as soon as the Christmas rush is over. Schmeling, Griffiths, Ricko, Campolo, Von Porat and Scott are all possibilities.

BY WERNER LAUFER
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

As soon as all the holiday tinsel has been packed away in the attic for another year and the pine needles have been swept off the living room carpet, you are going to hear a lot of boisterous ballyhoo of a heavyweight boxing contest to be held in Miami, Fla., early in the new year. This boxing contest, so you will be told, will determine the undisputed heavyweight champion of the world.

With Jack Sharkey, the Great Gabbo of Boston, already assured one corner of the ring, the speculation as to who will sit in the opposite corner is mounting during these days of frenzied package wrapping.

"Tuffy" Griffiths, Johnny Risko, Otto Van Porat, Phil Scott, Victorio Campolo, Primo Carnera—these are just the foremost monickers in the churning cauldron. Besides, there are numerous lesser lights and "boy wonders" who are already mailing their sealed bids.

They Lose—But Clamor

The recent New York Christmas fund bout between Von Porat and Scott that ended in the second round when Phalling Phil went to the canvas claiming his usual foul, should have definitely put these two out of the running.

But you don't know these boys and their managers. No sooner are they out of the shower room after such a comical performance than their clamor for the right to take the moth balls out of Tunney's championship robes is louder than ever.

On December 27, Griffiths, the young sharpshooter of Sioux City, and Risko, Cleveland's entry, will meet in Madison Square Garden

GREENLEAF BEATS RUDOLPH, WINS POCKET BILLIARD TITLE

DETROIT, Dec. 20.—Ralph Greenleaf last night regained the world's pocket billiard championship which he surrendered to Frank Taberski in a playoff in Chicago last year. Greenleaf defeated Erwin Rudolph of Chicago by a score of 125 to 69 in 18 innings. Greenleaf first won the title 10 years ago in Philadelphia.

But the calibre of billiards played by Greenleaf and Rudolph last night was not in keeping with the sensational brand which they displayed in previous engagements. Greenleaf was guilty of two miscues. Rudolph played very spotty billiards and on four occasions was turned back on shots which would be easy for players much less skillful.

At the end of the ninth inning Greenleaf had failed to score while Rudolph was credited with only 25. It was a battle of strategy to this point although it must be said that Greenleaf had no chances to this point to count whereas Rudolph twice was stopped after making short runs due to his poor position play and inferior shotmaking. Rudolph showed plainly that he was feeling the strain and toward the end he failed on two relatively easy shots.

It has been estimated that winning the title was worth between $25,000 and $30,000. First place was worth a salary of $6000 a year paid by the National Billiard association, $1200 in prize money and 16 per cent of the net gate receipts. Rudolph received a salary of $3000, prize money of $1000 and 15 per cent of the net gate receipts.

Fields-Corbett Go Virtually Assured

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—The ring battle for which fans have long been waiting—Jackie Fields vs. Young Corbett—seemed an assured reality today.

Promoter Ancil Hoffman is now in Sacramento, to make application to the state athletic commission for official permission to stage fights here at Recreation park, on Washington's birthday, February 22.

CHINO QUINTET 25-15 WINNER IN H. B. GAME

Defeated in the second round by Chino, 25 to 15, Santa Ana high school was eliminated today from the Southern Counties invitational basketball tournament at Huntington Beach.

San Diego high school went into the quarter-finals by beating Oceanside, 25 to 11. San Diego was to meet Chino this afternoon.

Chaffey, one of the favorites, ran true to form by vanquishing a scrappy Huntington Beach entry, 31 to 19, in the third contest of the day. Chaffey was to play the winner of the Whittier-San Bernardino tussle which was expected to be Whittier.

Coach Clyde Patton's Saints won their first round start, 31 to 11, from Garden Grove late yesterday. They got the jump on the Chilipeppers and were never headed. Their advantage by quarters was 13 to 2, 20 to 6, 26 to 6 and 31 to 11.

Chino, which eliminated Brea-Olinda yesterday by a score of 18 to 7 and did not look any too impressive doing it, showed considerable improvement in winning from the Saints today.

Led by Nash, its rangy center, the Chino quintet swung into an 8 to 4 lead at the first quarter and left the floor for the intermission with the score in its favor, 13 to 7. Santa Ana scored eight points to five in the third quarter and was trailing only 18 to 15 at the beginning of the fourth period. Chino snuffed out the Saint rally, however, and held the Patton team scoreless through the final quarter while adding seven points to its own total.

Quarter-final games were to be played this afternoon with final contests scheduled for tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The lineup:

Santa Ana (15)		(25) Chino
Herren (9)	F	(8) Happ
Gaspar (2)	F	(1) Wright
Lindley (4)	C	(12) Nash
Hall	G	Sagouspe
McChesney	G	Bayergue

Substitutions

Santa Ana—Vance for Lindley, Long for McChesney, Lindley for Vance, Vance for Lindley.

Chino—Mines for Wright, Wright for Mines.

CHAFFEY, WHITTIER SHOW CLASS IN OPENERS

Chaffey and Whittier looked most impressive in first round games at Huntington Beach yesterday, and became heavy favorites for the championship.

Chaffey defeated the veteran Fullerton five, 28 to 22, in the best played contest of the day, while Whittier buried the strong Orange cagemen, 41 to 23.

First round scores follow: San Diego 28, Tustin 16; Oceanside 21, Excelsior, 15; Chino 18, Brea-Olinda 7; Santa Ana 31, Garden Grove 11; Huntington Beach 27,

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Primo Carnera gets 100 letters a day. . . . He cannot speak English. . . . It is believed he will learn rapidly, as he won on a foul from Stribling in his first fight and was smart enough to foul Willie in the second bout. . . . Now Stribling is signed to meet Scott in London . . . the customers over there must be crazy about fouls. . . . A London writing gal interviewed Carnera recently in a restaurant, and he asked her to dance . . . she took the chance, and said that when she felt his hand on her back, it felt like the back of a chair. . . . Jimmy Phelan, during his playing days at Notre Dame, was a waiter in St. Joseph's refectory. . . . Gordon Locke, coach at Western Reserve, which was liberally smeared in nearly every game this year, spoke at the Reserve banquet the other night . . . he said he never had been with a loser two years in a row and he's going to try to put Reserve up there next year. . . . Locke was an All-America back when he played at Iowa.

BIGGER AND BETTER BATTLES

You might walk the streets for hours these days and finally find somebody who doesn't want to fight Art Shires. But the chances are you won't. Because everybody's doing it.

The ballyhoo for the Shires Dan Daly match in Chicago recently had hardly died away, and the echo of the impact of the Great One's glove on the mysterious Daly's whiskers still was sounding when the line started to form to the right.

While interest in the professional box-fighters has ebbed, largely through the fault of the boxers themselves, this new wrinkle in boxing has seized the imagination of the jaded customers. Why pay $90,000 to see a round of pulling and hauling followed by a foul blow, or what a play-acting pugilist can make appear as one? You can go see the ball-players and gridiron lads put on a real fight for much less.

ROBBY VS. McKEEVER

The thing might be carried out along other lines. For years Wilbert Robinson and Judge Steve McKeever of Brooklyn have flung verbal hooks at one another's chin. McKeever simply will not have Robbie as manager of the team, and Robbie, backed by the Ebbets interests, merely asks why not.

Judge Landis tried to bring the warring Brooklyn factions together in a New York hotel room the other day. Words flew in such gobs and with such passion that Landis finally had to bounce all hands with the dramatic gesture of throwing open the door. The two factions refused to ride to the lobby in the same elevator.

These two might be signed up and the gate would be greater than ever crowded any ball park. There might even be a series of bouts—like the Kid Lewis-Jack Britton serial, with great profit and glory for all concerned. As far as Judge Landis is concerned, the two could carry guns into the ring if they wished.

NOTRE DAME-PITT

The proponents of Notre Dame and those who think that Pitt is the best team in the world could be signed up by some promoter with assurance there wouldn't be any fouls asked or given. This quarrel could be billed as a battle-royal preliminary to the Robinson-McKeever main bout—and would you pack them in? All the customers, of course, would be forced to check their brickbats and rifles at the door.

Other swell bouts could be arranged, such as Senator Moses versus a couple of those "wild jackasses," as he labeled the western progressives. Possibilities are unlimited.

PITTSBURGH IN DRILL AGAINST TROJAN PLAYS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 20.—Using Southern California plays as secured by Scouts Tom Davies and Charley Bower in the Trojan-Carnegie Tech game, the Pittsburgh third team scrimmaged against the Panther varsity yesterday.

Despite the intensive scrimmages practice sessions to date have not resulted in injuries and the squad is expected to be in perfect shape when it departs for the West coast Christmas night.

TROJANS RESUME PRACTICE FOR PITTSBURGH GAME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—Southern California's Trojans resumed their training grind today for the New Year's Rose Bowl battle with the Pittsburgh Panthers.

Coach Jones' men gathered for their first workout since the Carnegie Tech game. Light exercise was the order of the day, with scrimmages to come later.

Jesse Hill, fast Trojan backfield star who has been laid up with a charleyhorse, is expected to get back into action in the New Year's battle.

Captain Hylton had set as a leader.

The Bachelors had charge of all arrangements for the affair and the banquet room of the church was gaily decorated to carry out the spirit of Christmas. Three long tables faced the speakers' table. Chester Page, grand exalted ruler of the Brotherhood, was in charge of the affair which was one of the largest for many years.

Announce Lettermen

Every man on the football squad was present. The 29 Dons who will receive monograms and the 21 players who earned a gold football besides their letter, will be awarded their insignia as soon as the orders can be filled. Coach Cook, in making the selections, first awarded the 21 footballs and then because the season was such a lengthy one and the team had such a successful season, gave eight other players letters.

Those who will get the combined rewards are Captain Herald Hylton, Ed Adams, George Warmer, Hal Dunham, Ernest Stump, Frank Miles, Tim Wallace, Joe Warner, Bill Crawford, Phillip Martin, Smith Griswold, Captain-elect Al Kluthe, Wayne Garlock, Baxter Geeting, Franklin Van Meter, Melvin Beatty, Jack Sweetnam, Lloyd Manderscheid, Jack Rimel and Jack Dutton.

Those receiving letters only are Crawford Nalle and Nevin Hoy, John Keeler, Leonard Natland, Charles Andres, Orville Schuchardt, Carol Bertolet and Gene Olsen.

EASTERN TEAM PRACTICES FOR GAME IN NORTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—Twenty-two Eastern football stars, representing 16 universities, were today working the train stiffness out of their systems, at Kezar stadium here.

It took but little time for the members of Coaches Dick Hanley's and Andy Kerr's Eastern all-star team to limber up, in preparation for more intensive workouts before the Shrine charity East-West game here New Year's Day.

Coach Kerr of Colgate and Coach Hanley of Northwestern, are optimistic that the stellar aggregation they brought out, is the equal of last year's team that handed the West a licking.

Glasgow of Iowa, Twomey and Cannon of Notre Dame, Sleight of Purdue, and Nagurski of Minnesota are just a few outstanding members of the East team who have received All-American mention.

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of football for the Big Ten conference, accompanied the team to San Francisco.

The West team, comprising some of the greatest players on this side of the Mississippi, will retire Thursday to the Moraga valley, where it will start practice at the St. Mary's field, while the Easterners work out either at Kezar or down at Stanford, where Andy Kerr formerly coached.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS SCHEDULE IS TOLD

PARIS, Dec. 20.—Dates for play in Davis cup tennis competition were fixed by the cup committee today. The first round competitions must be completed by May 6, the second round, May 18, third round June 9, with zone finals to be played July 11, 12, 13 and interzone finals, July 18, 19, 20.

Final challenge round will be played at the Rolland Garros stadium, at Auteuil, Paris, July 25, 26, and 27.

Switzerland and Hungary today filed entry in Davis cup competition.

for what their backers say is the final step to the title shot in Miami. Aid from recent performances, their claims have more justification than any of the other yelpers. If either should score a decisive knockout, they should be right in that Miami ring.

Griffiths Improving Rapidly

Griffiths has been coming along at a great pace ever since he suffered his first knockout by Jimmy Braddock in his New York premiere. He has won every one of his fights since then, although he has given careful attention not to run into any bad matches. He won from Risko on a foul in their first meeting at Detroit some time ago.

But Johnny has a habit of reversing earlier adverse decisions and promises to do it in this instance. Furthermore, Griffiths is said by some experts to be shy of the experience needed to mix with a man of Sharkey's calibre.

After a period of fistic lethargy caused by lovesickness, according to his manager, Danny Dunn, Risko has been mopping up his opponents. He evened his score with Jimmy Maloney, who had previously beaten him in Boston. He knocked the former fish monger flat in two heats. He followed this by getting revenge on Ernie Schaaf, who had also beaten him in the same town. Risko gave Schaaf a good slathering, although Ernie put up a gallant fight. In addition, Risko won each of ten rounds in his fight with Von Porat, which gives you a good idea how hard it is to keep anybody definitely eliminated in the heavyweight circles.

Has Win Over Sharkey

It isn't more than two years ago that Johnny gave Jack Sharkey a whipping in the elimination to find a suitable opponent for Champion Gene Tunney's farewell appearance. And, for that matter, John could probably do the trick again, for it stands to reason that Sharkey hasn't improved any more than the Clevelander since that time.

But one mark on Risko's record has never been erased. Max Schmeling's clean knockout of the tough Johnny cannot be laughed off by saying John's heart wasn't in the business of fighting that night due to a busted romance. When a man is ducking hooks and blocking crosses, it's a cinch he isn't thinking about Kid Cupid.

Although Schmeling is said to be on the outs with the corporation on account of its high-handed methods of accepting and rejecting their matches, he will be back again from his favorite Germany by the first of the year. And he isn't coming over to play badmington.

With his personality, his resemblance to Dempsey and his giving the Miami fight an international flavor, don't fall into a swoon when you read some morning that the Madison Square Garden corporation has reconsidered and is giving Der Maxie the big plum.

Tools that eat DIRT!

Hoover dusting tools live on dirt.

Let them but touch the draperies, the walls, the door and window frames—dust is gobbled up. In the corners of the piano and radio, among the radiator coils, in the depths of the upholstery—fluff and dirt are instantly devoured. In the stairs, and around the tufts of mattresses, among the books on the bookshelves, in the fireplace—how cleverly they search out, how greedily they swallow, all the dust and lint and elusive bits of dirt.

Hungry dusting tools! Hoover dusting tools!

Swivel joints make it unnecessary for you to twist your wrist, spring catches lock the units instantly in place. Such helpers give to your routine dusting a very special speed and ease.

Yet above-the-floor cleaning is a small matter compared with that of cleaning floor coverings, which store about ninety per cent of the dirt in your home. Helpful as are the Hoover dusting tools, of even greater importance is the faster, easier, more thorough cleaning of rugs which results from the exclusive Hoover cleaning principle, "Positive Agitation." It is so effective that The Hoover removes more dirt per minute than any other cleaner.

Let us demonstrate The Hoover and its dusting tools.. Liberal allowance for your old cleaner. Phone us today.

BARBECUE PLANNED AT SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—Dan Mulherron, past president of the San Clemente Chamber of Commerce, will serve a barbecue feast to friends from Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Clemente at his beach front home Saturday. After the "feed" the guests will attend the Days of '49 Christmas benefit celebration to be staged by the Men's club at the Social club.

Mulherorn's guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton H. Cotton, San Clemente; Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hayes, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sarygent, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Newman, San Clemente; Dorothy and Mickey Butler, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Measday, Los Angeles.

S. A. LEGION TEAM DIRECTS CEREMONY

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—Installation of the officers of San Clemente post No. 331, American Legion, will be held tonight at the Social club under the direction of the initiation team of the Santa Ana post. A record turnout is expected. Refreshments will be served by the village post. A program has been arranged.

The Legion post announces that it will hold a dance on New Year's eve at the Social club to which all Orange county veterans and friends have been invited.

"MOST UNUSUAL" AUTOGRAPH

Presidential scribblings are these strange triangles, circles, parallelograms and other engineering patterns which President Hoover penciled upon a memoranda sheet during an interview. Signed by the Chief Executive, as shown above, they have come into the possession of Thomas F. Madigan, New York autograph dealer, who has set a high valuation upon them as being "the most unusual autograph to come out of the White House in 25 years."

Frances Willard

Robert Tannenbaum, 9th grader, was honored last Friday morning during the regular assembly period when Mrs. Edith Thatcher, sponsor of the Honor society and vice-principal, presented him with a gold scholarship pin as a reward for continuous records of a superior grade. Robert has not only made a most commendable record in his subjects throughout his junior high school course but has also held many school offices which carry considerable responsibility. He is serving his term as president of the Willard Booster club this semester.

Posture Assembly Held

As a culmination of the posture contests held in the various Santa Ana schools a general posture assembly program took place at Willard Friday morning when representatives of all schools were present and were judged by a committee, of which Walter Scott, supervisor of physical education, was chairman. It was a difficult task for the judges to make much distinction between the many school winners.

The first prize, which was a camera given by Ivie Stein, was awarded to Naomi Denning from McKinley school. Second place was won by Nellie Para, Artesia school, and third by Mildred Smith, Edison school.

The boy winning first place was Bob Griffin, Edison school, who won the tennis racket, given by Mr. Neal of the Sporting Goods store. The other place was won by Walton Klepper of McKinley.

These completed the grade school contests.

First place in the junior high schools was won by Lucile Cook, of Lathrop; second place by Jessie McClain, Lathrop; and third by Betty Rowland, Willard. Boys award went to Paul Hales, Willard, first; Harold Boles, Lathrop, second; and John Smith, Lathrop, third. The group winners of girls was decided in favor of Lathrop, while the group winners of boys went to Willard.

The Willard students taking part in the posture program, who had previously won recognition in the Posture Week events were: Betty Rowland, Jeannette Brown, Georgina Irwin, Norma Jane Whittington, and Vivian Westbrook. The boys were Paul Hales, Harold Brock, Bud Hood, Brooks Wright and John Scheel.

Classes Enjoy Speakers

The girls' vocations classes, under the direction of Mrs. Maurine Scott and Mrs. Laura Livenspire, had the honor of having R. E. Cowman and Mr. Anderson, Santa Ana business men, talk to them. Cowman spoke on "Pharmacy." He told of how far back the pharmacy profession dated and why today the drug store and pharmacy are connected as one business. He also explained all about the work and welcomed questions that the girls wished answered concerning the work.

Mr. Anderson spoke on office work. He included secretarial work, book keeping and accountancy. The girls enjoyed it very much as he gave the pros and cons of each line of work. They learned a great deal concerning these different types of occupations and greatly appreciated the opportunity of hearing from these men.

John Muir

The John Muir school had a program on Wednesday, Dec. 18. We had songs, recitations and several solos. Some of the children in the orchestra played for us. It was interesting.

Lois Rohrs.

The boys of our school have been waiting for a coach. Last week Mr. Whittam came. The boys like him very much. We have been practicing hard. He comes every night. If we win he said he would take us to the high school plunge and to see basketball games.

Norman Wyckoff.

Learn Carols

In Miss Good's room we are learning some Christmas carols. Some of them are "Silent Night," "He Shall Feed His Flock" and "Christmas." The one who learns them the best is to sing at our Christmas program on Wednesday.

Evelyn Fraser.

In Miss Mueller's room we have been bringing things to send to Guam. All the children bring different articles to school. We have filled six boxes to send. They give them to the needy children.

Lucille Knowlton.

Games Are Enjoyed

In the afternoon play grounds the boys play indoor basketball, and soccer. The girls play all kinds of games, team games, relays, stunts, races and trapeze work. Shirley Lingren is the junior squad leader, and Ann Womack the senior.

Helen Louise Ryherd.

In Miss Ingram's room we are preparing for January star study by talking about our own world and the planets near us. We have learned many new, interesting things about the sun, moon and stars.

Anne Womack.

ARMY KETTLES AWAIT PUBLIC'S CONTRIBUTIONS

In the midst of gaiety and the inevitable bustle on city streets at the holiday season: in the midst of color and the importance of purchasing gifts for friends and loved ones there stands a silent challenge to the citizens of Santa Ana—the little red kettles of the Salvation Army. Touching is the appeal they hold—unpretentious symbols of the true spirit of giving that prevails at Christmas-tide.

When hearts are warmed in anticipation of that day on which is celebrated the birth of the Christ child in a lowly manger, it is difficult to realize that in this community there live an humble people who are in need. Significant of this are the many letters requesting aid that have flooded the Salvation Army headquarters here. Illustrative of these are the following:

"Dear Sir: I am writing you this few lins to let you know now that I need help and I which you will give me something for Christmas. I have no mother no father nobody. But a poor lady that I live with."

"Dear Sir: I wish you could help me to give Christmas to my children because we are poor. My husband has a month that he hasn't work and I wish to give Christmas to my children. I have three babies."

"Dear Brothers in the Lord: My father and brother is not working and we are poor. We are six in the family two old folks and four children. I am writing these few lines so you will remember us for Christmas."

"Salvation Army, Dear Sir: Merry Xmas to you all. Please sent me something for Xmas. I am very poor and have four kids and don't know what to give them for Xmas."

"Salvation Army: I am a poor lady. I have no husband or children. I am an old woman. I have to work for my living. Won't you bring me some Christmas?"

"Dear Sirs: I am writing these few lines to ask you if you wont help me a little this Christmas. I am a widow and pretty old now so I cant work. I live with a lady but I cant do much work. If you could give me a little help this Christmas I would thank you very much."

And there were many such requests, scrawled in the fading handwriting of old age and painstakingly scribbled on ragged papers and bits of torn cardboard.

The Salvation Army authorities here are laboring to bring cheer into these poverty stricken homes. Confident that it is not the intention of citizens to let "streets of forgotten men" exist in Santa Ana at this Christmas time, Maj. Percy Morton and Capt. Joe Morton urge that assistance be given the needy at this season.

THE OL' GREEN RIVER

A merry war is raging between Utah and the United States as to title to 1000 miles of river bed along the Colorado and San Juan rivers. And this picture, of A. J. Tadge, Salt Lake voyager, was introduced in evidence. Tadge was a member of an expedition boating from Green river to the Grand Canyon. He testified three boats were lost in nine months, and held the stream not navigable. The government seeks title by declaring the streams non-navigable. Much early history of adventure is being recounted by the witnesses.

SAYS DRY LAW AIDS WELFARE WORK IN STATE

By ELWOOD SQUIRES

(United ress Staff Correspondent)
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 19.—(UP)—Remember the pathetic little figure, garbed in calico, who timidly pushed through the swinging doors and across a beer laden room to sing—

"Father, dear father, come home to us now."

But times have changed and the bleary, red nosed renegade who drank his family out of house and home is gone. In his place is a new, and respectable, character.

Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, director of the state department of social welfare, is convinced that all such scenes are history.

"Welfare workers in the old days had much to contend with in this respect," she declared.

"The melodrama was exaggerated, but enough of that sort of thing went on to keep the workers busy. The corner saloon and all its accompanying misery was an ever present problem. We may think what we will of prohibition, but something has changed the old order and we no longer are confronted with that phase of life at its worst.

"County workers constantly tell me of improved conditions as I travel about the state. The old time drunkards are apparently pretty rare. Most of them are staying home and taking an interest in the family they once neglected.

"Instead of sitting around a table in a smoke filled room, drinking liquor, the fathers are sitting in front of their radio tapping out melodies from the air, rather than an accompaniment to the drinking songs of old.

These same county workers tell of apparently incorrigible cases, where a complete reformation has been effected. The houses are painted, they are paying off mortgages, and cultivating gardens. The family which they once abused is now a pride."

An added interest in these individual cases in counties will soon be taken by the state, when organization of the state probation division of the departemnt of social welfare is completed under John Plover, state probation officer. Heretofore the state has had no direct connection with probation work, but Plover will act as a cooperative agency between the various counties in California.

30 MORE ARE NAMED IN SUIT FILED AT BEACH

Suit was filed in the justice court of C. P. Pann in Huntington Beach, Wednesday, for a total of $97,032.42 against 30 residents of Huntington Beach and 20 more "John Doe" names, to be set forth later. The persons sued are those who held any stock in the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company. In order to file suit for such a large amount in a justice court the plaintiffs set forth a small amount against each name, all being within the range of the justice court jurisdiction. But under the peculiar wording of the action it is possible to take judgment against any one plaintiff for the full amount of $97,032.42.

The suit was filed by Dudley Chandler and Glen Behymer, as trustees. Behymer appears as the record attorney. They are residents of Los Angeles. The complaint sets forth that seven members of a certain Callahan family borrowed $89,431.53. The Orange County Bond and Mortgage company, it is claimed, guaranteed the Callahan note, then transferred to Chandler and Behymer as trustees.

Dated Dec. 27, 1926

This note, dated Dec. 27, 1926, never was paid and no interest was paid on it, it is said. The Orange County Bond and Mortgage company refused or was financially unable to pay the note, it is claimed, and so the trustees sue the stockholders of the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company for any part of or all of the note and interest, bringing suit jointly and severally for the part for which each stockholder is liable if all pay and for all of the money from each stockholder if only a few pay or can be made to pay.

The suit grows out of the defendants merely holding stock in the defunct bond and mortgage company. The Callahan note is of a form which, it is alleged, carries full liability to guarantors and all persons holding an interest in the transaction of any nature whatsoever.

Some of the persons sued are day laborers, others are bankers and capitalists, professional and business men.

Similar Suits Here

Similar suits were instituted in the justice court and superior court in Santa Ana on Thursday, December 12, in which a total of 316 defendants were named. The suit in justice court was directed against stockholders whose share of the liability was less than $300, while that in superior court was for larger shares, some of the defendants being charged with as high as $12,000, $14,000 and $40,000. The suit in justice court here was directed against the Orange County Investment corporation, while in superior court the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company was named as well as the investment company.

REV. L. BURDEN SPEAKS BEFORE S. A. LIONS CLUB

An address by the Rev. L. Burden, pastor of the First Methodist church in Inglewood; vocal numbers by Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, accompanied by Miss Allien Lair, and 'cello solos by Eddie Burns, accompanied by Mis Allien Lair, and distribution of toy gifts featured the Christmas program of the Santa Ana Lions club yesterday.

After the Lions had had their fun, the toys were deposited in boxes for forwarding to the Orange County Health camp, in Santiago canyon.

In his talk, the Rev. Mr. Burden pointed out that the birth of Christ had changed the current of the life of the world and commented on the advancement the world has made by following the ideals of the baby born in Bethlehem 1929 years ago.

"Before the birth of Christ civilizations rose and fell," the minister said, in emphasizing the point that Christian civilizaton has survived and will continue to survive.

Stating that physical force never has been effective in settling wars of nations, although temporary success may be the reward of the victorious nation, the Rev. Mr. Burden declared that there never can be permanent peace until all the peoples of the world learn to love each other in the spirit of love exemplified by Christ.

"Unless we bring the influence of this love, and other Christian influences to bear we are headed for war," the speaker declared, and he added that "we have in the White House a man who recognizes the fact that wars cannot be settled by physical force and who realizes that permanent peace may be had only by application of the ideal of brotherly love throughout the whole world."

GUS MAKES THE DOUGH

BON VOYAGE "CHARLIE"

City business was suspended in San Francisco while Mayor Rolph took time off to visit the Dollar liner President Cleveland, to bid goodby to "Charlie" Hong, Chinese friend from his boyhood days, who now is en route home to join the wife he wedded in China 32 years ago, and the 31-year-old son he has never seen. He can live a life of ease on his savings.

NEA

EARLY MAILING OF CHRISTMAS CARDS IS URGED

With the flood of outgoing Christmas parcels somewhat subsided, the flood of Christmas greeting cards into the Santa Ana post office today was very much in evidence.

"We are hoping that the greatest proportion of the greetings messages will be mailed today and Saturday," said Postmaster T. E. Stephenson. "The carriers will have a tremendous load of envelopes to work through their cases Monday and Tuesday and by hard, faithful work they will see that these tokens of good will are delivered before Christmas.

However, cards mailed late may be subjected to unexpected delays. A greeting delivered a day or two before Christmas gives more satisfaction to the one receiving it than would be the case if delivery is not made until after Christmas. Therefore, the Santa Ana post office and all its employes urge upon its patrons that greeting cards be mailed tomorrow in preference to Monday."

The first automatic telephone exchange in Russia has recently been completed. It served the city of Rostov-on-Fon.

The city of Youngstown, Ohio, shows a gain of 34 per cent in long distance calls over last year as against an average increase of 20 per cent throughout the state.

ROBERT SPEED IS SUCCESSFUL WITH WRITINGS

Five short stories and several articles sold in the first year of writing for profit is the gratifying attainment of Robert Speed, Santa Ana man.

One of the most recent of Speed's published articles is "Mexico, the Unmoving," in the December issue of the Nomad. The author, who is a recognized expert in matters of Aztec archeology, spent a number of years exploring Mexico and under the surface disturbances found, he says, a country as stable as the Sphinx, possessing a magic for the sensitive as compelling as any of that in the Old World."

The story tells in an interesting way of the author's journey through a part of Mexico with a well educated Mexican youth, Carlos. "Together we dreamed at Xochimilco and Guadalupe, together explored Guanajuato's catacombs and conjured back forgotten ages at Teotihuacan."

The description of the Pyramids of Old Mexico are especially alluring. Carlos and the author ascend to the summit of the great Pyramid of the Sun, next to Cheops, the largest artificial mound in the world, and see a mile away the great Pyramid of the Moon. Carlos declares that these pyramids were standing when the ancestors of the Aztecas came to ancient Mexico.

The Mexico of the Mexicans is vastly different from the American-rotted Tia Juana, Speed reveals. The article is beautifully illustrated.

Speed recently was awarded a $150 prize by the McFadden Publications and the prize story will appear in one of the magazines of the company under the title of "The Question Without An Answer." Following his illness of a year ago, Speed was forbidden by his physicians to return to business. Writing, he says, always had intrigued him, so he took up short story writing.

Delightful Luncheon Is Presented at Las Ondas

A delightful Christmas luncheon in the quaint dining room of Las Ondas cafe at Laguna Beach was enjoyed yesterday by members of the Justus Bridge club. The charmingly appointed luncheon was planned by Mrs. Harry Gardner, Mrs. Jess Elliott and Mrs. John Sexton.

While tables were arranged for the afternoon's card games, members held a gift exchange during which they presented their president, Mrs. Austin Harden, with a pretty boudoir pillow.

When bridge scores were collected Mrs. R. R. Russick was high with Mrs. Henry Lyle second and Mrs. Austin Harden low. They received attractively wrapped gifts.

Those enjoying the affair included Mrs. R R. Russick, Mrs. Henry Lyle, Mrs. Austin Harden, Mrs. Jess Elliott, Mrs. A. Granas, Mrs. John Sexton, Mrs. Don Matics, Mrs. Carl Knox, Mrs. Richard Gilliland, Mrs. Don Mozley, Mrs. Harry Gardner and Mrs. Henry Wagner.

Former Santa Ana Man Marries Hollywood Girl

Santa Ana friends of James Finley, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Finley of this city, have just received announcements telling of his marriage last Sunday to Miss Ramona Wallace of Hollywood.

The ceremony took place at the Wilshire Presbyterian church with the pastor of the church officiating and immediately afterwards the two left for a honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead.

On their return they will make their home at Ontario where Mr. Finley is superintendent of the Orange Bi-Products company. The young man is well known in this city where he attended the local schools, later graduating from Pomona college. His wife is a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Pythian Sisters Hold Christmas Party

Tall red tapers in unique holders made of pine cones and cotoneaster berries graced the tables which were laid in K. P. hall Wednesday for 65 members and their families of the Pythian Sisters. Vases of winter flowers enhanced the beauty of the colorful affair.

Mrs. Powers, mother of Calvin Powers, who celebrated her eighteth birthday anniversary yesterday was presented an elaborately decorated cake.

The children present were delighted when Mrs. Santa Claus entered and distributed gifts among the guests, as well as a box of candy and a great basket of bright red apples. The role of Mrs. Santa Claus was impersonated by Mrs. Peter Isherwood.

Judge Homer G. Ames Presents Talk on Juvenile Court

Notwithstanding all the discouragements the court has to face, Judge Hemer G. Ames of department 1 of the superior court of Orange county, said in an address to the League of Women Voters yesterday, the results in the juvenile court work in this county were gratifying. He gave an interesting talkk before the women who met in the gold room at Ketners' cafe for luncheon. He was introduced by Mrs. George Mangold, president, who conducted the meeting.

Stating that the only way in which to determine the success of the court activities with any degree of accuracy was to note the number of times individual cases were brought back to the court on subsequent defenses, Judge Ames declared that the percentage is exceedingly low and estimated that the rate here is not over seven per cent.

There are three classes of juvenile offenders, according to the speaker. First, those guilty of some minor infraction of the law without evil intent, such as violation of traffic ordinances; second, those not guilty of an offense and who have not committed a crime, but who fail to receive necessary discipline at home; and third, those who have actually committed a crime, or done something unlawful or immoral.

Although the offenders are not limited to any class of people, Judge Ames said yesterday, the majority of cases brought before the court in the first division, are from the best homes of the community. The second group of offenders are meted out discipline and strength by correction so that they will not become habitual law breakers. While the third group embraces the vast majority of the cases brought before the court. He cited several instances in which the court has taken into consideration the causes and motives for the crime before attempting to impose punishment.

"The law of the juvenile court is not penal, but is rather established on correction," Judge Ames said. "It is not designed to punish crime, but rather to prevent crime. We prefer to administer correction rather than justice and to do away with the old adage of the court 'Let the punishment fit the crime.'"

Judge Ames expressed his reluctance at having to admit the existence of cases in the delinquency of girls, who are brought before the court. He said he would rather have 20 boys than one girl in court, because in most instances the boys break down during the correction remedy, decide to turn over a new leaf and do better in the future, whereas the girls consider the "lecture sob-sister stuff' and merely laugh.

Methods used to conduct the court in department 1 vary, but the judge explained his informal routine. In the first place no newspaper reporters are allowed in the chambers during the session and the judge does not go on the bench. He endeavors to make a friend of the offender and tries not to let undue legal formality interfere with his role as as advisor.

While the court sessions are supposed to be private, Judge Ames, in commending the League of Women Voters for its interest in the delinquent child and the juvenile home of Orange county, invited a committee from the organization to be present one Friday afternoon during the court session. The courtesy as extended allows two women to visit the court, providing no names of offenders in the appearing cases be repeated in, or outside of, the woman's organization.

Mention was made at the luncheon of the gift of two volumes of 1929 session laws that were presented the Santa Ana League of Women Voters by Senator Nela Edwards. It was also announced that the next meeting will be held the third Thursday in January, while the study section will convene on the second Thursday in that month.

Miniature Trees Form Motif for Luncheon

Miniature Christmas trees decked with scarlet tapers centered each of the three luncheon tables yesterday afternoon when a group of friends of Mrs. Fred L. Cole and Mrs. Ed Prentice assembled for a pot-luck bridge luncheon, at the Cole home, 618 Cypress avenue. Bowls of catoneasters and holly berries were also used to further the yuletide motif, and favors and nutcups were in shades of scarlet.

Following the luncheon, an afternoon of bridge was enjoyed, at the close of which first prize was awarded Mrs. Cole, and second to Mrs. O. K. Carr. Both prizes were attractively wrapped in Christmas fashion.

Guests of Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Prentice were Mrs. John Gould, Mrs. O. K. Carr, Mrs. Cornelius Neuschwanger, Mrs. Roy Ivins, Mrs. Joe Steele, Mrs. Paul Carnahan, Mrs. Annie Johnson, Mrs. John Powell of Orange, and Miss Donna Crawford.

MILADY WOULD LIKE THESE DAINTY GIFTS

Christmas gifts of luxury that are sure to please the feminine heart: (1) Long gloves for evening, in the new pink suede. (2) The latest pearl necklaces come with side medallions and a handsome brooch drop, this one in emeralds and brilliants. (3) A modernistic mule is of gold kid, white satin and blue brocade. (4) For the hostess gown there is a fancy pump that fashions its own buckle, in pale pink crepe de chine, with floral design done in royal blue, silver and beige. (5) An evening bag of pastel colored brocaded lame, jeweled in tiny rhinestones, goes with every kind of evening wear. (6) Perfume and atomizer in one. (7) Colored bath salts come in decorative crystal jugs. (8) French face powder has its own unique container. (9) Last, but not least, the ecru Alencon evening teddies, minus a back to suit the low decolletage of one's evening gown.

Hermosa Chapter Members Hold Merry Luncheon At Ketner's

The Christmas party of the Past Matrons' association of Hermosa chapter was a gay affair held Thursday in the blue room at Ketner's cafe.

Mesdames Fannie Reeves, G. R. Safley, C. D. Benight and Jennie Peek were hostesses at the beautifully appointed 1 o'clock luncheon. The tables were lovely with holly and centered with a hugh basket of poinsettias.

The president, Mrs. C. W. Ellis, was presented with a large bouquet of flowers as the occasion celebrated her birthday.

Mrs. Ellis, Secretary Mrs. H. T. Jones and Past Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Hervey Trueblood received special gifts.

Following the luncheon a brief business session of the association was held after which a white elephant exchange of gifts was enjoyed.

An enjoyable feature of the affair was the toast given by Mrs. O. M. Robbins.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Interesting Program

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church held its regular meeting in the church parlor recently. The session opened with a song, "The Kingdom Is Coming." Mrs. Frank Burke led the devotions, the theme for which was "The Christmas Spirit Should Prevail Throughout the Year." Mrs. Burke and Mrs. E. M. Mills led in prayer.

A letter was read from a scholarship girl in Kolar, India. She addressed the society as mother and thanked it again for her support.

The thank offering address will be given by Mrs. Moot Heisler on the morning of January 26, it was announced.

Mrs. L. G. Steward, who was the founder of the society of the First Methodist church, was made a memorial member. Miss Blanche Callings gave the lesson study from the book, "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem," and the Rev. George Warmer talked on arrangements for a more definite way to teach the children in missions.

A letter from Doris Welles stated that she had arrived at Bombay and soon would be in Calcutta at work. Little Olive Schweitzer and Margaret Davies gave a group of Christmas carols. They were accompanied by Mrs. Irwin.

"Holy Night" and other Christmas songs were sung by a trio, Mrs. Harry Hayes, Mrs. Mary Grimes and Mrs. J. W. Eyerly, with Mrs. Wetherell at the piano Mrs. Harry Bowman sang "There's a Song in the Air" by Ole Speaks. Mrs. Wetherell accompanied.

Standard Bearers

One of the jolliest parties of the Christmas season occurred last night, when Miss Ramona Smith entertained the Standard Bearers, an organization of the First Methodist Episcopal church, at her home on 710 South Ross street.

After a delicious potluck dinner, a business meeting was held, at which Helen Bower was unanimously elected secretary, to take the place of Margaret Guthrie, who recently resigned. Virginia Sawdey was elected chairman of the mite boxes, funds from which are to buy Doris Welles, missionary in Calcutta, India, an automobile. Short talks on missionaries were given by Ruth Juhlen and Justina Palmer.

Following the business meeting, a gift exchange was held. The rest of the evening was spent in singing and conversation.

Those present were the advisor, Mrs. W. D. Finn, Virginia Forney, Lola Christy, Zelma Beemer, Fern Danielson, Florence Ulrich, Bernice Summers, Justina Palmer, Helen Slabaugh, Helen Bower, Fontell Renchler, Virginia Sawdey, Doris Schofield, Janie Crawford and Miriam Samuelson.

Mrs. D. A. Hozknecht has returned to her home here following an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Gann of San Diego, who has been ill in a hospital there.

Pegasus Club Meeting Held at Home of Mrs. Was

Members of the Pegasus club were entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Frank Was of 2019 Victoria drive when they gathered at her home for their annual Christmas party.

The delightful program which had been arranged for the afternoon opened with the singing of two beautiful carols, "Joy to the World" and "Silent Night," by Mrs. C. F. Jackson and Mrs. Charles Brisco.

Mrs. Walter Foote presented an original poem, "L'Envoi," which was followed by a paper on "Christmas of a Child" by Mrs. Fannie Lash.

Mrs. George Bond offered two original poems, "Christmas Day" and "Christmas," and Miss Marjorie Lusk read a clever love story entitled "Those Shoes" which she had written for the occasion.

Mrs. Charles Fuller read Temple Bailey's "Those Who Stole" and Mrs. Grace Zaiser gave two readings, "Where The Christmas Trees Grow" and "The First Best Christmas Night."

Mrs. Was presented "December" and "Gifts" both original poems, and Mrs. Charles Brisco read a chapter from Tolstoi's "What Men Live By."

Lovely Decorations Used for Party At Barn

The spirit of Christmas pervaded The Barn last night when Santa Ana Community Players and their friends gathered there for their annual Yuletide party and program. Colored lights twinkled on a tall fir tree, gay with tinsel and shining baubles and cast a soft glow over the room walls of which were covered with sprays of cotoneaster tied with red and silver tulle.

In keeping with the occasion was the presentation of a Swedish play, "The Lighting of the Christmas Tree" by Selma Legerlof, under the direction of Gladys Simpson Shafer. The setting for the play was the living room of Lofdala, a Swedish manor house, and characters were quaint costumes of the Scandinavian country.

The various roles were well cast and particularly delightful was the work of Leola Schroeder and Charlotte Quiggle who played the parts of daughters of the home. Harry Brackett, a veteran player, was Ruster, a flute player, a clever character role.

Frank Lansdown was Liljekrona, a violinist, and Mildred Snyder was Olga, his wife. Mabel Pruitt played the part of Halla, the cook, and Sanborn of Torstein, the man servant.

Preceding the play, Mrs. Charles Best, in Swedish costume, sang several Nordic folk songs with her daughter, Miss Joy Best, accompanying at the piano.

A short skit followed, "He Said and She Said," by Alice Gerstenberg, parts in which were taken by Julia Hyde, Margaret Gaebe, Sanborn Griffin and Elaine Williams.

Following a group of 'cello numbers presented by Edward Burns, Miss Allien Lair presided at the piano while the entire group sang Christmas carols.

During the social hour which followed, clever little gifts were presented each person. A number of the gifts were not used and these will be sent to the Ebell Day Nursery and the Orange County Health camp.

The delicious refreshment course was planned by Mrs. Frank Andrews jr., with the assistance of Miss Janey Wilde and Mrs. Henry Williams.

Decorating was done by Mrs. Charles Riggs, Mrs. Robert Shafer, Arthur Collins, Mrs. Joseph Snyder and Frank Lansdown jr.

"Marinating" and "Saute"

There are two terms used in cooking which are not asthoroughly understood as they should be: the first of these terms is "marinate."

This applies to foods, usually salad mixtures, which are dressed with a spiced oily liquid and left in the "marinade" a sufficient length of time for the food to assimilate the flavor of the spices and absorb some of the oil. The marinating process takes 30 minutes for raw vegetable mixtures and one hour for cooked vegetables or meats.

The second term is "saute." To saute a food means cooking it over a low flame in a little butter or cooking oil. Time is the element on which hangs success or failure in this method. The fire must be low and the cooking done so slowly and carefully that the food is barely brown when fully cooked. The delectable ragouts served in French and Italian restaurants are cooked by this method.

Inexpensive meat cuts are converted into the tenderest of tid-bits, and every bit of seasoning is so merged and distributed through the dish that one cannot tell where the basil left off and the garlic came on.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Finnan Haddie Au Gratin

1 cup canned finnan haddie
1 cup grated cheese
2 cups cream sauce
1-2 teaspoon French mustard
Salt and pepper
Generous dash of cayenne
1 or 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Thanks to modern marketing methods the housewife need no longer handle this odoriferous fish; she now buys it in a can and it is prepared and served without the aftermath of eradicating fish odor from cooking dishes.

Make the required amount of cream sauce, not too thick, and keep hot in a double boiler, add the grated cheese and stir until melted, then season to your taste with mustard salt and cayenne. Open the can of fish flakes, rinse them and let them drain and freshen for half an hour. Fold the flakes into the cheese sauce, cover and let stand until ready to serve.

Hot biscuits made an ideal base for the finnan haddie. Split the hot biscuits, butter lightly and put enough of them on a hot platter. Just before turning the finnan haddie mixture over the biscuits quickly stir in enough lemon juice to add zest and tang to the fish.

The calorie total for the finnan haddie au gratin is 1350, add to that 1200 for eight lightly buttered biscuits and the whole divided between six people gives an individual calorie total of a little over 400. In this dish there are adequate proteins and sufficient starchy foot to bar other starchy vegetables. Serve a leafy vegetable low in food value, with tomatoes as a second choice, and plain crisp lettuce with a little tangy French dressing for a salad.

Sum'shus Hot Desserts are yours just for the trouble of sending in a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IRVINE

IRVINE, Dec. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Cook Russell and children, Eleanor, Lena and Russell, of Chula Vista, visited several days in the home of Mr. Russell's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Russell. Tuesday evening Mrs. Joe Russell gave a birthday dinner in honor of her husband. Those who enjoyed the dinner besides the two Russell families were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sackman and daughter, Dorothy, of Santa Ana, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell.

Junior and Jake Graham and Mr. Brunner, of Montebello, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boosey Wednesday morning. The boys were on their way to Fallbrook for a visit with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Graham.

Mrs. Tom LeBard has been ill in her home here with an attack of influenza.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Customs change so much faster than laws and edicts. Here it is an accepted condition of life that beautiful actresses marry rich and highly eligible men, so we are never in the least surprised when it happens.

In fact, if a Follies girl, for instance, marries a rich man, it isn't news, but if she marries a poor one it is.

"Isn't it marvelous?" we ask. "Here is a beauty who could have her pick of husbands, who has a dozen millionaires at her feet, and yet she marries that poor haberdasher—just for love. Isn't it too romantic?"

A CASE IN POINT

And yet, over in London, when Francis Francis, the wealthy young guardsman wants to marry Sunny Jarman, who is a musical comedy actress, he has to resign from the Royal House Guards.

There is an old custom, it seems, which has become an unwritten law, that no officer in His Majesty's brigade of guards may so far forget his superior station in life as to marry an actress.

Frequently before, the same situation has arisen, and the honor code has forced the choice between love and duty to the king.

Naturally, it does not become news unless the man chooses love, when it is always romantic and glamorous, as it is in this case. For it does mean something to give up so desirable and showy a position as that of royal guardsmen.

The custom, of course, originated in the days when theatrical folk had no social standing, and could not possibly be considered eligible matrimonially.

Today there are titled women from the British aristocracy on the stage, and earls and lords of high degree have married stage beauties. There is no country where you find greater allegiance to theatrical favorites than in England.

CAREER VS. ROMANCE

Actors and actresses will always tell you that if you once win the heart of the British theatergoer, you will find him faithful ever afterward. And yet this old unwritten law, completely repudiated by reason and fact, is still as binding today as it was in the days of Robin Hood.

In a democracy such as ours we have our problems, but marrying in or out of class is not one of them—theoretically, at least. In fact, there is nothing we like better than to have our local Cinderellas walk away with the princes.

But there is a certain romance about giving up a career for love. There is a triumph that no woman can despise in being more important to a man than his position. There is a cavalier gesture that is rare enough in these prosaic days.

And after all, though Francis may give up his uniform, all is not lost. He gains the right to use that priceless phrase:

"Remember what I gave up for you."

PLACENTIA PUPILS PRESENT PROGRAMS

PLACENTIA, Dec. 20.—Christmas programs were the order of the day at Placentia school Wednesday.

Assembly was held in the auditorihm of the Bradford avenue school in the afternoon, and a short program of Christmas carols and selections by the orchestra enjoyed. Dewitt and LeRoy Lyon gave interesting readings.

Each of the Mexican schools had a party for the children, the teachers furnishing candy while Louis Jacobsen, president of the school board, furnished apples and the members of the P.-T. A. gave cakes for the Baker street school. The Christmas program of the Baker street school was held Wednesday morning on the school grounds and consisted of exercises by the first, second and pre-first grades, songs by the third and fourth grades and special songsb y the boys and girls of Mr. McLean's room.

The La Jolla school pupils had their program Tuesday afternoon, with a tree, Santa Claus and Christmas songs. The Richfield program was held Tuesday evening and was ushered in by Santa and his helpers, who displayed dolls and toys for the children.

"FLAPPER MODE" PASSES

The Christmas Gift
Your Wife Longs For

A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts.
Hostess Model Electrolux has 5 cubic feet of food space. Makes 45 large ice cubes.

If you've ever helped your wife get a meal, you know what a tremendous help an automatic refrigerator would be. The untroubled comfort of always having enough food on hand .... with no worry about keeping it. The joy of having enough ice, in sparkling cubes .... of making delicious frozen desserts and salads easily and cheaply.

How much she'll appreciate an Electrolux! The only automatic refrigerator that has no moving parts to make noise .... cause trouble .... run up repair bills. That's why it's the least expensive "luxury" you can buy. There's a wide range of models in white or colors. Come in early while there's still time to pick the one that just suits your home and family. Ask about our convenient payment plan.

Thrills of an Aerial Cameraman

Sydney Bonnick, Who Took Pictures Of Mexican Volcanoes and Maya Ruins A Year Before Lindy's Recent Flight Of Discovery to Central America, Has Been Photographing From Planes Since 1910 and He Has Explored Vast Jungle and Mountain Regions Without Ever Setting Foot on Them

By MARION GILLESPIE

WAY back in the quiet days of 1910 Sydney Bonnick decided that he would rather be an aerial photographer than anything else on earth—or more strictly, above it.

At that time this meant leaning over the side of a swaying balloon basket and taking pictures of the pleasant countryside below with an ordinary camera. It was long before the days of "flying dark rooms" and special aerial cameras. But it was thrilling business even if it didn't take one very far away from civilization.

Now, aeronautical improvements have increased the flyer's margin of safety while in the air, but additional thrills have been brought into the life of a flying cameraman by the fact that these same improvements have made all the wildest and littlest-known parts of the earth especially inviting to him.

It is now possible, for instance, for two men—the photographer and his pilot—to fly over unknown terrain and in 10 hours flying time chart a country that would have taken an engineering crew on the ground three months. The finished product of such an aerial survey is a composite photograph that shows at a glance the actual topography of the section.

Bonnick recently returned from his second aerial survey of parts of Mexico never flown over by man. His pictures show close-ups of mountains whose jagged edges could rip the plane wing from wing in the twinkling of an eye. And jungles so impenetrable that getting into them for any distance would require days of arduous labor cutting a path as wide as a Mexican's hat. His adventures included arguments with pythons, wild boars and alligators.

Flying Photographer Sydney Bonnick. . . . "I feel safer flying across mountain ranges . . . than walking across city streets."

Bonnick's recent Mexican expedition was over an almost inaccessible region in a country inhabited by ancient ruins and hostile Indians.

"WE left Brownsville, Texas, for a destination far in the interior of Mexico," Bonnick relates. "As far as civilization is concerned it was the original and well-known jumping-off place.

"We were to survey some 1500 square miles of weird country—all mountains, jungles and swamps. We carried parachutes, of course, but I often wondered up there at 13,000 feet, if we should have to pile out in a hurry, which would be the best course to drift. There was small choice between snake-infested swamps and jungles and streams alive with alligators.

"We made a reconnaissance flight over the area to be photographed and went to work in earnest. A large part of the survey was shot in a flight of seven hours and 20 minutes.

"The next morning my pilot, George Kraigher, who had served in the Serbian and French aviation services during the war, rushed into my quarters to greet me with 'Shake, old man, we're in the war again! Go over and look at the plane!'

"I followed him outside and found eight Federal soldiers, with guns extended, guarding our plane, and they wouldn't let us near it! After some inquiry I found that the guard had received orders from the general in command [illegible]. Owing to the outbreak of a revolution we would be unable to take our [illegible] ground. We were assured, however, that our equipment would be protected.

"This condition lasted for several weeks, during which time we gazed at a cloudless sky and tore our hair. Photographic days were going by and we weren't able to take a single picture.

"The average aerial photographic time is one day in seven, and naturally our organization makes sure when a favorable day arrives that pictures will be made. It checks closely on weather reports, advance notifications of weather conditions and last-minute notice by phone or radio. If a photographer fails to turn in a roll of films after all these checks have been made, he has to furnish a first-class alibi.

"When I sent the New York office a picture of our plane resting in the hangar with eight Mexican soldiers standing guard in front of the entrance, my alibi was perfect!

The crater of this extinct volcano near Mexico City . . . was revealed by this air photo to be the farm home of a timorous Indian . . . safe from all his enemies.

"Eight armed Federal soldiers guarded our plane. . . . Owing to the outbreak of a revolution we were not to be allowed to leave the ground."

Today's Puzzle Picture: How many mistakes could you make if your motor suddenly died above this typical sector of Mexican mountains . . . and you had to pick a spot for a forced landing?

"AT one time we were commanded to go aloft and make a survey of the rebel lines, and under guard of one Mexican soldier who went in the plane with us, we flew over the territory and photographed the situation. When we landed we were surprised to find 12 bullet holes had damaged our fuselage, and we hadn't even known that we were being fired on!

"Aside from this episode we took no part in the revolution, although geographically we were in the thick of it. During the time the Federals chased the rebels and vice versa, we spent our time developing the pictures we had already taken.

"At the conclusion of our mapping, we made trips between Mexico City and Tampico to secure views of the volcanoes Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, known as the sleeping lady because of its formation. This location was 18,000 feet above sea level and the scene of the battle between the Aztec Emperor Montezuma and the Spanish invader Cortez.

"On one of our flights, 16,000 feet above the Isthmus of Tchuantepec, we were rewarded with a view that perhaps no one in the world had ever seen before—the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico at the same time, with the Isthmus stretching narrowly in between.

"After making pictures of the volcanoes, we proceeded to Merida Yucatan and took the first air pictures of the ancient ruins of Uxmal and Chicen Itza, remnants of the long-departed Mayan civilization recently visited by Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

"We also flew over one extinct volcano in whose crater an Indian had built himself a home and planted his small farm. The rim of the crater afforded a natural protection, and the Indian probably felt that he was fortified for life against his enemies.

"The Indians working in the fields, sighted us and ran into the house as we approached. No doubt ours was the first plane they had ever seen, and we could well imagine their consternation.

"THIS country for hundreds of miles is solid volcanic rock which absorbs the heat of the sun, and in the low altitude at which we made our pictures, there is an air condition that makes one feel there are a thousand devils trying to tear the wings from the plane.

"When I took these pictures, we struck just such an air disturbance. It knocked the camera against my face, broke a tooth and left me flat on my back on the floor of the plane with a 38-pound camera sitting on my chest.

"An uncomfortable situation in the making of pictures in tropical climates is the extreme difference in temperatures. In preparing for a flight we are obliged to wear heavy fur-lined flying suits and felt boots. We have to wear these fireless cookers with a temperature on the ground of 100 in the shade. An hour's climbing, and oppressive heat at an altitude of 15,000 feet gives way to penetrating cold. Returning to lower levels, the gas tanks, camera, and all metal is streaming with water due to the rapid condensation.

"DURING my last trip to Mexico, one of my pilots had an interesting experience. One of the oil companies had had trouble with bandits holding up the paymaster, so they decided to send the payroll out to the wells by plane.

"The paymaster loaded about 1000 pesos in gold into a leather bag, sealed it carefully, then when the pilot would swoop down over the field where the men were working, the paymaster would drop the leather bag over the side of the plane.

"The pilot's landmark was a point where two rivers converged. When he reached this spot, his course lay along the river to the right. He had flown the course many times, but this day, through some error, he followed the river to the left and after some distance realized he had been flying long enough to be sighting the oil fields.

"He looked out of the cabin and was surprised to see mountains looming up on either side of the plane, and knew he was off his course.

"There was no room between the rocky walls to turn the plane around, so he kept straight ahead, hoping to rise high enough to find turning space. The mountains were rising higher and higher each moment and suddenly he sighted a sheer wall of rock some 9000 feet high rising directly in his path! It took some quick thinking and quicker action!

"He nosed the plane at a downward angle, then suddenly brought it up to complete an upside down turn. At the moment the wheels were on top, he pulled the stick, righting the plane and found himself flying out of this cul-de-sac over the route he had entered.

"When the maneuver had been successfully accomplished, the breathless paymaster managed to gasp, 'I say, old man, was that stunt absolutely necessary?' to which the pilot replied fervently, 'you betcher boots it was!'

"I HAVE had one or two thrilling experiences in the States. On July 13, 1918, my pilot and myself flew under the International Bridge at Niagara Falls to get pictures that would be different. We got them all right, and we came near getting our everlasting, too!

"We were flying a two-place Canadian training plane powered with a 90 horsepower OX 5 motor. The wind was blowing right down the gorge and some of the pictures were made from an elevation of 10 feet.

"Because of the wind condition the plane would rise only to the level of the two lower bridges and we were forced to dive under and try to rise again. It was a foolhardy venture. We achieved the distinction of being the only flyers to fly beneath all three bridges at the Falls, and it's a record that can stand as far as I'm concerned.

"All of the thrills are not confined to land flying. When we were returning from Yucatan recently, C. H. Robinson, chief pilot for the Mexican Aviation Company's Merida run, told of having seen large schools of man-eating sharks off the Gulf coast. I decided we would photograph them.

"When we were about 10 miles from shore and not more than 50 feet above the water sneaking up on the playful creatures, Robinson turned to me and asked casually, 'Bonnick, did you ever get any dope on how long one of these planes will float if the motor quits?'

"But even with the possibility of a motor going dead over a school of man-eating sharks, flying holds its fascination. There is an urge to achieve further success in a profession which has little or no competition. Whether it is flying 16,00 feet in an icy atmosphere with my fingers sticking to the camera and my mustache covered with icicles like Old Bill, or at a lower altitude photographing an estate, country club or harbor developments along the water front, the interest is always the same."

The lure of the tropics has been too much for Bonnick. His visits to New York prove, at least to his satisfaction, that flights over Mexican mountains require less dodging than crossing New York streets. He recently returned to Mexico to conduct a third survey of little-known parts of the country.

$2,000,000 Improvement Program For Harbor District

$1,600,000 TO BE SPENT FOR ISLE PROJECT

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 20.—Newport harbor faces a $2,000,000 building and improvement program for the coming year, it is revealed by a survey of projects either under way or reasonably certain to go through. Most of the program will be under the supervision of City Engineer R. L. Patterson, and is revealed in a letter written to Gov. C. C. Young, who forwarded the information, with other data from all over California, to President Hoover for use in his nation-wide survey.

The largest single item, if it can be called one item, planned here is the improvement of Lido isle, for which bids have been called by the city council. These bids will be received January 6. The work includes grading, paving, curbs, sidewalks, sewer system, water system, ornamental lights, pleasure piers and a bridge from the mainland at Newport to the island. The estimated cost is $1,160,000.

High School Plant

The next largest is the high school plant for the new Newport Harbor union high school district, consisting of Newport Beach and Costa Mesa, for which a bond issue of probably $300,000 to $400,000 will be called, the exact amount not being determined so far.

Then there is the $200,000 harbor improvement program voted on October 22 last, $150,000 for dredging at the entrance and $50,000 for groins at the west jetty.

The acquisition of a right of way for a new street along the Pacific Electric in the west end and the improvement of that and other streets in that section is planned and will cost about $125,000. Improvement of canals in the west end and work in connection therewith is estimated to cost $30,000. The proceedings are under way and protests, if any, will be heard January 13.

The contract has been awarded for the improvement of Seville avenue and certain other streets in the Frick property on Balboa peninsula at a cost of approximately $45,000. This improvement consists of grading, concrete pavement, curbs, sidewalks, sewer system, water system, ornamental lights and decomposed granite paving in alleys.

Begin Paving Soon

Central avenue, Balboa, between Alvarado and B streets, is now being improved, bonds to the amount of $36,000 having been sold. Bids for paving will be opened January 6, the other work now being under way. Under the plan, there will be but one P. E. track instead of the two there now, and the driveway on each side will be nine feet wider than at present.

A new lighting system on this part of Central avenue has also been petitioned for. It will cost about $8500.

The city also plans dredging and other harbor maintenance work during the year amounting to about $20,000, new water mains, fire hydrants, etc., about $5000, and the construction of an aeration tank at the main reservoir, $8000, and new street construction, $2000.

Private work to be done during the year includes dredging at the west end of Lido isle, to cost about $80,000; dredging at Bay island, about $30,000, also considerable dredging around Balboa and Harbor islands, and the erection of a new building at Main and Surf streets, Balboa, on the property recently leased for 99 years by Walker and Hamann from E. R. Allen.

Grammar School Students Present Program Thursday

COSTA MESA, Dec. 20.— The school children of the grammar school yesterday presented a Christmas program in the Community church to a crowded house, a Christmas cantata being the main number on the program.

Mrs. Grow S. Brown gave two solos, Masters Bill Greschner and James Evans rendered vocal solos and Mr. Dale Hamilton Evans executed several numbers on the pipe organ.

BEACH SCHOOL SOCIETY GIVES YULE FANTASY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20.—Public schools have been dismissed for the holidays, to resume on January 2. Christmas programs were given by the students under faculty direction at both schools.

The elementary school assembly was the occasion for the superintendent, C. B. Baldwin, to present a Christmas message to the students. A playlet was put on by student groups with the Byrd Antarctic expedition as the subject. The eighth grade girls octette, the seventh grade girls sextette, took prominent places on the program.

In addition to the assembly there were Christmas programs in various rooms and a number of rooms enjoyed exchanges of gifts between the students.

The Scholarship society of the high school offered the Christmas fantasy, "Why the Chimes Rang" at the high school auditorium.

Fred Brooks, supervisor of manual arts, was in charge of scenes and set ups. He made and painted the screen and built the scenery at the school workroom.

Acting of the student cast was as fine as has ever been shown in a high school play. The whole performance lasted only about 45 minutes. The auditorium was filled to seating capacity, many hundred citizens attending. Admission was free.

Faculty members who were most active in the production were Miss Cora Henderson, director; Miss Pearle Shrimpl, costumes; Miss Martha Trafford, chancel scenery; Fred Brooks, scenery and set ups; Everett Ray, lighting; Mrs. Ruth Harlow, vocal music; Miss Margaret Squires, orchestral music. Students on the production staff with the faculty were Faye Bushard, properties; Arthur Frost, advertising.

The cast of characters was as follows: DeanPryor, peasant boy; Robert Heitz, his younger brother; Dante Siracusa, their uncle, the woodchopper; Velma Wentzel, an old beggar woman. Characters in the chancel scene were Omer De Sadeleer, priest; Jimmie Quiggle, rich man; Alvin Koenig, courtier; Doris Reed, haughty woman; Echo Hanke, young girl; Leonard Miyawaki, an old scholar; Lester Oliver, the king; Margaret Shank, an angel.

HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES FOR ANDREW MINDER

ANAHEIM, Dec. 20.—Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Hilgenfeld funeral chapel for Andrew Minder, 85, who passed away Wednesday at his home on West Lincoln boulevard. Services were conducted by the Rev. E. Burgi of the Salem Evangelical church and interment was made in the Loma Vista cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Minder are three brothers, George and Andrew F., of Anaheim; Edward A. of Zilah, Wash.; three daughters, Mrs. Ida Miller and Miss Emma Minder, of South Gate, and Mrs. Marie Hartelt of Anaheim; 12 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The deceased had been a resident of California for the past eight years and was a pioneer of Minnesota and Ohio after his arrival at the age of 11 years in America from Switzerland. As a clerk in a store in Young America, Minn., in 1862, at the age of 13 years, Mr. Minder rode many miles through rain and darkness to Carver, Minn., to notify settlers of the outbreak of the Sioux Indians, crawling many miles on his hands and knees. A steamboat captain carried his message to St. Paul and through his efforts the community was saved.

OFFICERS NAMED BY SANITARY DISTRICT

CAPISTRANO BEACH, Dec. 20.—Aaron Buchheim was elected president and E. L. Holly was elected secretary of the Capistrano Beach Sanitary district, at a meeting held by the board of directors at the Capistrano Beach grammar school this week. Walter Congdon, Louis Dietze and Arthur Kuss, the other directors, were present.

The board decided to call on the services of a reliable sanitary engineer to survey the proposed sanitary ditrict and stimate the cost of the project. The next meeting will be held at the school house January 8, according to Secretary Holly.

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hanson jr., their sons, Bobby and Emery, and Teddy Schell leave for Seattle today on a vacation trip. In the northern city they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schell, parents of Mrs. Hanson and Teddy Schell. They expect to be back in the Spanish village January 1.

SIX-HOUR WORK DAY BEING CONSIDERED BY OIL FIRMS IN FIELDS OF CALIFORNIA

By C. W. PATRICK

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20.—The major oil companies are considering trying out a six-hour work day in the oil fields in order to provide jobs. Curtailment of drilling operations causes reduction of force as this department of oil development furnishes most of the oil field jobs.. Since overproduction began to assume alarming proportions the oil companies have been forced to lay men off thev can ill afford to spare in times when there is drilling activity.

It requires skilled and experienced drilling crews for the deep drilling in the California fields. The class of men needed here when there is plenty of drilling are made only in the California fields, which are the deepest in the United States.

The oil companies are put in a puzzling position. With production curtailment there is cessation of drilling operations and with cessation of drilling operations, there are no jobs for men the oil companies have been years in training and who can not be easily replaced if drilling activities begin, and begin they must in the course of time, if not in one field or another.

Same Wages, Plan

Standard Oil, Shell, Richfield, Union and Texas, it is known, have been conducting negotiations among themselves looking to the installation of a six-hour day. This plan would keep four crews active where three crews are now employed. It is said no wage cuts are contemplated, the men being paid on an eight-hour basis with a six-hour day.

The Standard has tried the experiment out in a small way at the Murphy lease in the Murphy-Coyote field, one of the Standard's prize leases. Watchmen and pumpers on the Murphy lease have been put on a six-hour day and are being worked on that basis now.

As drilling operations were curtailed, drilling crew members were given jobs as watchmen and pumpers, until conditions improved in the oil business. Many watchers and pumpers are in reality drillers who are capable of putting down wells in the deep California fields. The companies do not want to lose these men and hence the movement to keep them employed.

Crews Reduced

The Huntington Beach field is one field which is feeling the reduction in jobs. Last week the Standard sent three crews from here to Santa Barbara. At present the Standard has only one drilling project here.

Richfield now has two drilling projects here, solely or largely in order to retain expert drilling crew men on the company force. Rex Oil company keeps one crew busy in order to hold the men, drilling wells not needed rather than be caught unprepared or short of reliable men when there is a need for them at such time as activity is resumed.

The six-hour day plan originated with the companies, but needless to say the men are strong for it. Such a plan, the companies point out, is also in keeping with the suggestion of President Hoover to keep business going ahead at full speed, to keep men at work and to create jobs rather than reduce forces. This is just another odd angle of the oil game which can prevent plenty of problems and evolve more unusual situations than any other big business.

Max Osers Leave For Florida To See Rockefeller

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 20.—Major and Mrs. Max Oser, who stayed in Laguna Beach for three months, but who have been in Santa Barbara with Harold McCormick for the past month have left for Florida. After spending a few weeks with Mrs. Oser's grandfather, John D. Rockefeller sr., they expect to return to this city.

IRVINE GRADE SCHOOL PUPILS GIVE PROGRAM

IRVINE, Dec. 20.—A large group enjoyed the Christmas program at the Irvine school house Wednesday afternoon. A beautifully decorated Christmas tree stood in one corner and the room was decorated with pictures.

The program included the following recitations and songs: Song, "Joy to the World," audience; welcome address, Arthur LeBard and Jesse Stone; two songs, Miss Matheny's first and second grades kinderband; piano solo, Helen Mitchell; recitation, Grace Stone; piano solo, Lucille Lambert; two songs and two recitations, Mrs. Bardwell's third and fourth grade pupils; two songs, Miss Stewart's fifth and sixth grade pupils; two harmonica numbers, seventh and eighth grade boys of Mrs. Gardner's room; two saxophone solos, Victor Debrower.

Mrs. Addey played the accompaniment for the program. After the program the candy and presents were distributed among the children and after they were dismissed, Mrs. Gardner called a meeting to make plans for the party to be held in the new school house before school starts after the vacation.

Among those present were Neva and Vera McDonald, Nellie Boyd, Maxine Hazen, Lucy Ahern, Ardyth Parham, Howard Hiser and Lewis Collins. The mothers present were, Mrs. Walter Mills, Mrs. Lorton, Mrs. Charlie Hendricks, Mrs. Bud Mitchell, Mrs. Horace Munger, Mrs. Salaetz, Mrs. Lemon Thrall, Mrs. Ray Lambert, Mrs. Ransler Baker, Mrs. Bill Whitehead, Mrs. Arthur Ross, Mrs. Phil Ahern, Mrs. Wolff, Mrs. D. C. Hazen, Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Ralph Stone, Mrs. Henry Boosey, Mrs. Frank Swain, Mrs. Jack Thornbarrow, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. DeBrower and Mrs. Bascom.

Newsboy Knocked Down by Truck But Keeps On Working

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 20—Paul Haney, 6-year-old newsboy ran into the street in front of Canady's Jewelry store Wednesday afternoon directly against the fendar bar of a truck moving along Main street. He was knocked to the pavement out of the path of the truck. He suffered painful bruises but was not seriously injured. The newsboy after being cared for by the crowd went on down the street peddling his papers as though nothing had happened.

Social Meeting Held By Masons

ORANGE, Dec. 20.—Sixty members of the Masonic lodge were present this week at a social meeting of the organization when incoming officers were hosts to outgoing officers. R. E. Bunch, past master, was presented with a beautiful desk set. Wade Flippen, incoming master, made the presentation.

Cards were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served.

SKIT GIVEN BY GARDEN GROVE HIGH SENIORS

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 20.—The seniors of the Garden Grove Union high school went back to childhood days Wednesday. There was a Christmas tree, presents and Santa Claus.

A program of music, speeches and a skit were prepared by a group of seniors with Aguitta Wheeler, as chairman.

The entertainment included a Christmas story, Dorothy Allen; soprano solo, Ora Baker; harmonica solo, Dana Beal; reading, Lorena Christopher; whistling solo, Jerome Scofield; speech, Clifford Romack and a short skit by Walter Clark, Ben and Norma Casner and Estelle Crow.

Orville King acted as Santa Claus. The presents were bought by each senior, placed on the tree and given out by Santa Claus.

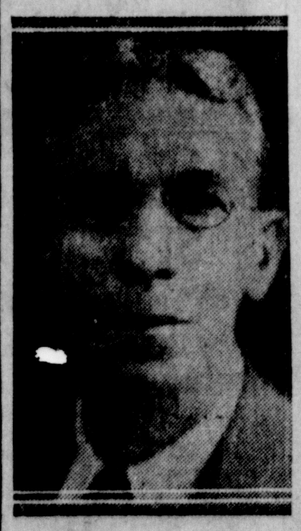
Orange Building Being Remodeled

ORANGE, Dec. 20—Rooms in the second story of the Keller Watson building on East Chapman avenue are being cleared of the old postoffice fixtures stored there for some years as the building is being remodeled for the Elks clubrooms.

Remodeling work will be started at once.

TELLS FRIENDS ABOUT SARGON

"Sargon brought me health after everything else I tried failed. I've told dozens of my friends about it.



CHAS. A. HANSEN

"About three years ago my digestion went 'all to pieces.' I hardly knew what it was to be hungry, and what little I ate disagreed with me. I went on a strict diet, but this didn't help me. Rheumatism came on in my shoulders, hips and legs and caused me lots of suffering. I lost weight and was weak and run-down, and no medicines helped me until I started Sargon. I have taken five bottles, am gaining weight, my appetite is fine, my digestion is perfect and it's remarkable the way this medicine brought back my strength and energy. Sargon Pills put my liver in splendid condition and are the best laxative I ever took."—Chas. A. Hansen, Hondo, Calif.

Sargon is sold in Santa Ana by the Schramm-Johnson Drug Co.—Adv.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

NEWS OF LOCAL SCHOOLS

Julia Lathrop

Wednesday at Lathrop was an event of Christmas giving. Before the regular assembly program the classes took their gifts for the Christmas barrels to the rotunda. These gifts of canned goods, toys, books, and fruit will be distributed where they are most needed. On Tuesday members of the Every Girls' club went to the school at Delhi with dolls and toys and candy for the Mexican children. A program was given by the Delhi children and the Lathrop students gave a short program. Mrs. Webber, who has charge of this Christmas work, was pleased with the response from the girls who contributed.

In order to further this spirit of Christmas the various classes arranged exhibits in the three corners of the rotunda. A lighted Christmas tree decorated one corner, a manger was arranged in a second and in the third corner was a house with a lighted window and snow dripping from the eaves.

Exhibits Were Gay

The exhibit cases in the rotunda presented a most attractive appearance during the last week. In one was a display of brightly colored waste paper baskets and desk calendars made by the Arts and Crafts classes. In another were plates of candies and jars of fruit covered with bright papers. These were made by the girls of the cooking classes.

In Miss Deane's L7 Home class the Christmas party was held on Tuesday so that the presents which the children exchanged could be taken to the Delhi children. No present cost more than 10 cents and each child received a gift. This class was gratified to find that 33 out of the 38 members were on the honor roll with one member on the scholarship.

New Scholarship Society

Since the point system was discarded last year, the teachers were asked to name five students from each class. Any student that has been named by four different teachers is automatically a member of the Scholarship society. The following have been named four times:

Low Seventh—Charles Best, Margaret Brugger, Mathew Brown, Louise Crawford, Roger Fuller, Enid Kengon, Winifred Nelson and Mac Nicholson.

High Seventh—Raymond Anderson, Franklin Davis, Marian Doty and La Verne Means.

Low Eighth—William Hudspeth, Nadine Johnson, Mary King, Betty Martin, Bernice Miles, Dorothy Proctor, Alice Skinner and Lorraine Wheeler.

High Eighth—Vivian Switzler.

Low Ninth—Mary Anna Baxter, Gordon Beisel, Agnes Bock, Ruth Dohmer, Eric Eastman, Phyllis Gerrard, Maxine Gidcomb, Richard Gilliland, Genevieve Hansen, Elmer Manning, Frankie Fern McDonald, Patricia McClure, Leo Snedaker, Edward Wickersheim, Glen Gardner, Marian Hester, Harry Reed and Robert Rittenhouse.

High Ninth — Helen Dugger, Elizabeth Holmes, Mildred Logsdon, Frank Lansdown, Vivian Martin, Charlie McWaters, Simona Posey and Martha Sharpley.

Scholarship Recognized

Thirty-six Lathrop students received scholarship pins at assembly last week. Pins of three classes, bronze, silver, and gold were awarded. Bronze pins are given for being on the scholarship roll two quarters, silver pins for six quarters, and gold for ten quarters. To Mildredn Logsdon, H9-1 was awarded the only gold pin.

The following students were to wear pins:

Bronze—Vivian Switzler, John Ramirez, William Curnett, Holmes Chambless, Ruth Cummings, Leo Snedaker, George Nelson, Genevieve Hansen, Maxine Gidcomb, Eric Eastman, Donna Endres, Gerald Crawford, Dorothy Preble, Beatrice Wendell, Louise Gardiner, Marion Doty, Russell Abbey, Helen Dennis, Billy Hudspeth, Nadine Johnson, Morten Jones, Mary King, Maurice Lycan, Bernice Miles, Betty Martin, Frankie McDonald Lois Pranke, Dorothy Proctor, Alice Skinner, John Wallace, Lorraine Wheeler, Edna Wilson and Franklin Davis.

Silver—Mary Anna Baxter, Phyllis Gerrard, Richard Gilliland, Elmer Manning, Patricia McClure and Charles McWaters.

Lowell

In Mrs. Duke's room we had a play, "The Troubles of the Shoe Family. The characters were Polly Flinders, Lucille Griggs; Mother Twitchett, Lona Boydston; Jack, Harry Clewly; Jill, Virginia Waters; Dr. Foster, Albert Wright; Humpty Dumpty, Pat Wood; Bo-Peep, Marjorie McCune; Curly Locks, Helen Juden; Johnny Stout, Ivan Brooks; and the old woman, Ida Bergsetter.

—Ida Bergsetter.

On Wednesday morning the kindergarten gave a program for their parents. This proved to be very entertaining and interesting. Very great was the enjoyment brought by none other than old Santa himself.

In Miss Lazare's room, the children are wrapping up their Christmas tiles with tissue paper that they bring. They are using strings and ribbons with which to tie them. Miss Larzare does not think red and green look well together, so we use everything but these two colors.

—Jean Russick.

Children Make Gifts

All primary classes have been making tea tiles for Christmas gifts. They have chosen their own colors and designs and have gotten a great thrill out of the work. Even the little B1's were successful in this project. December has been a joyful month in the music and art room for the children have made many gifts which will bring happiness to others.

Posture queen at Lowell school is Jean Russick. The king is Russell Haney. Although we won no prize, we are very proud of our king and queen. Jean is in the 4A grade and Russell is in the 5B. They are to be crowned with gold crowns at the Christmas program in the kindergarten.

—Mary Ellen Dudley.

We have had a good after-school play every night. The boys play football or basketball while the girls play volleyball or basketball.

The 5A grade has had the highest spelling average in Lowell school. We've had the highest average seven times. As a treat, the class having the highest average gets out ten minutes earlier.

The posture king for Lowell school was Russell Haney in the low fifth grade. Jean Russick was queen. —Helen Warner.

In Miss Lazare's room we wrapped our baskets and tea tiles as presents. Each present had a card in it which was made in our art room. —Helen Meyer.

McKinley School

McKinley school is busy with its Christmas plans. The primary graders have been busy with the Christmas presents that they are making in the art room. The third grade is making rose window cards and calendars. The second grades are cutting stencils to use in making cards. They are going to make calendars next week. The first grades are making book marks, calendars and Christmas tree ornaments. —Alfred Wright.

Miss Hatch has sent away from some tea-tiles which the upper grades are going to design and paint for Christmas presents. Yesterday we made trees that would stand up by cutting three different colored Christmas trees out of shades of green paper which we pasted together. They made very pretty Christmas trees for table decorations.

—Ingram Kinsey.

All of the rooms are to put on a Christmas number for the program that is to be held in the kindergarten room Wednesday. All of the children in Miss Hatch's room are going to sing. We hope that we sing well. —Kathleen Brown.

The high six class is going to have a play. Those who are in it are: Naomi Dennie, Gretchen; Pan Echols, Hans; Laura Hill, Dutch; Carol Shands, French; La Vene Parks, fairy; Billy Nowotny, American; Thomas Bradley, English; Joe Sanford, Swiss; Mildred Waterfield, Russian, and Doris Poll, Irish. We hope that our number will be a good one for the Christmas program... —Paul Echols...

The low one class is to have a Christmas play. The name is "Jack Horner Gives a Christmas Party." The children who are to be in it are: Jack Horner, Ronald De Page. Mother Goose, Norma June Wright; Jack and Jill, Billy and Betty Dutton; Pussy Cat, Lenne Whitesides; Boy Blue, Robert Greenwald; Miss Muffet, Ethel Jones; Little Miss Ethicoat, Dorthea Crouch; Humpty Dumpty, Richard Kirkhart; Old Woman in the Shoe, Mary Lou Hales. —Alfred Wright.

Write Christmas Rhymes

The upper grade classes have been writing Christmas rhymes in both the writing and English classes.

"Santa is a jolly old elf,
I have to laugh in spite of myself.
And when he comes on Christmas eve,
I'm sure a lot of nice toys he will leave.

"For a lot of nice little girls
He leaves pretty dolls with golden curls,
And for the boys who kindness claims,
He leaves puffing engines and roaring trains."

—La Vene Parks.

"I hope that Santa the dear old man
On this coming Christmas does the best that he can.
I hope he gives presents to each girl and boy.
For I know many who don't have one toy."

—Mildred Waterfield.

"Five little children were fast asleep
They were waiting for Santa down the chimney to creep.
They were Sally May, and Billy, Tom, Virginia Lee, and Minnie; when 'Hush! Hush!' said Sallie May 'Here comes Santa in his sleigh.'
Then the children all went to sleep
When down the chimney Santa did creep."

—Muriel Snyder.

"Santa went to the chimney
To start his upward flight,
But I jumped and pulled him down
For I like him with all my might."

—Mercedes Kellough.

"Santa has an immense pack,
He brings lot of pleasure and toys;
For he has a true heart and a strong back
For the good girls and boys."

—Mollie Holzknecht.

Bird Exercises

The P.-T. A. canary thought that he should have exercise so he took it. The teacher in whose room he was, was cleaning his cage when he just slipped out before she knew it. He flew out and went on top of thewindow sill and he stayed there as long as he wanted to. The teacher had to call Mr. Skinner to help her catch him. They chase dhim and he flew up above the windows, and they really got tired, too. Mr Skinner tried to get him and finally just barely caught him.

—Marjorie Wonder.

Last week was Good Posture week. Every child was given a yellow tag on Monday. All who didn't have their tags taken from them were allowed to march in a good posture parade. Then the two best ones from each class were taken out of line for the final parade. The judges had a hard time deciding which two were the best. We all are glad that one girl out of the H6 class was the winner, Naomi Dennie. Walton Klepper of the L6 was the boy who had the best posture.

—Bertha Murillo.

We are making rhymes and jingles in Mrs. Rodgers' spelling classes with our spelling words. It is lots of fun to learn spelling this way. Try a rhyme yourself with the word Santa Claus and see how you like it.

—Du Vern Lambert.

Thursday, December 5, the Safety committee of McKinley school put on a play for the P.-T. A. It was about a careless boy who thought that he would cross the street. On Friday they played for the school children to teach them to obey the safety rules. The characters were: Policeman, Joe Sanford; Jack, Chester Clark; the boy on skates, Jesse Marroquin; the old woman, Naomi Dennie; the man, Thompson McNeal; doctor Raymond Clark; nurse, Marie Stuart; driver of the automobile, Lloyd Miller; Jor, Robert Horseman; school children, Lorraine Sweet, Virginia Davenport, Dorothy Waters, Marie Smith and Margaret Garrett.

—Chester Clark.

Last Monday the American Red Cross sent out a big card to be signed by all children who wished to join the American Junior Red Cross. All of the children who signed the card got a Red Cross button to wear. Your duty is to serve when you are called upon.

—Doris Poole.

Mrs. Stark's Low One class had 20 out of the whole class who were not absent or tardy for one month.

—Alfred Wright.

Naomi Dennie was the only girl last week in Santa Ana who made a perfect score in the standardized spelling test. There were 50 words.

—Marie De Loge.

Artesia School

The Girl Reserves went to the Y. W. C. A. last Thursday. We are going to have a party Saturday at the "Y." We are going to meet at our school. Miss Dorothy Cartwright is going to send some cars to take us over to the "Y." All of the other schools are going too. —Jennie Canales.

Last week the third grade got the prize for having the least tardy slips. The prize was to go in the new school to see how it was and to see their room.

—Arthur Saldana.

Last week was good posture week at all the schools. Mrs. Ritter told us to stand for opening exercises as we always do. Then we chose the queen and king; Nellie Parra was the queen and Dagarerto Garcia was the king.

—Feliz Cruz.

We had 76 per cent in the school savings this week. Mrs. Abbey got the bank pennant for having the highest per cent of depositors putting money in the bank. She has not had the banner before.

—Lupe Hernandez.

Given Prizes

On last Monday, Mrs. Ritter gave a prize to all the ones who had perfect attendance for a month without being late. These are the ones who got a prize:

John C. Freemont

On Wednesday morning the pupils of John C. Fremont school had their annual Christmas program, which was as follows:

"Silent Night," by the school; "Christmas Bells," by kindergarten; songs by eight boys and eight girls from first grade.

A play by pupils of third grade.

A poem, "Santa Claus," Cleotilde Lucio and Mary Ruiz; song and acrostic by high first grade; song, "O Come All Ye Faithful," third grade; recitation by four girls from second grade; a song, "Who Will Buy My Toys?" five girls from pre-primer; song, "Away in a Manger," third grade; a play, "Christmas in Many Lands," fourth grade.

Folk dance by pupils from fifth grade; song, "Lullaby," Lillian Montana, and song, "Sextette," the sixth grade.

At the conclusion of the program the arrival of Santa Claus claimed the interest of everyone. With assistance of the teachers, he distributed presents. The gifts were made possible through the generosity of the Santa Ana B. P. O. E. Candy canes also added a festive note.

On Monday the school was presented with a delightful Christmas gift, a Victrola. For this much-needed addition, sincere thanks to Miss Carrie Seaton were extended.

TRICYCLES REPAIRED, FIX IT SHOP, 105 E. 3rd.—(Adv.)

Roosevelt School

Plans are getting under way for a real Christmas celebration at Roosevelt. Each class drew names and Wednesday when we had our Christmas parties, exchanged gifts. Miss Wirick's little kindergarten people had charge of the assembly.

Have New Mounts

The nature study room has three new bird mounts which have been done within the last two weeks. Merle Morris has done two, one of the western flycatch, and one of the sparrow hawk. Charles Swanner has made an interesting mount of California quail feathers.

Everyone at Roosevelt is rejoicing at the return of Miss Lindsay the history teacher, who was absent for a week on account of illness.

BATTLE FLEET TO LEAVE PORT FEB. 14

SAN PEDRO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The battle fleet of the U. S. navy will sail from here February 14 next for winter concentration and maneuvers in the Caribbean sea according to orders received from Washington.

The total force at the concentration will be 104 ships as against 180 at previous maneuvers. Only 84 units of the battle fleet will participate, the small number being due to modernization work and overhaul.

OLIVE

OLIVE, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Emilia Brelje arranged a pleasant surprise for her grand children, Irene and Mathilda Brelje, in her home Sunday afternoon in observance of their birthdays. After spending the afternoon at bunco and other games, lunch of chicken sandwiches, cake and ice cream was served to the following guests: Donald Timme, Dorothy Truempler, Elmer Lemke, Arthur Gollin, Melvin Boehner, Lawrence Timken, Arnold Boehner, Norman Schmid, Dorothy Luchau, Margaret Kreidt, Oscar Lieffers, Leora Matthews, Roy Truempler, Arthur Paulus, Henry Paulus, Irma Klassen, Walther Boehner, Hilma Krage, Elmer Luchau, Edna Heim, Alice Heinemann, Hildegard Boehner and Josephine Luchau. The Misses Irene and Mathilda were the happy recipients of many gifts.

William Luchau's was observed Sunday at a dinner given by his daughter, Mrs. A. Burdge, in her home, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luchau and children being present as guests with the Burdge family. After dinner the party repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luchau, where they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Eganton and chidren of Huntington Park, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Caldwell and children of Maywood, Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Meierhoff, the Rev. E. H. Kreidt and children to spend the afternoon and evening.

Ye Old Time Birthday club met recently in the home of Mrs. Oscar Gunther in Orange. Members present were Mrs. Lyman Gettins, of Santa Ana, Mrs. Henry Ehlen of Orange, Mrs. O. Burdg of Olive. Mrs. Fred Klaner was present as a guest of the club.

A quilting party was held in the home of Mrs. Hermann Meierhoff recently. After the quilting lunch was served by the hostess to the following: Mrs. Herbert Meierhoff, Mrs. Walther Otte, Mrs. Henry Luchau, Mrs. O. Burdge, Mrs. Arthur Brelje, Mrs. Walther Timme, Mrs. Emilia Brelje, Mrs. Elward Meierhoff, Mrs. Carl Liermann.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klaner and son, Frederick, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. Burdg Sunday.

Mrs. Edwin Brelje gave a party recently in observance of her husband's birthday. The evening was spent at cards, after which a luncheon of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paulus, Mrs. Emilia Brelje, Mrs. Martin Hemann and son Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brelje and daughters, Irene and Mathilda, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Paulus, Miss Florence Heim, Miss Meta Paulus, Robert, Harold and Arthur Paulus, and the guest of honor, Edwin Brelje.

SPRINGDALE

SPRINGDALE, Dec. 20.—Springdale school closed Tuesday afternoon for the Christmas holiday, which will extend over New Year's day, school to reopen January 2.

Christmas was observed in both rooms of the school on the closing afternoon. Santa appeared in Mrs. Randall's primary room and distributed candy to the children who exchanged gifts.

In Mrs. Young's room the upper grade children enjoyed their exchange of gifts and were given a Christmas treat by their teacher.

Mrs. George Crane has returned from a visit to Clearfield, Iowa, her former home, where she has been with a sister who is very low following an illness of several years duration. Members of the family met Mrs. Crane at Pomona and a family gathering had been prepared as a surprise for the traveller. A chicken supper was served, those present being Mr. and Mrs. Crane, S. J. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham and sons, of this place; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gisler of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gisler, of Talbert. Mrs. Crane's brother, Lee Wentzel, and family joined the family party after dinner.

Mrs. Irene Wentzel has been quite ill in her home since Friday of last week and has been under a nurses' care since Sunday. Improvement in her condition was noted Tuesday. Mrs. Johnson, nurse to George Gerhart, is caring for her.

Miss Gary, who teaches in the Christian college, Los Angeles, visited her father, J. R. Gary, one day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schonle and son spent Tuesday in Santa Ana.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Decker visited in Orange Saturday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Trickey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Graham were in Puente Sunday to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lyons and family.

Mrs. Albert Ruoff was a Los Angeles visitor on Wednesday.

...WER GAS RATES ...SEEN FOR LAGUNA

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 20.—...That a reduction of gas rates ...roughout the territory served by ...e Southern Counties Gas com...ny is possible, is the substance ...f a letter received by O. B. ...ham, secretary of the chamber ...f commerce, from the railroad ...mission.

The letter is in answer to one ...nt by Mr. Dunham for the civic ...dy in which an investigation of ...e $1.25 monthly ready-to-serve ...as asked. The Realty board and ...e chamber of commerce have ...ked this, the latter making the ...mal request.

No promise was given in the ...tter to Mr. Dunham, signed by ...eon O. Whitsell, member of the ...mmission, as to the asked for ...duction being given consider...tion at this time, the subject mat...r before the commission being a reduction in gas rates and not an elimination of the special monthly charge.

It is asserted locally that the charge may have been justified at the time the company extended its lines, but that since the extension of mains to Capistrano and San Clemente it becomes unfair to this community.

Election of directors comes before the chamber in January. Nomclosing date for them being December 24. Though John Jehle has made an energetic canvass to find persons who will serve, no nominations had yet been turned into Secretary Dunham on Wednesday.

'Our Dollar' Farm Center's Subject

YORBA LINDA, Dec. 20—George Kellogg, president of the Yorba Linda Farm center, has sent out invitations reminding people of the Farm Center dinner this evening. Phil Damon, manager of the Yorba Linda Citrus association, will talk on "Our Dollar, Here It Comes" and William Jerome, county assessor, will talk on "There It Goes."

Dinner will be served by the hostess committee, Mrs. A. C. Pickering, chairman, and all are invited to attend.

COSTA MESA

State Expected To Lead New York Car Registrations

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—(UP)—California is on the verge of exceeding New York in passenger automobile registration, it was disclosed in a report on file with Governor Young today by B. B. Meek, director of public works.

On December 1 of this year New York's passenger car registration was 1,873,677. California's total for the same date was 1,873,099.

Although California has led the nation for some time in the number of registered automobiles per capita, it would not be surprising that 1930 will show California also leading in passenger car registrations, according to Meek.

LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 20.—Lions expect to be hosts to the Boy Scouts and to Scoutmaster Al Schleicher and Assistant Scoutmaster Hussell Hind Monday evening. Dan Grant and Robert N. Bowen are in charge of the affair.

St. Mary's Episcopal church will hold a holy communion service Christmas morning at 8 o'clock. The church will be decorated for the Sunday evening service preceding.

A Christmas musicale is planned by Miss Eleanor Mae Spencer for her students at the Spencer studio Saturday afternoon. Miss Spencer will give a farewell party in the evening. She is moving to Orange.

An effort is being made to raise funds for the float which it is expected will be entered in the Rose Tournament at Pasadena. The city has promised $50 of the money. Work is donated by members of the American Legion.

Audrey Allanson, 12-year-old son of H. D. Allanson, had his nose broken, lips cut and was badly bruised in a fall from a cliff in the extension of Boat canyon Sunday.

George A. Ragan, formerly of Santa Ana, has made arrangement to move with Mrs. Ragan to this city soon after the first of the year. He has purchased the residence of Dr. E. M. Mills. He will be associated with Ropp & Mackey.

Mrs. Maurice B. McMilland was hostess to the Duplicate Bridge club Monday in her home on Victoria drive. Prize winners were Mrs. J. Royster Helm and Mrs. Frank B. Champion.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hall, of Los Angeles, parents of Clyan H. Hall, of this city, are visiting in the latter's home over the holidays.

TUSTIN

TUSTIN, Dec. 20.—Master Roland Humeston is spending the week with his grandmother near Chino.

John D. Rinard, of Pasadena avenue, has been taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital for a minor operation.

Guest in the V. L. Humeston home Wednesday was Miss Margaret Humeston, of Long Beach.

Miss Louise Vance is spending the Christmas holidays in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Vance, of West Main street.

Mrs. Anna Heffley returned this week from Paloma, where she has been packing fruit.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Humeston motored to Chino last night to spend the Christmas holidays.

Charles K. Lewis, who is attending the California Institute of Technology, is expected home this week for the Christmas holidays.

Walter Huntley will return to his home this week for the Christmas holidays from California Institute of Technology.

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ware have left for a two weeks vacation in Arizona.

Students and faculty of Tustin union high school will enjoy an added vacation during Christmas holidays this year, and will return on the sixth of January, instead of the second.

Hubert Wakeham and Reginald Rust, who are attending Oregon Agricultural college, are expected home on Sunday for the Christmas holidays.

Miss Susan Shiffler returned yesterday from the Bible institute in Los Angeles, for the holidays.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 20.—Announcement of the postponement of the Rebekah and Odd Fellow Christmas tree is made. The tree was to have been held next Sunday evening but plans were changed on account of the breakout of another case of scarlet fever Wednesday, making it seem inadvisable to bring a crowd together.

Billy Clinton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Clinton, is the latest victime of the scarlet fever, the Clinton home having been put under quarantine Wednesday.

Mrs. Florence Summers, teacher of the adult classes in the Westminster Americanization school, gave a Christmas treat to her pupils and other Mexicans of the community Wednesday evening following class.

Teachers of the Westminster school go this evening and Saturday to Los Angeles to attend teachers' institute.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McCall and daughter, Miss Fay McCall, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Edward and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orel Hare and family, Mrs. Alice Hare were among local people who attended the student body play at Huntington Beach, "Why the Chines Rang."

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McCall entertained as their dinner guests, Mrs. McCall's cousin, V. M. Chesbro, and wife and two children, of Santa Monica.

The Reuben Edwards' home was released from scarlet fever quarantine Wednesday. One member of the family, Ralph, the oldest son, was ill with the disease.

Mrs. Nellie Groeschner, who attends U. C. L. A. came Wednesday evening with the close of the university to spend her vacation of two weeks at home.

There's a risk in taking short cuts in cooking, also in roasting coffee

COUNTLESS recipes tell you to add ingredients a little at a time. Hills Bros. roast coffee the same way. A few pounds at a time—never in bulk. Their patented, continuous process—Controlled Roasting—produces a matchless, uniform flavor such as no other coffee has.

TINYMITES

by HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES by KNICK

At last the doll was fixed up right and Clowny said, "Now she's a sight that any little girl will love. I'm glad I sewed her dress." The doll said, "Thank you," with a smile. "I think I'll rest a little while. It isn't long until old Santa Claus starts off, I guess."

So to a little bed she went and dreamed about the big adventure that would come on Christmas morn'. My, what a lovely thought. A voice then rang out loud and clear. "Hey, Clowny Tinymites! Come here! The windup toys are out and there are things they must be taught."

'Twas Scouty who had yelled so loud. And Clowny joined the Tiny crowd. "My goodness," he exclaimed. "I never saw so many toys. I'm glad I've helped old Santa Claus with all his wondrous work because 'twill bring a heap of pleasure to a lot of girls and boys."

"Well, there is some work to do," snapped Coppy. "And it's up to you to lend a hand. Please wind some toys and see if they will run. You see 'twould be an awful fright if any were not working right. Just wind them up and make them walk. You'll find it lots of fun."

"Oh, sure, you can depend on me," said Clowny. "Let me have a key." And then he started winding things. His key went clickity-click. The other Tinies did the same and 'cross the floor the queer toys came. "Oh, watch them," shouted Carpy. "They are getting on real slick."

It was a funny sight to see. Each Tiny was busy as could be and all the windup toys a-walking round upon the floor. Old Santa shouted, "Well, there's lots of fun in store for real good tots." He watched the Tinies and the toys and then began to roar.

(The Tinymites get the reindeers in the next story.)

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

FORCES IN S. A. RECALL BATTLE MARKING TIME

Pending the filing of an injunction suit to restrain the city council from calling a recall election on the petition filed by the Citizens' league and possible action the council may take Monday night on the petition, the Greater Santa Ana association and the Citizens' league were marking time today.

The situation developing by the filing of the petition, the institution of an injunction suit to restrain the city from building a bridge across Santa Ana river and the proposed filing of an injunction suit to prevent the recall election had not changed today.

Fred Forgy, of the law firm of Scarborough, Forgy and Reinhaus, which firm has been retained by a property owner to prepare a complaint asking a court order to restrain the council from calling an election, said today that actual writing of the complaint has not as yet been started, but that investigations virtually had been completed of law points that would be involved in the proceedings.

Forgy expressed confidence in the grounds upon which the complaint would be based and asserted his belief that a restraining order would be granted.

According to the attorney there are many legal irregularities in the petition.

On the other hand, Wayne Goble, secretary of the Citizens' league, said today that competent attorneys have advised him that there are no fatal mistakes in the document.

OCEANVIEW

OCEANVIEW, Dec. 20.—The Oceanview Health center will not meet this month. The next meeting will be held January 24. All mothers of pre-school age children are invited to bring their children for examination. If the health center is not well attended it will have to be discontinued, so all interested are urged to attend.

The Oceanview school closed Wednesday afternoon for two weeks. School reopens on January 2. All teachers of the school provided treats in the way of candy or fruits for their classes. In the kindergarten an interesting program was given and mothers of pupils were guests. Each child had made a gift for his or her mother and at the conclusion of the program these were presented. Gifts were exchanged by the pupils and a special treat from Miss Fern Feaster was distributed. Gifts were exchanged in each class of the school.

The large quantity of clothing, fruits and toys which have been presented the local Parent-Teachers association to go to the Indian reservations, were shipped Thursday by Mrs. J. O. Irwin, who was in charge of the work here.

NEW YORK BONDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Price changes on the bond market today were characteristic of the narrow and irregular trend of the past week and activity was about evenly divided among the various sections of the list.

Credit conditions still remained at the recently "pegged" levels and therefore offered no incentive to increased activity on the part of bond markt traders and consequently values displayed little net change with the absence of operations.

Convertibles eased off after an early display of firmnes, with such issues as American Telephone 4½s, American Chemical 5½s and International Telephone 4½s selling off with their relative stocks. American International 5½s dropped all of a 1 point gain.

Rails appeared on the tape with typical frequence, but prices were not influenced by publication on a financial news ticker of the interstate commerce commission's consolidation plan. Such issues as Atchison 4½s, Missouri Pacific 4s of 1975, Pensylvania 8s and Nickel Plate 5½s, series A, were subject to fair turnover.

Industrials and utilities were dull little changed, while United States government issues moved irregularly in a narrow range, with Liberty 3½s off 1-32nd, while the first and fourth 4¼s were slightly higher. Firmness in European issues featured the foreign divison. South American loans were quiet and steady.

NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Further reaction in utility shares, after a period of narrow price movements in the earlier transactions, featured trading on the curb market today, with such issues as Electric Bond & Share, American Cities Power & Light, American & Foreign Power, Insull Utilities and Standard Power & Light, in supply at concessions ranging to 3 points on a continuance of the recet selling pressure, largelyfor teh account of operators seeking to establish tax losses.

Renewed presure was also brought to bear on the Investment trusts and the steady downward movement in Prince and Whitely and Goldman Sachs was maintained, the former selling off a point and the latter fractionally. Bids for Lehman corporation and utility equities also found plenty of offerings.

Oils and mining stocks held within a narrow range for price movements Cities Service encountered goo dsupport on a slight recession, while other petroleums were also little changed. Newmont sagged more than a point in the mining division. Characteristics recent dullness prevailed in the industrial list, while amusements were featured by an adters A in the face of further heavy vance of almost a point in Fox theadepression in Fox shares on the big board.

L. A. PRODUCE

LOS ANGELES, Dec 20.—(UP)—A slight improvement in buying was noticeable on the Los Angeles market today although prices showed little change.

Apples remained steady. Loose Fuerte avocados were 50-60c and Pueblas at 45-50c a lb. Fancyp Kentucky Wonder beans from San Diego county brought 16-18c. San Diego county lima beans were 11-12c a lb.

Good local cabbage was 75c-01.00 a crate. Fairly good snowball cauliflower was at 50-65c a crate.

Venice Celery was 02.00-$2.25 a crate.

Eggplant from San Diego county and the Coachella valley moved slowly at 8-9c a lb. for the best. Grapes were in lights upply, a few cornichons from the San Joaquin valley being sold at 5-8½s a lb. Imperial valley grapefruit held steady at $4.75 a box for fancy 64s with 80s at $4.20 to $4.50 and 100s at $4.50. Fancy oCachella valley grapefruit sold at $5.25-$5.50 a box for the 64 size with 80s at $4.50-$4.75 while a little extra fancy stock was sold at higher figures. Some good San Diego county dry pack lettuce was $2.25-$2.50 a crate. Oranges continued in firm position especially on the smaller sizes of fancy packed navels. Loose standard navels from Tulare county remained unchanged and sold at $2.75 a box for large fruit with medium sizec at $1.75-$2.00.

Imperial valley peas were 8-9c a lb. Best California wonders from San Diego county were 15-17c al b. New potatoes from San Diego county wer sold at 5-7c a lb. Italian squash was 75c a lug. Summer squash was $2.00-$2.25 a lug. Tangerines from Bakersfield and the Imperial valley moved fairly well at mostly 8c a pound in jobbing quantities.

SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 20.—The highest temperature here Wednesday was 89 and the lowest 65. The mean temperature was 72. The sun shone for more than 50 per cent of the time. It was the first time in the Spanish village's history that official weather observations had been made. This city now has a governmental co-operative weather station. Plans have been laid to make it an official station.

Ray Barnett of the engineering office is San Clemente's weather man.

Bill McLaughlin leaves Sunday for Independence, Kans., to visit his family over the holidays. McLaughlin states that he will return to the Spanish village in the spring.

Jimmy Bennett, fire chief, has received a check for $25 for the firemen's fund for the efficient work of the San Clemente department in putting out a fire at San Juan Capistrano earlier in the week.

ORDINANCE NO. 903

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SANTA ANA DECLARING RESULT OF ELECTION IN "GLORIETTA ADDITION."

WHEREAS, a special election was held in that territory known as "Glorietta Addition" on Thursday, the 5th day of December, 1929, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of June 11, 1913, relating to the annexation of territory to municipalities, and found in the Statutes of 1913, Page 587, as subsequently amended, at which election there was submitted the question of whether said new territory hereinafter described should be annexed to, incorporated in and made a part of the City of Santa Ana; and

WHEREAS, notice of said election was given by publication, in the time, form and manner as required by said Act, as appears from the affidavit of Laurine E. Arguello, of the Orange Daily News, on file with the City Clerk; and

WHEREAS, it appears that said special election was held in accordance with law and said notice on Thursday, the 5th day of December, 1929, and that the polls for said election were kept open during the time required by law, to-wit, from six o'clock A. M. to seven o'clock P. M. of said day, and that said special election was held and conducted, and the votes received and canvassed, and the result thereof determined and declared, in the time, form and manner required by law; and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Santa Ana did,on Monday, the 9th day of December, 1929, being the time provided for its regular meeting next after the expiration of three (3) days from and after the date of said election, meet and proceed to canvass the returns of said special election as required by law.

WHEREUPON, the result of said canvass having been found to be as hereinafter stated;

The City Council of the City of Santa Ana do ordain as follows:

1. That the new territory proposed to be annexed to said City of Santa Ana as aforesaid is particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Situated in the County of Orange, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Main Street with the center line of Delhi Road, said point being a point on the Boundary line of the City of Santa Ana, California; thence Easterly along said Boundary line and along the center line of Delhi Road to an intersection with the Northerly extended Easterly line of Emmett's Addition to an intersection with the Northerly line of the Pacific Electric Railway Company's Right-of-way; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Northeasterly corner of Emmett's Addition No. 3, as per map thereof on file in Miscellaneous Maps, Book 8, Page 55, Records of Orange County, California; thence Southerly along the Easterly line of said Emmett's Addition No. 3, and along the Southerly extension of said line to an intersection with the center line of Dyer Road; thence Westerly along the center line of Dyer Road to an intersection with the center line of Main Street; thence Northerly along the center line of Main Street to the point of beginning.

2. That there was but one election precinct established and provided for the holding of said special election, the boundaries of which were the boundaries of said territory.

3. That the whole number of votes cast upon said proposition in the territory to be annexed as aforesaid was Twenty-seven, and the number of votes cast therein in favor of annexation was Seventeen and the number of votes cast therein against annexation was Ten; and

WHEREAS, it appears from the canvass of the returns of said election held in the territory proposed to be annexed to said City of Santa Ana that the majority of all the votes cast in said outside territory on the question of said annexation are in favor of annexation.

IT IS FURTHER ORDAINED, that the annexation of said teritory be and the same is hereby approved, and it is hereby ordered that a certified copy of this Ordinance, giving the date of its passage under the seal of said City of Santa Ana, be transmitted to and filed with the Secretary of the State of California, from and after the date of which filing the annexation of such territory shall be deemed to be complete, and thenceforth said annexed territory shall be to all intents and purposes a part of the City of Santa Ana.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, that a record be made and entered upon the minutes of the City Council showing the total number of votes cast upon said question at said election, the number thereof cast in favor of annexation and the number thereof cast against annexation.

The City Clerk is hereby directed to cause this ordinance to be published three (3) times in the Santa Ana Daily Evening Register, a daily newspaper of general circulation published and circulated in said City of Santa Ana, and hereby designated for said purpose, by said City Council.

A MOST USEFUL GIFT

If you had the magic power, your Christmas gift to your family this year would be—Health and Happiness. That would be the greatest gift of all.

That's what I had in mind last Christmas, (1928) so I purchased a General Electric Refrigerator with all the latest "do-dads," cold control and all and that was my Christmas gift to my family.

We used it for 5 months and then circumstances made a change of residence necessary. The new home we leased had a refrigerator built in it, so we have had no use for our machine. It has been in storage at a G. E. store since July and is in 100% perfect condition. cannot be told from a new one and as we have no use for it we are going to sell it at a very substantial discount.

It is a large machine, containing 12¾ square feet of shelf or "loading" space, costing $395.00 and can be purchased at a bargain price. Can be seen at 505 So. Main St., Santa Ana.

FOR SALE—Baby bed. 517 Pacific, Santa Ana.

EVENING SALUTATION

"Mr. President, there is no such thing as personal liberty in a republic."
—Senator Wesley L. Jones, author of the Jones Law.

EXPLOITING THE CHILDREN

We believe in free speech. We are not fearful in this country of a Bolshevist revolution where the great mass of our people are comfortable and contented, and where the door of opportunity is still open to the aggressive and energetic seeker. Such great social upheavals come only in countries which, like France before the revolution of 1789, or Russia before the revolution of 1917, have become the despair of the masses. So long as Communists talk and rave, it is good policy to let them alone. Repression only gives their utterances an importance they do not actually have.

But when these Communists exploit their children, sending them to make a nuisance of themselves as they did at a recent meeting of the City Council of Cleveland and before the White House in Washington, our patience is about exhausted. It only illustrates the desperate failure of this group to attract public attention when they throw their children into the breach to arrest attention. They themselves are but strident voices crying in the wilderness. There is no one to listen. Therefore the exploitation of the children is their last line of reinforcements. Mr. Hoover was right when he ordered the police to release the children from jail and take them home to their parents. And the Cleveland authorities acted wisely when they corraled them all and gave them a ride home.

We only hope that those who are ready to suppress and to club and to throw these malcontents in prison will learn wisdom by letting these Communists orate to their heart's content, so long as they do not disturb the peace or interfere with the liberty of others. To take their orations seriously is to admit that they are a menace. This they are not. There is a general indifference to their economic doctrines. Keep the door of opportunity open to every one. Let the powerful rich think of the social good as much as their own good. See to it that justice is meted out evenly to all. With that the Communists in the United States will continue to cry in the wilderness. Even the exploitation of their innocent children will not aid them.

One Massachusetts high school is said to have a football field but no class building. Well, they're starting the right way, anyhow.

IMPROVING OUR FOREIGN SERVICE

Time was when anyone could serve his country at foreign courts. Our isolation and our aloofness from world affairs only required that we should send to foreign courts a gentleman of means who could tag along in the procession of diplomats at some social function and not look too disreputable. Those were the days when lame ducks, who had been defeated for Congress at a previous election, were sent to Peru or some other country for a holiday. Or it might be that a man of large wealth with a socially ambitious wife, who had contributed to the party campaign fund, was rewarded with a foreign post. We could name such. Some of them were sent to Mexico, but snarled things up for us there. Some were sent to Italy and played at ecclesiastical politics, as one did there. Some even coveted the Oriental splendors of Teheran or Cabul.

That is of the past. The United States is a World Power today. Since the war the United States has taken a place beside Great Britain and ahead of France and Germany and Italy in all the capitals of the world. Our investments and interests everywhere make it necessary that men of diplomatic and statesmanlike ability, men who speak the language of the country to which they are designated, who have some knowledge of the country and the people, shall be our ambassadors at foreign courts. President Hoover aims to make our diplomatic and consular representatives the peers of those from any country in the world. Perhaps, like Great Britain, we shall develop a diplomatic caste whose wisdom and courtliness will win the respect and the admiration of the nations. We are on the way. Poiliticians out of a job no longer need apply.

A vegetarian who neither smokes nor drinks has just celebrated his 101st birthday. It must have seemed longer than that, however.

THE EASTERN STORMS

It is remarkable that since coming to California we find that the blizzards and zero weather back in the Middle West are so disastrous and terrible in their havoc.

We didn't know it when we were there, we were so close to it. It is strange how we have to go far away and see things through a telescope in order to see them at all. INVESTMENTS IN LATIN AMERICA

The World's Peace Foundation, organized through the bequest of Edwin Ginn, the publisher of Boston, has been doing a great deal in bringing to the public the facts underlying international relations. Its occasional pamphlets, which are sent to any one for $1 a year, are worth more than can be gotten anywhere for ten times the price. It is a pity that the work of that foundation is not better known, and that there are not many more who invest a dollar annually to get its pamphlets.

The latest pamphlet, containing nearly three hundred pages, is a detailed presentation of the investments of United States capital in the Latin-American countries, and the general facts which are related to the subject. Here one may learn something about the character of all the South American countries, the nature of their products, their financial condition, their exports and imports, the capital of other countries than the United States invested, as well as the far reaching international significance of foreign investments. Not only the government, and pretty much all the provinces and municipalities of the various republics are indebted to foreign capital, but the mineral resources, the great utility companies, the banks, and the industries are controlled by foreign capital. Standard Oil, American and Foreign Power, the packing industries of the United States, Mining and Fruit Companies, all have large holdings. The First National Bank of Boston owns a $5,000,000 bank building in Buenos Aires, the finest bank building in South America.

This study shows how much American business has, through the investment of capital, penetrated every single phase of South American society, and how essential it is that good will should exist between us and those countries. Should a spirit of strife arise in Latin-America toward the United States, it would be as destructive of American capital as a civil war right here in our own country. There is little doubt that large investments of capital by one country in another country, especially when these countries can furnish considerable resistance to each other's demands, is a strong deterrent of war between such countries. When, however, the lending nation is much stronger than the borrowing nation, then there is the tendency, as has been the case in Colombia, Haiti, and Nicaragua, for the stronger country to intervene in the domestic affairs of the weaker, with the result that the loss of life and money may be greater than the amount of the investments involved.

A presentation such as is made in the pamphlet mentioned marks the importance of amicable relations between this country and the countries where so much of our capital is invested. It also calls for a high order of diplomatic representation. This latter fact is evident in the successful work of Mr. Morrow in Mexico, who in a few brief months changed the relations between the United States and Mexico from suspicion and conflict to friendship and confidence.

KEARNEY SITE APPROVED

The Navy General Board has put the stamp of its approval upon Camp Kearney as the Pacific Coast dirigible base site. This support of Secretary Adams and Rear Admiral Moffatt will go far, undoubtedly, to convince Congress of the value of the San Diego site, and bring the base to Southern California.

It is unfortunate that Orange County could not have had this boom to her prosperity, but as we could not, we had rather see it, of course, come to San Diego than go north. We still believe the natural advantages of an Orange county site are superior to those of any other point on the coast.

Bigger Lunches in Sight As Dress Styles Change

San Bernardino Sun

A few short months ago the 18-day diet, credited to Hollywood, swept the country. Slimness and straightness were the qualities sought for the feminine figure. Suddenly this has changed. The new feminine dress styles are said to make five or ten pounds more flesh desirable.

In the community where most American movies are made, a restaurant hostess says the average luncheon check of screen actresses has recently increased by 20 or 25 cents over the average check of the past five years. She says:

They're all eating more. They all watch their weight, even now, but the new styles and the return of contours give them more leeway. They go back to the foods they ate as children. You'd be surprised at the crowd that consumes oatmeal and cornmeal mush now. The foreign stars are giving orders for cheese and salads. All are eating candy.

What is good in the matter of clothes and diet in Hollywood is pretty sure to be good in other places. Lunch counter and restaurant proprietors ought to be pleased. So should the prosperity boosters, who want more money kept in circulation. And so should the doctors, who have been warning against the starvation diet.

Gains In State Wealth

Oakland Tribune

The way California is forging ahead is revealed in the totals of individual and corporation income taxes collected under the Federal laws. The state which ranks eighth in the census population figures now ranks fifth in the list of income tax returns and has moved close to fourth position.

New York, of course, is first. The center of individual and corporation wealth has an income tax collection of 744 million dollars. Illinois has moved Pennsylvania out of second place with 217 millions while the Quaker commonwealth has 208. The great automotive industry has kept Michigan in its fourth place with 140 millions and then comes California with the magnificent figure of 130 millions. In other words, California leads all the eastern states save New York and Pennsylvania, leads Ohio and everything in the Middle West save Illinois and Michigan.

The figures show the material prosperity of a state which is yet young in an industrial way. They are truly amazing.

THE PIRATE

If Bill were older
(And quite a little bolder)
And didn't need
All day to heed
What older people said,
He'd be a pirate skipper
And sail a rakish clipper,
And night and day
He'd rob and slay
Until her decks ran red.

He'd spare the honest sailors
On merchantmen and whalers,
His trim-built craft,
Armed, fore and aft,
For them should have no fears.
But he would take rare pleasure
In capturing the treasure
That was the fruit
Of evil loot
By sinful buccaneers.

But when the day was over
The brave and daring rover
Who had not paled
Nor flinched nor quailed
Through perils and alarms,
Would dock his rakish vessel
And comfortably nestle
(All danger past,
And safe at last)
In mother's sheltering arms.

When Steadier Jobs Are Made

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Dulcey could almost appreciate the feeling of the chorus girl who didn't want a book for Christmas, because she HAD a book. Dulcey also had a book—a book of mingled grief and comfort. She was poring over it now. It was a bank book.

"You needn't grin, Sam," she said, catching her husband's eyes. "You'd be surprised how much you can learn from one of these things."

"I've learned a few things from that book myself," Sam admitted. 'Prominent Figures That Have Influenced My Life.'"

"I'm studying their jumps," said Dulcey. "Last year we had 5438 saved, and then—"

"And then came the dawn of a new lay-off."

"You didn't get steady work until March, and we—"

"Yes, we had to live. At least," said Sam, apologetically, "we thought so. And by March the little old savings account passed out with pernicious anemia. Then—"

"In August," said Dulcey, consulting the oracle, "we had $214, and then—"

"We took another vacation, at the suggestion of the front office."

"If," said Dulcey wistfully, "you only had steady work—"

"We could save ourselves right into the income-tax class. Puzzle: find the steady work."

"But, Sam, there MUST be a way—"

"So you and President Hoover agree!" said Sam, admiringly.

"What do you mean, agree?"

"President Hoover," informed Sam, kindly, "is much concerned with that problem, which ought to mean—"

"What? For goodness' sake!"

"Which ought to mean," concluded Sam, dramatically, "when steadier jobs are made, America will make 'em."

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

HOW MANY SCHOOLS ARE ENOUGH?

The United States expends more money on schools and colleges than all the rest of the world.

A larger proportion of young and old attend school in the United States than in any other nation.

Here and there, now and then, rumbles of rebellion are heard from critics and taxpayers.

A way must be found to cut the cost of schooling, is a cry that becomes more frequent every year.

All along, I have emphasized the obvious fact that, if costs must be cut, there are two ways the cutting can be affected, viz.:

From the outside—with an ax.

From the inside—with analysis.

Obviously the second way stands the chance of being the more intelligent.

If the cost of schooling must be cut, it should be cut as a result of educational reassessment and reorganization rather than as a result of financial restriction.

It may well be that very material sections of our highly developed school system have been created by the inventive genius of schoolmen rather than in answer to real needs of students.

For instance, David Snedden, professor of education in Columbia University, looks with a very skeptical eye on the elaboration of nursery schools and kindergartens for the general run of normal children.

He thinks that it is only a small proportion of children from four to six years of age that need educational agencies to supplement their homes. And certainly, he thinks, schools should be provided for children from two to four years of age only when their family conditions are abnormal.

It is his considered judgment that it would be a decided advantage to withhold altogether from school attendance until nine or even ten years of age children of superior intellectual heredity whose family surroundings are normal and wholesome.

He thinks that, save from the other than normal run of children in good village or suburban homes, most of the new "child-centered schools" provide stories, music, toys, manipulative arts, and companionship in excess, that their daily programs are too regimented, their activities too directed, emergencies too thoroughly anticipated, and their co-operations too enforced.

For perhaps sixty per cent of small children in America, Dr. Snedden thinks the normal home is all the organized educational opportunity that is needed.

He recognizes, of course, that we need nursery schools and kindergartens for children who in themselves or in their homes represent the exceptional or abnormal minority, and he gives his blessing to agencies of experimentation on problems of child guidance, but he holds a doubting finger before the indiscriminate and expensive elaboration of a nation-wide nursery and kindergarten system.

I do not say dogmatically that Dr. Snedden is right at every point; I suggest only that it is this sort of educational analysis that opens up the only intelligent way to face the problem of educational cost.

OUR CHILDREN

THE TANGIBLE THINGS

Little children can understand only the tangible things, the things they can touch and taste and use for their own purposes. They scarcely understand our words. We have to go slowly in the beginning. Use simple words, the names of things first of all, for things are what children deal with, not ideas. These grow out of their experience with things, tangible things.

"I don't know what is wrong with Susie. Her cards came home with a poor conduct mark because she talks too much. I promised her a new dress if she got a better mark this month and it's just as bad."

A reward a month away is not a tangible thing to the child and he cannot get excited about it. He means well. He means to please you and get the reward as well, but a month away—That does not touch him. The reward must be immediate, following close to the good deed. And it must be a tangible one if it is to work well.

Praise accompanies the tangible evidence of well doing, of course. Children cherish kind words and smiles. But they value things that come with the smiles and kind words, too, and because they are very material things we try to see that they get all the experience with things in this stage of their growth. Children you see, are thing-minded. Ideas are to grow from the experiences with things and people and processes but the things come first.

Shy children are helped by the use of things rather than through words. You can tell a shy child that nobody is going to eat him; that nobody is going to care whether he sits or stands, does or doesn't do; that all he has to do is to enter the room and sit down. But you might as well save your breath for fear, such as possesses the shy child, is not blown away with your breath. It must be driven away by contact with comforting, physical contact with things.

When you want a shy child to enter a room where your guests are seated give the child something to carry in his hands, and something to do with that thing. Let him carry in a small tray of refreshments and pass them and try not to center attention upon him. Forget him after he starts his round. The tangible tray and his task will help him think away from himself and that is the very best cure for shyness you ever found.

I have no fear that the child will grow to be material minded because of his acquaintance with things. He is a spiritual being but his spirit must be born in truth and the beginnings of truth for us lie in the things about us. By and by the ideas for which they stand reach our consciousness and we are freed of the weight of material things and live on in the intangible realm of the soul.

The spiritual being is a matter of lifetime growth, however. So begin with things.
